Arnold Line Seeks Rise in Fare to Meet Pay Increase

Bus Concern Serving 50,000 Announces Move to Adjust to 17-Cent Hourly Boost

By John London
Post Reporter

The Arnold bus line yesterday announced it would seek authority to raise its fares to meet a 17-cents-an-hour wage increase recently awarded by an arbitration board.

The line, which daily serves some 50,000 passengers on routes from Arlington and Fairfax Counties into downtown Washington, said it had not yet determined exactly what increases to request.

The wage raise and fringe benefits will cost the company in "excess of $200,000" and the firm "is without funds or incoming revenue to meet this obligation," the line said.

Award to Be Spread

The statement was issued by Bernard Wahle, executive vice president and general manager of the line, also known as the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co. He was the dissenting member of the three-man arbitration board which awarded some 200 drivers, mechanics and shop employes a 17-cent hourly increase. The award, which is binding, is to be spread over three five-month periods as follows:

Ten cents more an hour from May 18 (when the old contract expired) to October 3; 5 cents more, October 3 to March 20; 2 cents more, March 20 to August 18.

Majority members of the board were Bernard Cushman, attorney for the union, Division 1079 of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL), and Carl R. Schedler, arbitrator.

Wahle said the company is filing petitions with the Virginia Corporation Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission requesting an increase in fares for the entire line.

Fares Raised Two Years Ago

He said the company is meeting with union officials "for the purpose of working out an agreement for the payment of the award which the company cannot now pay nor will be able to pay unless its petitions are granted."

Two years ago the Arnold line was authorized by the ICC to boost fares after the company claimed "our financial house is burning down." Increases then ranged from 5 to 10 cents. As a result, cash fares currently range by a 5-cent progression from 15 cents in the first zone to 35 cents for the sixth zone.

Developments in the Arnold arbitration award were being closely scrutinized by principals in two other transit labor-management deadlocks, involving the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. and Capital Transit.

U. S. Loans, Credits Abroad in 4 Years Top $10 Billion

By The Associated Press

The United States has extended more than ten billion dollars in loans and credits to foreign countries during the last four years, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The total does not include gifts and grants, the department said.

Far out in front of other nations, Great Britain received a total of $4,704,000,000 in the four-year period. France was second with $2,065,000,000.

Foreign countries still owe the United States $9,846,000,000 of the total, the department said.

Truman Nominates Native Washingtonian, The Hero of Bastogne

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday passed over all eligible Army Chemical Corps officers and nominated Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe—of Bastogne fame—as the Nation's germ-warfare chief.

Washington-born "Tony" McAuliffe is the man who replied "Nuts" to a German demand that he surrender his surrounded troops during the Battle of the Bulge in 1944.

He will succeed Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt about October 1. Waitt was suspended as chief of the Chemical Corps in July when his name came up during the Senate "5-percenter" probe. His application for retirement was approved last week.

The Senate investigation brought out the fact that Waitt had been asked by Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, to sum up his opinion of officers in line to succeed him.

Waitt wrote critical memos on eight officers of the Chemical Corps under consideration at the time. His admitted reason was to have them shelved as unfit and be reappointed himself.

Now $35 Per Ounce

By The Associated Press

The United States won an opening round yesterday in its fight against an increase in the price of gold, but the issue was not settled.

In a surprise move, gold-producing South Africa withdrew temporarily its motion that the international monetary fund permit half of the world's production of new gold to be sold at premium prices. But South Africa served notice the issue would be brought up again shortly.

Camille Gutt, director of the 48-Nation fund which is holding its annual meeting here, announced the development at a news conference.

The issue was brought up at a meeting of a 21-nation committee of the fund. The committee had been named to consider the problem.

The United States Treasury pays $35 an ounce for gold, and Secretary of the Treasury Snyder opposes any increase in this price, which is recognized by the fund.

Gutt said Snyder suggested that the question be referred to the fund's executive directors for later study but that N. C. Havenga, South African finance minister, rejected the suggestion.

Obviously irritated at the American attitude, Havenga made plain to a reporter that he would renew his campaign at a full meeting of the fund shortly. Then, he said, it will be "another matter."

"It is not my place to dispute what Mr. Gutt told the press," he said.

Diplomatic officials predicted that if the full conference turns down South Africa's move the matter will be brought up before the 14-nation executive board, which controls the fund's policies.

Gutt said several countries spoke out in favor of the idea of increasing gold prices at the committeee session but he did not identify these. It was learned, however, that the Philippines and Australia backed South Africa while the United States virtually singlehandedly opposed it.

The move finds favor among a number of foreign Finance Min-

First Time in Open

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Yugoslavia's pro-Russian underground, acting openly in Belgrade for the first time, today flooded the city's central districts with posters and pamphlets urging the overthrow of Premier Marshal Tito and his "Fascist gestapo clique."

A check of a large neighborhood in downtown Belgrade disclosed that the leaflets had been slipped under doors and pushed into a large number of mail boxes between midnight and 7 a. m.

At least two types of propaganda were passed out—a tabloid-sized poster bearing a reprint of an article urging revolt and a copy of a leaflet called "For a Socialistic Yugoslavia," published by Yugoslav refugees in Moscow.

The pamphlets denounced Interior Minister Alexander Rankovic as "a bloody gestapo Fascist."

Militiamen went quickly into action.

Several persons questioned by the United Press said the pamphlets had had no effect on their beliefs. They said they disliked the pro-Russian Communist Information Bureau for a variety of reasons.

The leaflets were printed on paper of a type not often seen in Yugoslavia.

Wrong Flash on Race Mixes Digits, Starts Digitalis Run

A wrong flash from the Hawthorne racetrack in Illinois caused a condition of crisis yesterday among the District's "sporting" fraternity.

The pulses of those who play numbers and those who book 'em did nipups.

The local numbers boys pay off on the basis of the mutuels results at the Illinois track. The mutuels total for the first race determines the first digit of the number, the second race determines the second digit, etc.

In the first race at Hawthorne yesterday an inspired plug named Donaris got home in front, Antigone ran second and two unbrilliant hay burners by the names of Pere Markette and Miss Clara finished in a dead heat for third place.

From the track the race wire service flashed prices of $3.40, $3 and $2.20 on Donaris, $4 and $2.20 on Antigone, and $2.20 each for Pere Markette and Miss Clara.

Add all these prices, which is what the numbers people do, and you will get a total of $19.00. So the first digit of the day's number would be a "9." It is always the digit immediately preceding the decimal point.

The first race at Hawthorne was off at 3:07 p. m. The photo finish delayed the flash from the track of the result and prices. This came at 3:19 p. m. and the numbers bettors and bookies were content that the first digit was a "9."

But 31 minutes later, at 3:50 p. m., word was flashed from the track that the winning price on Donaris should be $5.40 instead of $3.40. The mixup occurred at the

Close Vote Likely Today On Tariffs

Peril-Point Plan Backed by GOP May Hinge on Paired Ballots

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Administration's fight to renew the Reciprocal Trade Act without GOF tariff restrictions faced a Senate showdown today with the vote so close it could turn on the ability of absentees to find pairs.

Senate Finance Chairman George (D., Ga.) said he felt "pretty sure" the Republican peril-point limitation will be defeated by a margin of 3 to 5 votes, but conceded the outcome was clouded by the large number of absentees.

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.), author of the peril-point amendment, said only that it still has a "fighting chance" to win.

Voting Set for 4 p. m.

The Senate will start voting on amendments at 4 p. m. and continue balloting without time cut until it takes a final vote on the bill.

Passage of the bill and renewal of the program in some form was taken for granted. The only real uncertainty hinged on the ability of Republicans to revive the peril-point restrictions the Eightieth Congress forged into the 1948 act.

These empower the Tariff Commission to set nonmandatory points beyond which tariff-cutting would damage American industry. If the President exceeded these points on any item, he would have to account to Congress.

The Senate fight, highlighting the traditional high and low-tariff differences between the two major parties, has centered on this amendment.

Intraparty rows on domestic issues were forgotten as the Senate divided, as in past years, on approximately a party line basis.

Republicans expect to vote solidly for the peril-point amendment without a break in their ranks. Democrats have at least three defections, but by the pairing device hope to hold their actual vote loss to one.

The absentee picture may give a slight break to the Democrats. Seven Republicans are expected to be absent, against five Democrats. By difficult "live" pairs with nonabsentees, or by pairs with others not present, absentees can make their votes count. Only a few pairing arrangements had been completed last night.

"A Give-Away Show"

The Administration actually has two shots at the GOP tariff restrictions. The House passed a bill renewing the program for three years and completely wiping out the peril-point proviso. In the doubtful event Senate Republicans succeed in retaining the restriction, the battle would be refought in a two-House conference, with House Democrats refusing to yield.

Senator George, managing the Administration's fight for an unamended bill, said the outlook for reviving Cordell Hull's original trade act has improved measurably in the last fortnight. He attributed this mainly to "the recent optimistic turn in the business picture."

As the debate neared a showdown, Senate Republican Leader Wherry of Nebraska ripped into what he termed the Administration's "tariff give-away show."

Without the peril-point amendment as a "reasonable safeguard,"

Big Steel's Refusal to Accept Report Dashes Peace Hopes; Lewis Repeats Strike Threat

Welfare Payment Ban Taken Over Managers' Heads To Mine Owners

In a rare display of patience, John L. Lewis yesterday repeated his threat of a strike against coal operators who recently refused to continue 20-cents-a-ton royalty payments into the miners' welfare fund.

For the second consecutive day, the president of the 600,000-member United Mine Workers demanded an end to the royalty freeze by a "substantial" number of Southern bituminous coal producers, who halted their contributions into the funds as of July 1.

This time Lewis by-passed mine management and addressed his threat-implied demand directly to mine ownership, and warned that failure to call off the ban on royalties might "precipitate a social convulsion in the mining areas of this country."

Accused of Instigation

On Tuesday, the miners' boss wrote James D. Francis, president of the Island Creek Coal Co., Huntington, W. Va., a leader of the Southern Coal Producers Association, and accused Francis of instigating the operators' "strike" against welfare fund payments. Lewis warned Francis that "a continuation of your policy of default and smash may cause reactions deterrent to the constructive progress of the industry."

Francis immediately replied that he had no intention of making further contributions to the welfare fund—which provides $100 a month pensions, sickness and hospitalization benefits for the miners—until the United Mine Workers concluded a new contract with the Southern operators. The old contract expired June 30. Since then the miners have been working without a contract, but on orders of Lewis only three days a week.

Yesterday Lewis went over the head of Francis, who represents management of the mine, and called for action by the Cleveland Trust Co., representing the Holden estate, which, according to John L., "controls and operates" the Island Creek Coal Co. as well as the Pond Creek Coal Co., another big West Virginia producer.

Strike Call Expected

Lewis directed his telegram to I. F. Freiberger, chairman of the bank's board, who he said was, in a trust capacity, director of both companies and thereby could vote a majority and controlling stock interest for the Holden estates. John L. urged Freiberger to put pressure on Francis, who manages both companies, to come through with the "defaulted" welfare fund payments.

"The nonpayment of these monies," Lewis wired, "will create a tragic crisis in the affairs of thousands of dependent women and minor children and many more thousands of ill and injured men, whose maintenance and medical care depend upon allowances from the welfare fund."

In Cleveland, Banker Freiberger commented that Lewis was "wrong" in his belief that the Cleveland Trust Co. had control of the two coal companies. "Our stockholding representation in Is-

Congress Group Told Move Paved Way for Her Citizenship in '44

By the United Press

A former Communist said yesterday that a direct order from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and former Secretary of State Cordell Hull allowed Mrs. Earl Browder to reenter the United States despite deportation proceedings.

Howard Rushmore, now a reporter for the New York Journal-American, said the move made in 1944 paved the way for Mrs. Browder to obtain United States citizenship.

But Justice Department records show that Mrs. Browder never became a citizen. They show she applied for citizenship in 1946 and an official investigation of the application is still pending.

He testified before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee that is studying the immigration laws with a view to tightening them to prevent infiltration of Communists.

Mrs. Browder, Russian-born wife of the one-time top American Communist, was arrested for illegal entry in 1940. Four years later she went to Canada, where she sought a reentry permit to return to the United States.

"The Department of State and the Immigration and Naturalization Service told me that, though they objected, they were ordered by Cordell Hull and Mrs. Roosevelt to

Neely Blasts D. C. Apathy On Suffrage

He'd Get a Band, Shout to Heaven To Obtain Vote

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

In scathing terms, Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) declared yesterday Washington citizens will have to learn to stand up for their rights if they expect to get the vote.

"If I had found myself a resident of the District, and seen my son or grandson growing up with no chance to vote or to serve in Congress," said Neely, "I'd have had a band, and I'd have gone out on the street corners and shouted about this injustice until I drove people crazy or drove them out of town."

Neely, chairman of the Senate District Committee, delivered his pep talk against civic apathy midway in the third session of his roundtable conference with Washington citizens on District problems. He had called a number of names of persons scheduled to appear who did not answer the roll. Those absent went to the foot of

Ex-Sen. Minton Hinted as Choice For High Court

United States Circuit Court Judge Sherman Minton, an all-out New Dealer during the Roosevelt era, was being widely mentioned here yesterday as President Truman's possible choice to succeed the late Wiley B. Rutledge on the Supreme Court.

Some persons highly placed in the Capital said that Minton may have the "inside track" for the vacancy.

These sources noted that Minton, a former Democratic Senator from Indiana, was a close friend of Mr. Truman's when the two occupied adjoining Senate seats.

Pennsylvania Victory Elates Republicans

They Call Saylor's Election Omen of 1950; Democrats Belittle It

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Republican leaders issued exultant statements here yesterday, following John P. Saylor's election to a House seat in Pennsylvania on Tuesday.

It was the first GOP victory of its kind since the Democrats recaptured Congress in 1948.

Guy George Gabrielson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said that Saylor's triumph over Mrs. Robert L. Coffey, sr., Democrat, in Pennsylvania's Twenty-sixth District, was "a stinging rebuke" to the Truman Administration in its effort "to lead this Nation down the road to statism."

Representative Leonard W. Hall of New York, chairman of the Republican National Congressional Committee, said it was "an omen" for the 1950 congressional races.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr., Republican leader of the House, said that Saylor's victory was "a conclusive demonstration that the march toward State socialism can be stopped."

William M. Boyle, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said that the GOP claims were "greatly exaggerated." He said the Pennsylvania election was simply a case of a traditionally Republican district voting Republican. He added that in no sense could the outcome be construed as a rebuke to the Administration's "Fair Deal."

Boyle talked to reporters as he was leaving the White House.

Edward J. Flynn, Democratic National Committeeman from New York, who visited the White House earlier in the day, said the race was not a "fair test" of party strength nationally because the Pennsylvania district's Republican background.

The district had long been Republican before the early days of

Fairless Stresses Unwillingness of Firms to Bear All Pension Cost

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The high hopes for peace in the steel industry turned to gloom last night.

United States Steel, the Nation's No. 1 steel producer, rejected the CIO Steelworkers' demand that the industry accept the entire report of the President's fact-finding board as a basis for settling their dispute.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the Steelworkers, in a wire to Benjamin A. Fairless, president of United States Steel, pointed out that his million-member union had accepted the board's recommendations, which call for union withdrawal of pay raise demands, but exclusive company financing of a social-insurance-pension program.

"I now request you promptly and plainly," Murray wired, "to advise me whether your companies are likewise willing to accept the recommendations of steel industry board as a basis on which to conclude a prompt settlement of the existing labor dispute between the union and these companies."

Unfair, Fairless Says

Several hours later Fairless replied to Murray:

"In your telegram of today, you dictate that we shall accept the recommendations of the board before entering into further bargaining negotiations with your union.

"That we are unwilling to do because it is both unfair and contrary to the assurance given by the President of the United States."

The head of "Big Steel," which usually sets the pattern of action by the other steel companies, referred to the assurance by President Truman in setting up the three-man fact-finding board to avert a strike earlier this summer that its reports and recommendations would not be binding on either side.

"We have serious doubt about the advisability of some of the recommendations of the board," Fairless said. He added that U. S. Steel was nonetheless willing to resume collective bargaining negotiations promptly "in an attempt to arrive at some mutually satisfactory solution of the issue in dispute."

September 25 Deadline

The union's demand, and the U. S. Steel's rejection of it, pretty much quashed yesterday's optimism that a steel industry walkout could be averted. Deadline for the strike, postponed twice at the request of the White House, is 12:01 a. m. September 25.

In a statement to the press, U. S. Steel President Fairless said that the fact-finders' recommendation denying a wage increase was not really important since "there was never much of substance to support such a demand . . ."

"The vital recommendation in the report . . . ," Fairless said, "is

Chicago Printers Reach Terms for Settling Strike

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—Representatives of Chicago's five major newspapers and their striking printers agreed tonight upon terms for settling the 22-month-old strike.

The agreement was reached at an unpublicized meeting in a downtown hotel of officials of the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Association and Local 16, Chicago Typographical Union (AFL).

Terms of a proposed new contract will be voted upon at a meeting of the 1500 striking printers Sunday.

John J. Pilch, Local 16 president, said terms of the contract had been approved by the executive council of the International Typographical Union. Pilch recommended acceptance.

Under the proposed contract, the printers will get a $10 weekly wage increase.

Frank Semenara, a member of the executive board of Local 16, said the agreement "gives the printers the best working conditions possible under the Taft-Hartley Act."

The five papers did not miss a day's publication. In place of the printers the papers substituted girl typists who laboriously retyped copy in columns which then were pasted on cardboard and photographed. The pages then were reproduced by photoengraving.

Father of Four Held in Rape Of Girl, 4, After Confession

Shift in Dungarees Is Tell-Tale Clew; Victim Recovering

A 33-year-old roving ironworker, the father of four children, yesterday was charged with rape after police said he admitted attacking a four-year-old girl, beating her body to a mass of blood and bruises and leaving her nearly senseless.

The man, Hugh G. Mincey, held without bond in Municipal Court for grand jury action, told police he had been drinking and was "ashamed" of what he had done. He faces a possible death penalty.

The crime took place in a second-floor bathroom in a hotel at 518 H st. nw., where both the tiny victim and Mincey lived.

The little girl, nicknamed "Butch," was in satisfactory condition last night in Gallinger Hospital. Earlier she had undergone emergency surgical treatment. She had been due to celebrate her fifth birthday Saturday with a party.

Mincey's confession climaxed one of the most extensive dragnets in recent police history and one of the speediest cases of a suspect brought to book.

The mother, separated from her taxicab-driver husband, said she had left her child playing downstairs in the hotel about 7:30 p. m. floor room. When she returned, her daughter was gone. Frantically she searched the block. She had just returned to her room when the phone rang. The room clerk

Truman Picks Cooper to Fill Dulles' Place as U. N. Delegate

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday nominated former Senator John Sherman Cooper, Kentucky Republican, to the place on the United Nations delegation formerly held by Senator John Foster Dulles (R., N. Y.).

Dulles resigned his U. N. post when he was appointed by Governor Thomas E. Dewey to fill the unexpired term of Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) until a special election this fall. Dulles has announced his candidacy to succeed himself for the remaining one year of Wagner's term.

The President also renominated as delegates to the fourth U. N. session:

Warren R. Austin, American representative to the U. N.; Philip C. Jessup and Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt.

He named as alternates:

Wilson M. Compton of Washington, Benjamin V. Cohen of New York, Charles Fahy of New Mexico, John D. Hickerson of Texas, and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rohde of New York.

Cooper was elected in 1946 to fill the unexpired two years of the term of Senator A. B. "Happy" Chandler when Chandler resigned to become baseball czar. He was defeated for reelection in 1948 by Representative Virgil Chapman, though he led the Dewey-Warren ticket in Kentucky by more than 100,000 votes.

Born in Kentucky 48 years ago, Cooper is a graduate of Yale University and Harvard Law School.

Foe Put in Charge Of Civil Rights Bills

Robeson Riot Grand Jury Call Decreed

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today ordered the Westchester County District Attorney to conduct a special grand jury investigation into mob violence that followed Paul Robeson's concert near Peekskill, N. Y., September 4.

Dewey said "the entire incident was a shame and a disgrace" and charged that it was "obviously" provoked by "Communist groups."

The Governor announced his action at a news conference following a four-hour session with the Westchester prosecutor, George M. Fanelli, Sheriff Fred W. Ruscoe and John A. Gaffney, superintendent of State police.

May Call It Next Week

Fanelli told newsmen he would call the special grand jury "as soon as I can—it may be next week."

Dewey directed that the grand jury try to determine whether the disorders were "the result of the organized planning on the part of any individual or group."

The governor directed that the grand jury find out especially:

1. Whether the Robeson concert was sponsored for the "purpose of deliberately inciting disorder" and "whether it was part of the Communist strategy to foment racial and religious hatred."

2. Whether the "Communist guard forces," which he said accompanied the Robeson group, were "a quasi-military force."

Will Not Be Tolerated

"Storm troopers or private militia, whether in white sheets, brown shirts, or military clothing, will not be tolerated in New York.

"We have abolished the Bund and the Ku Klux Klan and we will not permit similar Communist organizations to exist."

According to unofficial reports more than 100 persons were injured in the riot that followed the concert by Robeson, Negro baritone. Fanelli and Rusco both placed the number at 70.

Senator Eastland (D., Miss.), an avowed opponent of President Truman's civil rights program, took over yesterday as chairman of the committee which handles that type of legislation.

Eastland was named to the chairmanship of the Judiciary subcommittee on civil rights by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), chairman of the full committee.

He succeeds J. Howard McGrath, who resigned from the Senate to become attorney general.

"The subcommittee will handle all of the President's civil rights program except the FEPC and antipoll tax," Eastland said.

Asked what disposition would be made of civil rights bills now pending before the subcommittee and whether there will be further hearings on the so-called omnibus civil rights bill, Eastland replied: "You may quote me as saying 'no comment.'"

The subcommittee has held extensive hearings on the Administration-backed omnibus bill but has taken no action on it.

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) was named to the subcommittee to succeed McGrath. The third member of the group is Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.).

Hiss to Face New Perjury Trial Oct. 10

New York, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Assistant U. S. Attorney Thomas F. Murphy, who failed to convict Alger Hiss of perjury last July, announced today that the former State Department official will be tried again October 10.

It was announced that Murphy would again handle the Government's case against Hiss, accused of lying to a grand jury investigating espionage activity including the theft of secret State Department documents for transmission to a Soviet spy ring.

The trial date was announced after Murphy conferred with senior Federal Judge John C. Knox. The name of the judge who will preside was not revealed.

Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, who presided over the last trial, was criticized by Congressmen for rulings allegedly in Hiss's favor.

Hiss's last trial ended without a verdict July 8 because the jury could not agree on whether Hiss lied when he denied giving Government secrets to Whittaker Chambers, his principal accuser, and when he denied he had seen the confessed former Communist spy courier since January 1, 1937. Eight jurors voted to convict Hiss. Four voted to acquit him.

Dulles Attacks Majority on DP 'Bottle-up'

By the United Press

Senator John Foster Dulles (R., N. Y.), yesterday attacked the Senate's Democratic majority for allowing the Judiciary Committee to "bottle up" a House-approved bill liberalizing the Displaced Persons Act.

He said the committee's inaction has forced him to use a "cumbersome and roundabout" method in trying to protect 50 Hungarian DP's facing deportation and possible "liquidation" in their homeland.

"It is a sad commentary on the majority part when a Senate committee which it controls can frustrate the enactment of this piece of humanitarian legislation," Dulles said.

The bill would boost the two-year displaced persons quota from 205,000 to a three-year mark of 339,000. Dulles and several others have sponsored a resolution to take the bill away from the committee and bring it to the floor.

Dulles said he also has introduced a bill to allow the release of 6 of 50 Hungarians who entered the U. S. on transit visas, were arrested last July and now are being held on Ellis Island. He plans to introduce similar bills to aid others in the group as soon as he gets more information on their moral character.

The first one affects Tibor Laszlo, Klara Feher, Janos Feher, Agnes Gneranna Feher, George Szilas and Veronica Szilas. They would be permitted to remain in this country under the new displaced persons law.

"For our own sake," Dulles said, "we ought to give these people asylum and help them to keep alive the fires of freedom. If we send them back to doom, we become indeed partners of their persecutors."

Dear Mr. Kirsten:

Your recent letter, inquiring whether it would be agreeable for you to continue to have the term "Veep" addressed to you, was promptly received.

Of course, the name "Veep" is not copyrighted, in the legal sense of the word, but it is a name that my children gave to me in connection with the Vice Presidency. They just took the two letters, v and p, and put a couple of small e's between and it spelled Veep, and it has become rather familiar over the country as a new title for the Vice President. While, of course, I cannot object to anybody calling you "Veep" in connection with your vice presidency, I should regret it if the term became generally used as applicable to all vice presidents, because then it would have no identity with me and with the Vice President of the United States.

Sincerely yours,

Alben W. Barkley

BARKLEY'S REPLY—This is Vice President Alben W. Barkley's answer to Len Kirsten's question about the use of "Veep" in referring to lesser political luminaries. Kirsten, vice president of the student council at George Washington University, wrote to Barkley after friends fell into the habit of calling him Veep. Replied Barkley, " . . . I cannot object to anybody calling you "Veep" . . . I should regret it if the term becomes generally used as applicable to all vice presidents . . . " Kirsten maintains he has no intention of usurping the title, but says, "what am I to do?"

Don't Answer Navy Critics, Air Force Told

By the United Press

The Air Force yesterday warned its top commanders to say nothing about "statements of naval officers in criticism of unification" and to continue "maximum cooperation in developing an effective defense team."

The unannounced action came to light as Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews said he thought Capt. John G. Crommelin used bad judgment in attacking the Air Force and the unification law in his complaint that naval aviation is being wrecked under the Defense Department setup.

The warning appeared to have these effect:

1. Letting Crommelin and the many Navy officers who support him voice their grievances without hope of drawing the Air Force into another unification fight.

2. Denying them any support from civilian heads of the Navy.

Ex-Senator Heads Rail Labor Dispute Board

President Truman yesterday named former Democratic Senator Harry Schwartz of Wyoming to head an emergency board to investigate a labor dispute on the Monongahela Railroad Co.

The President named Francis J. Robertson, Washington, D. C., attorney, and Andrew Jackson, New York City attorney, to serve with Schwartz.

Davis Named Commerce Aide

Thomas W. S. Davis, special assistant to the president of United Air Lines, yesterday was nominated by President Truman to be assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Davis

Davis is 39. Associates said his assignment involves chiefly the dealings of the air carrier with various Government agencies such as the Post Office and Civil Aeronautics Board.

The White House said only that he was being named assistant Secretary of Commerce but it was understood he would be the assistant for aviation affairs, with perhaps some other duties.

He has been with UAL five years, starting in the air cargo development field.

Davis is a native of Warrenton, Va., and attend the United States Naval Academy and the University of Virginia. He took his law degree from the Washington College of Law, but is not a practicing attorney. He was secretary to the Postmaster General in 1939 and 1940.

Tunnel Cavein Kills 3

Helena, Mont., Sept. 14 (AP).—Three workmen were killed and one was injured today in a railroad tunnel cavein under the Continental Divide west of here.

D. E. Bailey of Helena, foreman of a crew working in the Northern Pacific Mullan Tunnel, said the accident occurred while workmen were pouring concrete to line the tunnel after clearing debris from an earlier cavein.

European Editors Here on Way Home

A tired group of 50 publishers, editors and reporters from 14 foreign countries arrived in Washington last night on their next to last stop on a two-weeks air tour of the United States.

Col. Thomas Haynes 3d, assistant engineer commissioner, greeted the newsmen at National Airport on behalf of the District.

The visiting press will attend the White House news conference this morning, after which they will be taken on a tour of the Pentagon, meeting with Gen. Wade H. Haislip, deputy chief of staff of the United States Army.

Tonight they will be entertained at a cocktail party and dinner at the National Press club. Friday morning they will leave for New York. On Sunday, they will fly back to Europe.

Traveling in American Overseas Airline Stratocruiser, the journalists arrived here from Detroit where they toured automobile manufacturing plants. Previously they visited San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Fort Worth.

The group consists of newsmen from England, Ireland, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, France, Germany, Italy, Norway, Eweden, Denmark, Finland and Switzerland.

The majority of the men are in America for the first time. Typical comment was that of A. P. Wadsworth, editor of the Manchester Guardian, who talked of the B-36s seen at Carswell Air Force Base at Fort Worth.

"They are enormous, magnificant ships," he said, "and, at least to me, it pointed to the potential strength which lies behind the Atlantic Pact."

Another view was that of Rudolph Kuestermeier, chief editor of Die Welt, the largest German newspaper which is published in Hamburg, Essen and Berlin, who agreed that the B-36s were "striking" but said that he thought the optimism of the Americans was perhaps the impressive and welcome thing he had encountered.

The trip was designed by American Airlines with the dual purpose of providing leading European press representatives with a first-hand look at a cross section of American postwar industrial, military and economic activities and to introduce the line's new stratoliners.

Romanian Rumor

Tito Plans Balkan Coup, Paper Says

London, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The Romanian news agency, Agerpress, charged today that Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, whom it described as "a "traitor," had prepared an elaborate plan to attack and occupy Romania.

The agency's broadcast, monitored in London, quoted the newspaper Scanteia, central organ of the Romanian workers' party, as saying:

"Following the resolution of the information bureau of the Communist Parties (Cominform) which unmasked Tito's treason, Tito elaborately formulated a new plan which was communicated to Laszlo Rajk (former Hungarian foreign minister) by Alexander Rankovic (Yugoslav Minister of Interior).

"This included provisions for an armed Yugoslav attack upon Romanian territories and occupation of part of it, assassination of Hungarian government members, including Matyas Rakosi (Hungarian vice premier and Communist leader) and establishment of a government by Rajk himself."

The newspaper made its charges in a lengthy commentary on the trial of Rajk and seven co-defendants which starts Friday in Budapest. They are charged with attempting to overthrow the Hungarian government, and with treason, espionage and "murder."

Scanteia also charged that "American imperialists" supported the purported Tito and Rajk plans to overthrow the Hungarian government and to invade Romania.

Posters Urge Tito's Removal

slavs are now being tried at Novi Sad, capital of Vojvidina province, on charges of smuggling similar propaganda from Hungary.

However, today's distribution of pamphlets was the first concrete evidence of underground activity ever seen in Belgrade. It emphasized the recent Cominform announcement that a new Yugoslav Communist Party, made up of Tito's foes, had been formed.

The lead article in both of the papers passed out today was headlined.

"You Yugoslav workers and all honest toilers, do your best to get rid of the bloody Tito-Rankovic regime" and "not to allow Yugoslavia to remain a Fascist prison and a colony of Anglo-American imperialism."

The Moscow-published leaflet was dated August 25.

Earlier, official sources had published a statement by Croatian Provincial Premier Vladimir Bakaric saying that the recent anti-Tito campaign of propaganda "and finally, the plot with arms on our frontiers," had not frightened Yugoslav leaders.

Hungarian Charges Called Lies, Slanders

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Information Ministry issued tonight a statement declaring Hungarian charges that Premier Marshal Tito's government plotted against Hungary's Communist regime were "lies and slanders."

Hungary declared last Saturday that Yugoslav and American agencies conspired with her former foreign minister, Laszlo Rajk, and seven others to kill off key Communists and overthrow the Hungarian government. The eight are to go on trial in Budapest Friday.

Further, Yugoslavia registered a curt protest against the exclusion of one of its representatives, a correspondent of the official news agency Tanjug, from a meeting of the executive committee of the International Journalists Association in Czechoslovakia, like Hungary a member of the Cominform.

A fresh step in Yugoslavia's efforts to increase trade with non-Communist areas was announced, too. The government said Yugoslavia will ship hardwood, tobacco and metals to Finland in return for rayons, paper and other goods under a newly concluded trade pact to last until the end of 1950.

Adenauer Gets No. 1 Position In Germany

Bonn, Sept. 14 (NYHT.)—Dr. Konrad Adenauer, conservative, 72-year-old leader of the Christian Democratic Party, became Germany's key political figure today when he was formally named Chancellor (Prime Minister) of the new West German Republic. The appointment is scheduled for parliamentary confirmation Thursday.

As German chancellor, the veteran political leader will form a right-wing coalition government which will guide this country through the opening phases of its second attempt in this century to become a working democracy.

Dr. Adenauer, an ardent exponent of western union and of the necessity for a German-French understanding, was nominated for the post as chancellor in a letter dispatched this afternoon by Dr. Theodor Heuss, newly elected president of the German republic.

Dr. Adenauer leads the conservative wing of the Christian Democratic Party, agitating among other things for relaxation of governmental controls on prices and credits, and internationally, for full free trade. He has been bitterly attacked not only by the Social Democrats but even by the more liberal branches of his own party for some of his economic views.

The cabinet list, which is finished except for a few last minute reshufflings, however, reflects Adenauer's continued determination to start this country on a road of conservative economic politics.

The key appointment is that of Professor Ludwig Erhard, formerly economic director of the Bonn Economic Council as the new government's Minister of Economics.

Air Awareness Army's Need, General Says

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 14 (AP).—America's ground forces in Europe are in vital need of training to increase their air consciousness, staff officers of joint occupation forces maneuvers were told tonight.

Brig. Gen. C. T. Lanham, chief umpire for the United States constabulary, "aggressors" in the games, said that was one of his chief observations during nine days of mock battles.

Lanham said ground forces must be trained to re-learn the wartime lesson of ground-air team consciousness, against some future day when the air may be filled with hostile planes.

"They gawk at jet planes and fighters overhead," he said. "They say: 'They are ours, ain't they?' But the time may come when the wild blue yonder will belong to hostile wings."

"Exercise Harvest" Summary

Lanham's comments were the first official summing up on "Exercise Harvest," first field maneuvers involving Army, Navy and Air Force under the United States Army Forces' new joint command.

They followed denial by the United States Joint Command in Germany today of a report that discord between high-ranking Army and Air Force officers was disrupting the maneuvers.

Lieut. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner of the Army, Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon of the Air Force and Rear Admiral J. K. Wilkes in a joint statement objected formally to a United Press report to this effect.

They said it was based on an "earnest discussion" of an umpire's decision in the games between the chief umpire and an Air Force general, overheard by a reporter who drew his conclusions from it.

"Completely Misleading"

"This story is completely misleading," the three commanders said.

"In our opinion, this joint exercise has demonstrated more clearly than ever before that the Army, Navy and Air Force can work together as an integrated team in perfect and complete accord with one another.

Bill on Disposal Of White House Material Asked

Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) yesterday asked enactment of a bill to empower the White House Renovation Commission to make and carry out necessary plans for disposing of materials removed during remodeling of the White House.

McKellar, as chairman of the six-member commission created by Congress to supervise the renovation, proposed the new legislation in a letter to Vice President Barkley. The proposal was forwarded to the Senate Public Works Committee.

Plans of disposing of material removed from the White House would require the President's final approval under the bill. McKellar said the plan for handling the material would provide for it to be cleaned and re-used in the remodeled building, for debris to be disposed of, and for the disposition of material having historic value.

Reds' 'Emily Post' Manners Amaze Yanks Held Captive

Berlin, Sept. 14 (AP).—Two Americans who were held for three days by the Russians today said they were lodged at comfortable hotels by their "courteous, friendly" captors and were intrigued by magazine "cheesecake" pictures.

Maj. Victor Milner, jr., 30, and his father, a Hollywood cameraman, were arrested Saturday by the Russians and held until late last night, when they were formally released at the United States constabulary post at Hersfeld. They returned here today.

The Milners said they were amazed by the "Emily Post" courtesy shown by their Russian guards. Major Milner said the Soviet soldiers were fascinated by "pin-up" pictures in some American magazines he had with him.

A Russian major in charge of the guards was such an earnest host he was insulted when the Milners insisted on paying their hotel bill, the American officer said.

The Milners were driving from the United States zone to Berlin in their German-made car when they took a wrong turn off the Helmstedt highway, and entered the Soviet zone by mistake.

"The Russians saluted every time they saw me," Major Milner said. "They did not search our automobile, they made no move to confiscate our cameras, and when they interrogated us they did not ask one question that indicated they sought military information."

The major, who is chief of American Military Government's Air Force branch, said he and his father had free run of the hotel at Weimar, where they were held.

He said the menu in their "prisson" included steak and ample wine and beer.

'Boo' Preceded Blows

Posed in Nude for Professor, Then Blackmailed, Nurse Says

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 14 (U.P.)—Nurse Ann Pierce told a jury today that Prof. Russell B. Maxey first tried to force her into marriage by blackmailing her with her pictures in the nude and finally by almost beating and choking her to death.

She saved herself from the University of South Carolina engineering professor, she said, only by warding off his pistol-butt blows and by prying his fingers from her throat.

In a calm voice, the pretty but scarred nurse, 35-year-old former wife of an Air Corp surgeon, related her entire association with the professor, whom she conceded to be a "very brilliant" man.

She was the first witness at his trial on charges of burglary and assault with intent to murder. The court earlier ruled out a defense motion to quash the indictment on the grounds that Maxey should not be tried simultaneously on felony (burglary) and misdemeanor (assault) charges.

While the tall Maxey sat stonily and almost sleepy-eyed with his blonde wife beside him, Miss Pierce testified that the friendship began on the university campus through their mutual interest in photography.

It progressed from trips to his darkroom to a trip to the coastal resort of Myrtle Beach where, still in the interest of photography, she said, She posed in the nude for "figure studies" with Maxey at the shutter.

She explained that for a "figure study" she took off her bathing suit and posed against a background of Carolina sea, sand and sunlight.

Under cross-examination, Miss Pierce hotly denied that the photographs were lewd.

"They were not lewd from our standpoint—the artistic standpoint," she said.

She explained that Maxey wanted to sell the beach pictures, showing her face as well as her body, to art magazines.

The nurse then freely admitted that she stayed at hotels with Maxey registered as Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wells and as Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Maxey.

Last February, she said, Maxey finally got around to telling her he was married. She was disgusted, she said, and told him to go back to his wife. At that point, Maxey produced the nude pictures, she testified.

"He threatened to go to the door of every store in Columbia, show the pictures and say that he owned my house and my furniture and that I was his kept woman," Miss Pierce said.

She emphasized that she bought and paid for her own house and furnishings. She tried to discourage Maxey's suit but avoided a complete break for fear he would publicize the pictures, she said.

He kept pleading with her to wait until he could get a divorce, and then marry him, "even for just a day," she said.

"But I had no respect for him and I couldn't marry a man I didn't respect," she said. Besides, she added, she didnt love him.

On the night of August 1, she said, while she was away from home, the professor got in her house with a pass key and hid under her bed.

Miss Pierce said she came home and disrobed for bed. At that moment Maxey crawled from beneath the bed and shouted "Boo!" she testified.

She said Maxey struck her on the head with a pistol.

For the next two and one-half hours, Miss Pierce testified, she waged a fight for her life.

Truman Names Griffis As Envoy to Argentina

President Truman yesterday nominated Stanton Griffish, New York banker and diplomat, to be Ambassador to Argentina.

Griffis, formerly Ambassador to Poland and Egypt, will succeed James Bruce, Baltimore businessman who has been trying to return to private life for almost a year.

The President told a news conference early this month that he planned to name Griffis to the Buenos Aires Embassy.

Czechs Report Red Arrest of More Priests

Prague, Sept. 14 (AP).—Catholics in Prague today reported new arrests of priests by Czechoslovak security police, including some who had been members of the patriotic underground during the German occupation.

Among the newest reported arrest victims is Dr. Jira Maria Vesely, former head of the Cloister of Dominican Monks in Prague. He once was a member of the anti-Nazi underground.

Church sources claimed a concerted government campaign apparently is being waged against former resistance workers who are not trusted Communists. The reason for this, they said, is that the government fears such experienced underground workers might provide the nucleus of similar resistance against the present regime.

Minister of Justice Alexei Cepicka had already publicly accused Catholic Archbishop Josef Beran and his bishops of attempting to "organize a subversive network for espionage and sabotage" against the Communist-led government.

Church sources here have reported that at least 15 priests have been arrested on suspicion of participating in a communications network.

Czech Paper Reports Sabotage in Slovakia

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 14 (U.P.)—The cultural newspaper Lidove Noviny said tonight there had been "sabotage and violence" recently in strongly Catholic Slovakia in a church-backed campaign against the Communist Czech government.

In a blistering editorial against the Vatican, the paper said Rome had lost all touch with religion in its international political "intriguing" and said the Vatican would excommunicate Christ today if he were the son of an unemployed carpenter's wife in southern Italy.

Battle Awaited Above Canton

Canton, Sept. 14 (AP).—Nationalist generals, seemingly confident, moved up reinforcements today to meet a new Communist offensive which may come at any hour on the front north of Canton.

There were scattered skirmishes, preparatory to an expected major battle.

The Ministry of National Defense said a large Communist force was being brought up to the area of Jucheng, key point 170 miles north of Canton. An eastward Nationalist thrust here menaces the Red's west flank.

Dispatches from Chungking, meanwhile, said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had failed so far to talk the warlords of Szechwan Province into fighting the Reds. Chungking is in that western province.

The Nationalists hope to make Chungking, the wartime capital, the new capital should Canton fall.

Mobs Hunt Red Agents in Canton

Canton, China, Sept. 14 (U.P.). Angry mobs today hunted outlawed "conscription agents" for China's warlords through the streets of Canton. Two men were kicked, clubbed and beaten half to death before police gained control of the situation.

Three times during the day, mobs boiled through the streets of the Nationalist "refugee capital."

The two victims of the mobs were men accused of "shanghaiing" Cantonese beggars and waterfront workers into the private armies of Chinese provincial generals. Such agents are paid a fixed price for every recruit they can muster for their employers.

Hard Luck Is Theft Alibi

London, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—An Englishman who once had an annual income of $12,000 was haled into court today on charges of theft. Before that, however:

1. His father died and he lost his income.
2. His first wife was assaulted criminally on a boat to Denmark and committed suicide.
3. He was shipwrecked as a merchant seaman, wounded in the regular navy, an dreceived a medical discharge because of prolonged illness.
4. His best friend committed suicide.
5. His second wife ran off with another man.
6. He rehabilitated himself by developing a kennel business worth $12,000 but all his dogs died.

After that, his attorney said, "he began ti brood a little," and that led to his thefts.

Colony Restaurant Is Sued by U. S. For Back Taxes

The Federal Government has filed a tax lien for $1492.82 against the Colony Restaurant, 1737 De Sales st. nw.

According to the Government, the money is due for withholding taxes and Federal insurance contributions for the second quarter of 1949. A spokesman for the restaurant explained that the owner of the restaurant lives out of town and the restaurant management was not aware of the tax case.

Meanwhile, District Court was notified yesterday that Federal tax liens against three persons here have been discharged as paid in full. The liens discharged were for $1576.16 in 1948 income taxes against Addison T. Smith, of 1852 Columbia rd. nw., and for $2018.20 against Ben and L. Rose, of 1624 Jonquil st. nw., for 1948 income taxes.

Tax Bite Worries Radio Prize Winner

The tax collector's interest in the $15,000 in prizes she won on a radio show 10 days ago has Mrs. May G. Downey of 2739 4th st. ne., wondering how much of the stuff she can afford to accept.

She's pretty sure, for one thing, she'll lose money if she takes that $1200 flying trip to Mexico that was part of the prize she won for identifying "Auld Lang Syne" played backward.

"That trip will cost me from $400 to $600 in income taxes," Mrs. Downey said yesterday. "I was planning to drive to Mexico next year anyway, and I'm sure I could do it for less than that."

Besides, Mrs. Downey added, she wanted to make the trip with some friends. She'd have to go alone on the prize trip.

Similar tax bites are due for the rest of the merchandise. If she couldn't make some cash arrangements with the donors, Mrs. Downey said she might be forced to turn down everything but the new car and the $1000 bond.

Her telephone hasn't been the same either, since the "Spin to Win" announcer called on the evening of September 3.

Mixed in with about 40 congratulatory messages from friends and strangers, Mrs. Downey has heard from an insurance man, a woman who wanted to buy some prize luggage, and an indigent lady with arthritis who wanted Mrs. Downey to buy her a new wheel chair.

Republicans Elated By Saylor Triumph

the New Deal. Also, it was held by a Republican, Harve Tibbott, for ten years before the 1948 election.

The late Representative Robert L. Coffey, jr., a World War II hero and a Democrat, won the seat last year when the district also gave a majority to President Truman. When Representative Coffey was killed in the crash of a Navy jet plane, his 55-year-old mother announced her candidacy for the seat.

Saylor, a Navy lieutenant in the war, who provided the flag that was raised on Iwo Jima in 1945, waged a vigorous door-to-door campaign against Mr. Coffey, shaking hands with some 30,000 persons.

Attacks Domestic Policies

He attacked Mr. Truman's domestic policies and said that the issue was "the American way of life, free enterprise and opportunity versus the regimented semi-police state in the socialistic welfare state philosophy."

The Republican nominee said he favored amending the Taft-Hartley law but would not be drawn into political controversy over it.

Mrs. Coffey gave 100 per cent backing to the Truman program, including repeal of the Taft-Hartley law. She was supported by both the AFL and the CIO.

Late returns from 317 of 325 precincts, as reported by the Associated Press from Johnstown, gave Saylor 57,037 votes and Mrs. Coffey 48,168.

Vote by Counties

The vote by counties:

Normally Democratic Cambria (Johnstown), 171 of 179 precincts: Saylor, 31,292; Mrs. Coffey, 32,869.

Republican Indiana, complete: Saylor, 13,265; Mrs. Coffey, 7680.

Republican Armstrong, complete: Saylor, 12,480; Mrs. Coffey, 7619.

Pennsylvania on Tuesday had primary elections for local offices, but they aroused little interest among the voters.

In Pittsburgh, Mayor David L. Lawrence, a power in National and State Democratic politics, defeated Councilman Edward J. Leonard for the mayoral nomination. Lawrence polled 74,087 votes and Leonard 52,463.

The Associated Press reported that it was an unexpectedly strong showing for Leonard, who has been quarreling with the Lawrence administration for the past two years.

Detroit Mayor Beaten, CIO Trails in Primary

Detroit, Sept. 14 (AP).—In one blow, Detroiters voted their mayor out of office today and dampened CIO hopes of putting their man in the city hall.

Returns in the nonpartisan fall primary gave City Treasurer Albert E. Cobo, a middle-of-the-road candidate, a large plurality.

Cobo will run against George Edwards, Common Council president, in the November 8 elections. With spirited CIO backing, Edwards came in second. Mayor Eugene Van Antwerp trailed far behind.

McAuliffe Nominated

Chemical Corps for its new chief. The former field artilleryman, however, has had extensive experience in the field of new weapons—including the new major occupation of the Chemical Corps, bacteriological warfare.

"Old Crock," as he was affectionately known to GI's, had a War Department General Staff assignment handling new weapons before the war. After his exploits in France, he returned to be Army secretary of the Joint Research and Development Board, and later the Army's top research man. He attended the Bikini tests as senior military official.

A native of the District, McAuliffe attended Eastern High School and the University of West Virginia before entering West Point. His father, the late J. J. McAuliffe, for many years was with the Interstat eCommerce Commission.

McAuliffe now is commander of the 24th Infantry Division stationed in Japan.

In January, 1944, he was made a major general and was given command of the 103d Infantry Division.

The small, slightly-built officer—he's only 5 feet 5 and weighed 135 at Bastogne—parachuted into Normandy on D-Day and helped open the road for troops who had stormed the beaches.

Later he landed by glider in Holland, where his troops figured in the capture of Eindhoven. There, too, he was faced with a German demand for surrender, but ignored it.

At Bastogne, as the GI's put it, he simply jumped out of the back of a truck and went to work. His encircled troops of the 101st Airborne Division were ill-prepared for quick action. But they fought off advancing German divisions just before Christmas, 1944, in Field Marshal Kurt von Rundstedt's last big Nazi bid for victory.

There McAuliffe gave his historic reply of "nuts" to German demands for surrender. That was at a time when his radio operator reported: "Just visualize the hole in the doughnut, that's us."

McAuliffe himself reported: "We were giving the Germans the licking of their lives, and they had the effrontery to send us a note asking us to surrender."

FAO Offered Choice of Sites In D. C. Area

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The first step toward getting Washington or New York chosen as the site for the new home of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization was taken by a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee yesterday.

The group approved a bill to lend FAO seven million dolars for the structure. The loan would be without interest and repayable in 30 annual installments. Favorable action by the full committee is expected.

Choices Offered

The bill offers FAO the choice of the following locations in Greater Washington:

1. Thirty-two acres near Bethesda, Md., now owned by the Agriculture Department and formerly used as an animal disease station. It lies between the Bethesda business district and Kenwood, Md., and adjoins the present Bethesda-Chevy Chase playground.

However, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission wants this land for park and playground facilities. So it has offered to exchange the following site:

2. A site lying between Westmoreland, Md., and hte Army's National Map Service Building, near the Dalecarlia Filter Plant at 5900 MacArthur blvd.

Land Offered by Maryland

3. A site offered to the Government by the State of Maryland on the University of Maryland campus at College Park.

The bill also provides the building many be constructed "on any other site in or near Washington or New York City."

FAO already has offers from Copenhagen, Rome and Geneva. FAO will decide on its permanent site at its annual conference here in December.

55,000 More Mouths To Feed Every Day

The world has 55,000 newcomers at the breakfast table each morning.

This information on the world birth rate was given to Senators today by N. E. Dodd, director general of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

"Every morning," Dodd said, "we have 55,000 new people for breakfast. The world's food production is not increasing that fast."

But Dodd told a Foreign Relations Subcommittee he was not one of those who believes the population is growing so fast the world won't be able to feed everybody.

Communists In Italy Call New Strikes

Rome, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Communist labor leaders, in an offensive coinciding with a fresh political attack against the government, called new strikes in Italy today and threatened others.

With a maritime strike already in its sixth day, a walkout of bus and streetcar crews in Rome was called for Friday and Saturday to protest a wage agreement recently won by the anti-Communist Free Labor Federation.

Communist leaders threatened a new walkout by bank workers, who struck earlier this month. Printers, who are demanding new contracts, will decide here Thursday whether to strike. State railway workers were being urged to agitate for a wage increase but had not yet threatened to strike.

The developments closely followed a statement by Communist Chief Palmiro Togliatti that "the days of the government are numbered."

Despite the brisk argument that followed Togliatti's statement, political observers considered the dispute as merely a curtain raiser for the reopening of parliament next week.

82 in Italy Accused Of Graft; 3 Are Reds

New Autos Set Off Used-Car Cost Skid

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The flood of new cars coming into Washington has dropped used-car prices here from $25 to $1000 or more in the last 30 days, a check showed yesterday.

Many dealers reported they have just about stopped buying used cars that would retail for more than $1200 to $1500 because they aren't moving off the lots.

"After all," one dealer told The Washington Post, "the customer is interested in a new car and has been driving an old one too long to want another. They were all waiting for a big price drop."

Dealers are not sure about the extent of any future price decline. Many feel prices are coming down simply because the buyers' market has arrived. New-car dealers are out fighting for business in competitive ways reminiscent of pre-war days.

Guide Book Now Monthly

Best measure of the declining used-car market is the fact that the National Auto Dealers Association price guide book, which used to appear every two months, now is coming out monthly.

"Things started dropping so badly," one dealer told The Washington Post, "the N. A. D. had to rush a new book out for September instead of waiting until October."

The industry's other price book, the so-called "red book," also has been showing declines. Both have dropped $25 to $50 in September listings from August on the three most popular makes. The finance companies that help most purchasers to buy used cars will lend 70 and 80 or sometimes 90 percent of the "book" value. Hence used-car prices are pretty much limited by the two used-car price lists, dealers declare.

One important factor in the used-car market today is that the new-car dealers are back in the used-car business.

"We used to wholesale the used cars we had to the used-car lots," one dealer said. "But now we can't get our money out of them by wholesaling so we're retailing as we used to do before the war."

The men who deal only in used cars are feeling the impact of this renewed competition, according to officials of the National Capital Used Car Dealers Association.

One official said the District still has the highest priced used-car market in the Nation. He said "lots of out-or-State cars are coming in here for resale." He added:

"We have plenty of cars on hand and need more "clean" cars. Of course, we're feeling the competition of the new-car companies that have been selling used cars for the past two or three months."

One used-car dealer said the "higher priced cars just aren't moving." Another said he was "stearing clear of anything over $1500 because it's not selling." A third said a 1948 car that he had purchased for $3000, or about $500 over the list price, would go for $1800 or $1900 today.

Still another dealer told The Washington Post:

20% Drop Over Nation

Business Week magazine recently reported a survey showed used-car prices down as much as 20 per cent over the Nation, with dealers worrying over another price break like that of late last year.

Some new-car dealers in the Washington area are sending men through parking lots tagging cars with handbills telling how much the trade-in value would be. Another firm is sending out post cards reading this way:

"I have a good prospect for a 1947—like yours. If I can get you $1400 for your car, would you buy a new car from me?"

In both the District and Arlington, dealers for some cars are throwing in free seat covers. Elsewhere in the Nation dealers are figuring they will have to throw in heaters, or even radios, by winter.

Cooper's nomination was hailed by Dulles as "a fine appointment," and Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts, assistant Republican leader, said he was happy at the nomination.

Tedder to Visit U. S.

Pneumonia Kills Woman Tent-Dweller

The two women and the man were jobless, homeless derelicts.

Fish hooked from the Eastern Branch of the Anacostia provided them with some food. Then "smoke induced slumber under an improvised canvas tent in the deeply wooded area off the East Bank about 1½ miles south of Benning rd. ne.

When the rains came, they scurried under the Benning bridge for shelter.

Thus they live shrugging off the appellation—"river rats" hurled by residents of nearby areas.

Yesterday death intruded.

It was the man who first discovered the unwelcome visitor when he sought to arouse Winifred Pringle, 33, shortly before noon following a "smoke" (raw or denatured alcohol) party Tuesday night.

The woman showed no signs of life and the man dispatched the second woman to call police.

The body was removed to the morgue, where, following an autopsy, Deputy Coroner Richard Rosenberg certified that death was due to pneumonia.

Winifred Pringle was identified through fingerprints. She had a record of arrests for drunkenness and passing bad checks. Police said she had lived previously at 814 6th st. nw. and at 2900 Nelson pl. se.

27 Feared Dead In Red Zone Mine

Berlin, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The anti-Communist newspaper Sozial-Demokrat today said 27 German miners were trapped when a uranium mine shaft collapsed Sunday at Aue in the Soviet zone, and that eight bodies were recovered later. The other 19 were believed dead.

At the same time, the newspaper reported that Soviet guards at the Bautzen concentration camp had shot to death 73 prisoners and seriously wounded 200 others Saturday.

O'Boyle Speaks at 'Red Mass' for Law Guild

New York, Sept. 14 (Spl.).—World peace will be assured only when men obey the laws of God, the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, said here today, in a sermon at St. Andrew's Church.

The archbishop spoke at the annual "Red Mass," so-called because of the red vestments worn by the officiating priests, of the Guild of Catholic Lawyers of the Archdiocese of New York.

Scores of Federal, State and city officials attended, together with hundreds of members of the New York Bar. Known officially as the votive mass of the Holy Ghost, the "Red Mass" is offered annually at the opening of the fall session of the local courts to invoke God's blessings on them.

Emphasizing that the church teaches there can be no liberty without law, Archbishop O'Boyle held that "this has rich analogies in the domain of international relationships."

"Liberties and rights which are invalidated solely by expediency," he continued, "are bound to be a failure in the struggle to bring peace to the world. For international liberties, acknowledged everywhere among all men, can have their existence only in the international law which receives its sanction in the agreement and consent of nations mindful of the moral law."

"Today Communist Russia stands out against the rest of the world," Archbishop O'Boyle said, "a symbol of brute force, clothed in the iron robes of war. It may be that in the end the only force with which we can meet the situation which she encourages is moral force."

War in Greece Is Not Over, Van Fleet Says

Athens, Greece, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, chief of the United States Military Mission here, said today that the war in Greece "is not over—not by a long shot," in spite of recent government victories over the Communist-led guerillas.

Van Fleet, who returned to Athens after spending the summer with the Greek army in the northern mountains, said the Communists suffered a disaster as a result of the government successes in the Vitsi and Grammos Mountains. But he cautioned:

"There are many small bands of guerillas still hiding out in the rear areas of central Greece and other parts. There are also all those who escaped to Albania and Bulgaria. Those within Greece must be tracked down. Those outside the country await solution."

At the same time, King Paul, in a radio broadcast, appealed to the Nation to face its problem of reconstruction and caring for 700,000 refugees with the same spirit the Greek army displayed in the field.

According to Greek general staff officers, there are an estimated 8000 to 9000 Greek guerillas now in Albania and Bulgaria.

Van Fleet said that in the Grammos and Vitsi campaigns the Communists "lost their cause completely." As things stand right now, they really have no reason whatsoever to continue, he said.

Van Fleet said the general improvement in the military situation did not alter the task of the United States military mission.

"We shall still train the Greek Army in field tactics and infantry problems, we shall continue to instruct in maintenance of equipment and material," he said.

Acheson, Bevin Discuss Europe, Balkans, How to End Deadlock on Japanese Treaty

By Edward E. Bomar
Associated Press Reporter

Secretary of State Acheson and British Foreign Secretary Bevin centered their talks on Europe and the Balkans yesterday after agreeing that a Japanese peace treaty is urgently needed for a long-delayed Pacific settlement.

Acheson reported the two in agreement on the need for the treaty, and indicated the United States and Britain may make a new bid to Soviet Russia to end a two-year deadlock over what countries shall take part in drafting it.

At the same time it was learned that the two governments frown on the idea advanced in Athens of a Greek invasion of Albania to block further support from that country for the Communist guerillas.

For the second day, the two top policy chiefs were tackling the pressing cold war political problems which confront the western powers.

They said in a joint statement at the end of an hour-long meeting at the State Department that the discussion was "largely on political developments in Europe, including the Balkans." Also taken up were problems concerned with the formation here next Saturday of the 12-nation North Atlantic Pact Council. The exchange of views was described as "mutually satisfactory."

Late in the day Acheson held a two-hour conference with Count Carlo Sforza, Italian Foreign Minister. They said in a joint statement they discussed among other matters the disposition of the former Italian colonies in Africa, which is due to come up in the new U. N. General Assembly session. With Sforza was Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani.

The foreign policy review, which began Tuesday with a three-hour discussion of Far East and Near East questions, will be broadened today into a three-power meeting following the arrival of French Foreign Minister Schuman. All three, Acheson, Bevin and Schuman, plan to go to New York for the opening there next Tuesday of the United Nations General Assembly. Schuman arrived in Washington last night.

Reports on Japanese Treaty

Acheson's report on the Anglo-American stand on the Japanese treaty was given at a new conference.

Plans for the Japanese treaty have been deadlocked for two years because of Russia's insistence that it be drafted by the major Pacific powers alone. The United States and other nations which fought Japan want 11 countries to have a hand.

The United States, Acheson said, thought the treaty was an urgent matter two years ago and still thinks so. He said the British have the same idea and that he and Bevin were going over the issue to try to find new ideas on how to proceed.

As for going ahead without Russia, he said the great objective remains to bring everyone concerned into the matter. And he added none of us has gotten to the point of knowing what we would do if we cannot find a way to accomplish that objective. A new bid to Russia, diplomatic sources said, is one of the steps under consideration.

Greece, Albania Discussed

Officials reported that problems involving Greece, Albania and Spain were on yesterday's program. Athens dispatches quoted a government spokesman as saying the Greek army was prepared to invade Albania if new Communist guerilla attacks into Greece come from Albanian soil. Both American and British diplomats, however, showed no disposition to encourage such a move.

Albania, an ally of the Cominform in the fued between Yugoslavia and Moscow, is of special interest to western diplomats because of its exposed position. The little Balkan country is penned against the Adriatic by Yugoslav and Greek territory and unlike most other allies of Moscow, has no mutual defense treaty with Russia.

Senators Give Lunch for Bevin

By The Associated Press

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told Britain's Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin yesterday that the United States and Great Britain could "control the destiny of the world" if they work togeher.

Connally spoke at a luncheon given Bevin by members of the Foreign Relations Commitee.

Bevin expressed the hope, Connally said, that the two nations would continue on a 'cordial and intimate" relationship.

Connally said he told Bevin:

"Ever since I was a small boy I have felt that if the United States and Great Britain would keep a common basis of understanding we could control the destiny of the world."

"Now in this dark hour, if the United Kingdom, her dominions and the United States work in harmony—instead of going on a one-way street—we could aid in the revitalization of the world and the salvation from the evil forces which seek to destroy parliamentary government and all the things our civilization stands for."

Other guests included Sir Oliver Frank, the British Ambassador; Secretary of State Acheson, Vice President Barkley, Democratic Leader Lucas of Illinois and Republican Floor Leader Wherry of Nebraska.

17 Nurses to Stay On Garfield Staff

Twenty-two new nurses will be graduated on Monday at Garfield Memorial Hospital, but only five will leave the institution. Seventeen are staying on the hospital's general nursing staff.

Graduation services marking the end of their three-year training will be held at 8 p. m., Monday, in Bethlehem Chapel of the National Cathedral. Principal speaker will be Rear Admiral Dallas G. Sutton (MC, USN. ret.).

Graduation pins will be presented by Mrs. Katherin Knauff, director of the Garfield nursing school.

Youth Held for Robbing Sister of Lawmaker

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—Police arrested a 17-year-old youth today and accused him of robbing Miss Tessie O'Malley, identified by police as a sister of Maryland State Representative William C. O'Malley.

The youth was booked as Patrick McVerry. He said he had no home. Miss O'Malley identified him as the man who forced his was into her apartment last September 2 and stole money and a small radio after a struggle in which she was hit several times on the head.

U. S. to Accuse 3 Satellites in U. N. Assembly

By The Associated Press

The United States will carry to the United Nations its charges that Communist Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania show "callous disregard" of their peace treaty pledges to protect human rights.

Secretary of State Acheson disclosed this at a news conference yesterday. The action will be the latest in a long and increasingly bitter series of exchanges between the United States and Britain on one hand and the three Russian satellites on the other over the methods by which the Communists in those countries have seized and consolidated their power.

American and British allegations of peace treaty violation were based on charges that the Bulgarian, Hungarian and Romanian Communist regimes had smashed opposition political parties, suppressed free speech, denied free worship and otherwise robbed their people of democratic rights.

Accusation Rejected

The two western powers formally accused them of violating their peace treaty pledges. The satellite governments, with obvious Russian support, rejected the accusation. Thereupon London and Washington sent notes invoking peace treaty provisions for setting up commissions to settle the dispute.

Acheson reported yesterday that with their usual unanimity Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania had all rejected the commission proposal.

The three governments continue to contend they have not violated treaty guarantees of human rights, he said, but "have refused to cooperate in establishing these commissions."

"In the view of this Government," Acheson asserted, "they have compounded their earlier violations by this subsequent refusal to carry out the procedures for the settlement of disputes.

Good Faith Questioned

"The attitude shown by these three governments calls into question their good faith in signing the treaties and provides further illustration of their callous disregard of clear international obligations."

The question of human rights violations by Bulgaria and Hungary is already on the agenda of the U. N. General Assembly, which meets in New York next Tuesday, Acheson said, and Australia has proposed that the Romanian case also be taken up.

"The Assembly will have before it the full record of the dispute and will be able to judge for itself what further action to take."

Chapter to Meet

The Washington chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management will meet in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel, 6:30 p. m. today. The national president, Dillard E. Bird, will speak on "The Application of American Know-How."

isters searching for a quick way to get more dollars.

The fate of the South African campaign took on increasing importance as the fourth annual meetings of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund went into their second day.

All discussions by officials of the twin international financial agencies were kept secret for these three developments:

1. Italy's top delegate came out strongly against any devaluation of the Italian lire. Treasury Minister Giuseppe Pella told a reporter: "The lire will not be devalued from its present rate under any circumstances."

2. President Eugene Black of the World Bank turned down a suggestion by Congressman Javits (R., N. Y.) that the 48-nation Bank merge with the eight-million-dollar Fund. Javits had said a single institution could better assist war-ravaged nations and spur development of backward areas.

In his reply, Black flatly opposed the idea, bank officials said, on the grounds that the two international agencies had separate duties to perform. The Bank makes loans for such purpose as the rebuilding of war-damaged economies. The Fund aims to stabilize currencies.

3. Norman M. Tucker, the Bank's chief bond marketing executive, called upon the foreign member governments to permit American corporations to buy World Bank securities and use them as assets while doing business within their borders.

Diplomatic officials attending the conference at the Shoreham Hotel expressed doubt that Snyder's vehement opposition to changing the present price of $35 an ounce for gold could kill off the foreign clamor for a higher rate.

A likely result of the present conversations, they said, would be to postpone a decision and hand the controversial issue to the Monetary Fund's 14-nation board of directors for a later study.

The United States with its top-heavy voting strength, undoubtedly could block a price increase in this group as long as it wishes, they said.

South Africa now produces more than 12,000,000 ounces of gold annually—about $400 million worth—and thus would stand to benefit considerably by any such action.

The Philippines support of South Africa's stand put most of the main gold-producing nations on one side of the fence with the United States, the principal gold-buying country, on the other. The United States already has approximately two thirds of the world supply of monetary gold.

Canada and Australia, two other key gold-producing nations, have indicated they favor South Africa's move. Britain is reported "sympathetic" but officially maintaining neutrality lest she upset the close economic ties which she is seeking to forge with the United States during her present financial difficulty.

Oil Extraction From Shale Solved by U. S.

Rifle, Colo., Sept. 14 (AP).—The extraction of oil from shale has been solved here, assuring the United States of gasoline for centuries.

The baptism of this new industry takes place here next week. Then the United States Bureau of Mines will demonstrate to more than 200 key industrial men the new shale mine, the oil plant and new processes which make this new kind of oil as cheaply as petroleum.

Boyd Guthrie, supervising engineer, said today: "Based on work to date, we estimate a barrel of crude shale oil can be produced from $2.25 to $2.50."

Crude petroleum has been selling for just under or over $2.50 a barrel recently.

An act of Congress in 1944, five years work and about six million dollars produced this industrial miracle.

The single mass of marlestone shale, a 9000-foot high plateau covering 1000 square miles, which the Bureau of Mines has tapped here in West Central Colorado, contains about seven times more oil than the United States has used in all 90 years since oil was discovered in Pennsylvania.

The plateau has 22 times more recoverable oil than the proven petroleum reserves of the entire United States.

The bureau men here believe they have advanced the science of making shale oil to the point where it can now begin to supplement petroleum.

The most spectacular thing that the bureau has done is in new methods of mining the shale rock. In the present tests each miner is producing more than 100 tons daily. The limit was supposed to be six tons a man in 1925 when scientists investigated.

The cost here is just over 30 cents a ton. To that, industry will have to add another 30 cents for overhead and depreciation. Extraction and refining make up most of the rest of the cost.

The mine is at 8200 feet in the face of almost vertical shale cliffs. Even an atom bomb cannot damage this mine unless it hits the entrance directly.

More than half a mile lower, against the foot of the cliff, are the extraction and refining plants.

France's Four Cardinals Hit Capitalism

Paris, Sept. 14 (AP).—France's four cardinals criticized capitalism as materialistic in a letter published today and said the Roman Catholic Church is not joining capitalism in an anti-Communist crusade.

They emphasized the church is neutral in political conflicts.

"No more today than during the last World War does the church want the doctrinal condemnations that it may have to pronounce against the dominant ideology of a state to be a weapon placed in the hands of one combatant for use against another," the cardinals said.

At the same time they warned Catholics against working with Communists. Any help to Communist propaganda, they said, puts Catholics in danger of being cut off from the rites of the church under the excommunication decree issued by Pope Pius XII in July.

Florimond Bonte, a Communist deputy in Parliament and a party spokesman, attacked this part of the joint letter. He said the letter was "an attempt to check the growing influence of the French Communist Party."

"It is scandalous and offensive," Bonte wrote, "that the bishops are coming back into politics. Frenchmen have never tolerated spiritual pressure on their consciences as citizens."

The letter carries the signatures of Achille Cardinal Lienart, Bishop of Lille; Pierre-Marie Cardinal Gerlier, Archbishop of Lyon; Jules Cardinal Saliege, Archbishop of Toulouse, and Emile Cardinal Roques, Archbishop of Rennes.

Suit Over Slick Floor Falls Flat in Court

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14 (U.P.)—A dance floo. is supposed to be slick, acording to Jefferson Circuit Judge Ward Lehigh.

He dismissed a damage su for $15,700 filed by Miss Hazel Jenkins, 47, against Sandy's Place. She charged that while dancing at the night club she glided into some "crumbly-like powder," fell, and broke her wrist.

Tactics Of Delay

Four and a half years after the stateless, uprooted victims of Hitler's persecution were liberated by Allied armies and corraled "temporarily" in displaced persons camps, Senator Pat McCarran is on his way to Europe to make his own investigation of their problem. If there were any reasonable hope that a first-hand view of their plight would enlist the Senator's sympathy in their behalf, the delay entailed in his trip might be worthwhile. But delay appears to be the purpose as well as the consequence of this belated mission. He has kept the Senate from consideration of the liberalized DP bill through the device of keeping it bottled up in the Judiciary Subcommittee which he heads. Now that this bill is about to be brought to the floor through the medium of a discharge petition, Mr. McCarran has had the effrontery to insist that action on it be postponed until his return in three weeks.

Senator Lucas, who initiated the discharge petition, was entirely justified, we think, in refusing to give any assurance that it would not be brought up during Mr. McCarran's absence. The amenities have already been much more than fully observed. The President promised to seek amendment of the discriminatory features of the existing DP legislation during last year's election campaign. The House acted promptly on his recommendations. The Senate certainly lacks no information requisite to action now. That it is ready to follow the lead of the House if afforded an opportunity is indicated plainly enough by Senator McCarran's veiled threat to keep the measure from coming to a vote by resort to a filibuster if all his other tactics of delay are overcome. In this matter which so affects oppressed human beings, the Senate must no longer be kept from coming to a decision.

Status Of Statism

Recently Mr. Truman assured the citizens that "statism" is nothing to be worried about; it's just another scare word that the Republicans have picked up and are throwing with very little regard for semantic accuracy. Later at a press conference Mr. Truman amplified this assertion by saying that he had looked the word up in the dictionary and found it variously defined; but none of the definitions had much to do with what the Republicans were talking about.

This, however, appears to be merely one of the many cases in which the lexicographers have not had time to catch up with usage. We should be willing to place a modest wager that subsequent editions of the dictionaries will recognize the word also in the sense now being attached to it by Senator Dulles, Senator Wherry and others, that is to say, as signifying the general tendency to bring all areas of economic life under Government control. Since such a tendency certainly exists, we shall have to find a word for it. The terms "totalitarian" and "totalitarianism," now recognized by Webster's International, appear to have been originally devised to fill this need; but these words have acquired so many ugly connotations that even the Republicans would be reluctant to apply them to Mr. Truman and his welfare programs. Besides they are at best unpleasant mouthfuls.

Another word to the same general effect is "autarky," meaning self-contained. It was meant to designate the systems of closed economy, characteristic of modern socialistic and nationalistic states. But it gave a good deal of trouble by getting confused with "autarchy" (self-rulership) which was derived from another root and which is usually applied to the absolute monarchies of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

It is our impression that the term "statism," as a substitute for these, was introduced to American readers by the economist, Dr. Ludwig von Mises. The term actually used by Dr. von Mises was "etatism," doubtless derived from etatisme, already in use in French with the same general connotation. However, most of Dr. von Mises' reviewers reproached him for having employed such an awkward and alien form when "statism" would have served the purpose just as well.

"Statism" is one of the almost innumerable words generated from the Latin stare, which is "to stand." Some others are statuary, stately, statute, constituent, constitution, station, statement and stationery. The last, which now means letter-paper, envelopes, notebooks and so on, derived its name from being sold by a stationary dealer, that is one with a fixed place of business, rather than by an itinerant peddler.

In another connotation "statism" is of respectable antiquity. It was used in the sixteenth century to designate the notion that the church should be under the control of the temporal power. Much later it was used derisively by the anarchists for those who held that government in some form is necessary to the well-being of society.

Devaluation

The ultimate objective of the International Monetary Fund is to achieve an expansion of world trade on a multilateral basis. Until the currencies of trading nations are freely interchangeable or convertible, this objective will be unattainable. The real problem, therefore, is to create the condition that makes currency convertibility possible. The primary aim of the British-American-Canadian financial discussions was to arrest the drain on British dollar balances rather than to formulate long-range measures to correct the imbalance in world trade which is the basic cause of currency instability. But the Monetary Fund and the World Bank as international agencies are concerned about these larger issues and their suggestions apply to all nations that, like Great Britain, are unable to finance their import needs by sales of goods and services abroad.

The unbalanced state of international payments, particularly in trade with dollar area countries, is the basic cause of currency instability. And the only fundamental corrective of that situation is a closure of the gap between imports and exports. That has been done to some extent by putting restrictions on imports and trying to increase exports. However, as the Monetary Fund says: "The questions which are now of immediate importance are whether the pattern of trade is to be changed mainly by increasing the exports of the deficit countries or by reducing their imports from the surplus countries; and whether the necessary shifts are to be made on the basis of relative efficiency and economy or by restrictions and discriminations." Obviously it is in the general interest to try to eliminate trade deficits by methods that increase the volume of world trade.

Experts agree that these necessary adjustments will require an intensification of efforts on the part of Great Britain and other European countries to reduce production costs of exported goods. They also agree that creditor countries—in particular the United States—must be prepared to assist European efforts to balance their overseas trade accounts by liberalizing trade policies that restrict imports into dollar markets. There is strong disagreement, however, as to whether this process of adjustment calls for early devaluation of currencies to reduce the dollar value of exports from Europe and stimulate sales in dollar markets.

The Monetary Fund and President Black of the World Bank have aligned themselves alongside the advocates of devaluation, although Mr. Black admits that the consequences of such action are far-reaching and give rise to many complexities. The Monetary Fund, moreover, warns that devaluation, to be successful, must have public support. Take the case of Great Britain, for example. Devaluation of the pound would increase the cost of essential imports and add somewhat to living costs. If these higher costs should result in substantial increases in British prices, demands for wage increases might force the government to abandon its wage stabilization policy. In that case the advantages of devaluation would doubtless soon be lost, since production costs, hence the prices of exported goods, would rise. "Unless home demand is restrained," as the Monetary Fund says, "the expansion of exports which alone can justify an exchange adjustment, will not be achieved."

It is evident, therefore, that devaluation is not recommended by the Monetary Fund as an easy remedy for trade maladjustments, but rather as a means of lowering other countries' high export prices in terms of dollars more quickly than would be possible through cost reductions brought about by more efficient methods of production. If or when currency devaluation can be effected by governments strong enough to hold the domestic wage and price line firm, devaluation might be of substantial help in stimulating export trade. In some cases, indeed, it may prove to be the only method of bringing prices down to competitive dollar levels. Meantime, speculation about the chances of early devaluation of sterling has contributed to the flight from sterling, as indicated by the rebound in sterling futures that followed conclusion of the Anglo-American discussion which omitted mention of devaluation as a panacea.

The discussions here in Washington have at any rate made it clear that there is no quick nor automatic method of solving the balance of payments problem, which is the prime cause of currency disorders. Progress will have to be made step by step toward restoration of more normal trade relationships, with due consideration for the political as well as economic consequences of the actions taken. Devaluation is a restorative whose efficacy will depend upon wise timing and ability to gauge the degree of adjustment required in each case. If introduced under favorable conditions by governments willing and able to insist on domestic reforms that will prevent further inflation, devaluation of currencies will assist the return to balanced trade and help to lay the foundation of sound, permanently stabilized currencies. But whether or not currencies are devalued, there will still be need for sustained efforts to correct the more fundamental causes of adverse trade balances. And it will be no less imperative to attack the problem of foreign indebtedness, which, in the case of Great Britain, has led to shipments of a large volume of exports paid for by liquidation of war-incurred indebtedness instead of by goods shipments.

Lincoln's Example

Shortly before Justice Rutledge died President Truman told newspapermen attending his press conference that his most important task in the White House was the appointment of Federal judges. It may be reasonably assumed, therefore, that he is now undergoing an arduous process of soul-searching as he prepares to name Justice Rutledge's successor. We can imagine no more helpful suggestion to one who is facing this responsibility than to review the circumstances under which President Lincoln appointed Salmon P. Chase to the chief justiceship.

Chase had been a rival of Lincoln for the Presidency. He had been a member of Lincoln's Cabinet, but he had been too "imperious" to continue serving his country under as humble a man as Lincoln. After his resignation as Secretary of the Treasury, Chase continued bitterly antagonistic toward Lincoln and did not hesitate to air his grievances to their mutual friends. But Lincoln pushed all this aside and surveyed the situation from the single viewpoint of finding the best man to fill the chief justiceship.

It is true that one of the reasons Lincoln cited for favoring Chase was the hope that, if appointed, he would sustain the Administration's legal tender acts and its emancipation of the slaves. Lincoln also recognized a powerful argument against Chase: he was a candidate for the Presidency and might continue to be ambitious while on the bench. But what loomed largest in Lincoln's mind was the fact that Chase was the most capable man for the position. He told a personal friend:

> Mr. Chase's enemies have been appealing to the lowest and meanest of my feelings. They report ill-natured remarks of his upon me and my Administration. If it were true that he made them, I could not be so base as to allow the fact to influence me in the selection of a man for the chief justiceship.

Many of our Presidents have not taken this high-minded attitude toward appointments to the Supreme Court. Nominations have sometimes been made for personal and political reasons. But if President Truman wishes to follow the finest precedents that have been set, he will concern himself only with singling out one of the best judicial minds in the Nation. There are several such men available and if the President has any doubt as to who they are, he can get ample advice from the bench and the bar.

Munitions Chairman

The Senate Armed Services Committee has taken a pragmatic view in approving the nomination of Carl A. Ilgenfritz as the new chairman of the Munitions Board. Mr. Ilgenfritz, who is vice president of the United States Steel Corporation, will continue to draw his $70,000 salary and accrue pension rights, although he will be on leave of absence and divorced from all management concerns. In principle it is bad public policy, as several dissenting Senators noted, for the head of a Government operation to remain on the payroll of a private company. However, to insist on the alternative—complete separation from any previous business connection—would make it well nigh impossible for the President to obtain a qualified man for this job.

It is a fallacy, of course, to think that all qualified men come from industry; but in this particular post, which calls for the planning of mobilization-day contracts, industrial experience is almost a prerequisite. Industrial executives worth their salt generally earn far more than the $14,000 salary prescribed for the chairman of the Munitions Board. Even taking into account the honor and prestige of Government service, it would be asking too much to expect them to take a cut of 80 per cent or more in salary, especially in the case of younger executives who do not have independent means.

No man can serve two masters, and we believe that men accepting governmental positions ought not to remain active in the management of private business. But our experience during the war with dollar-a-year men proves that business executives can sometimes be used to great advantage in special assignments. Mr. Ilgenfritz's job will deal only with planning. He will have no opportunity to influence the letting of contracts. Secondly, such positions are transparent. If there were any effort at favoritism, competitors in the field could be expected to raise a howl and Congress could easily check any indications of impropriety. Doubtless Mr. Ilgenfritz will lean over backward to avoid any appearance of favoritism in his job.

Although the opponents of the Ilgenfritz nomination are making a fight on what they regard as principle, we hope the full Senate will take realities into account and promptly confirm him. Is it forlorn to hope that the President will follow his happy choice for the Munitions Board with an equally meritorious nomination for the much neglected National Security Resources Board?

WINGS

Now something in the breast
Commands the course of flight.
Before another night,
The bird must leave its nest.

The pods must open so
This moment with a sigh.
And when the wind comes by
The wings of floss must go.

In patters of an hour
The stems release their hold—
Here drifts a dust of gold,
The seed wings from the flower.

Brush off in silence then
The cobweb touch of fear . . .
Because they once were here
The wings come back again.

Genocide Convention

The public was horrified, and properly, over the indiscriminate killing of 13 people on the streets of Camden, N. J. Such a tragedy we can grasp and action is prompt. Yet mass murder has seemingly produced apathy and a wish to avoid the responsibility for doing something.

I refer to genocide, the horrible crime of destroying whole people or groups, often only guilty of possessing a race, color, or religion different from that of the wholesale murderers.

A subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has responsibility for dealing with the Genocide Convention. If the conscience of America is still alive; if memories of Nazi extermination of six million Jews and more than two million Poles have not died with the victims; then many voices should press now for immediate approval of the Genocide Convention in the Eighty-first Congress.

This is not a "party" matter calling for votes along party lines. It is a simple question of America taking its stand before the world for human dignity and security against the repeated barbarism of some future Lidice.

'Richard Strauss'

Richard Strauss, no doubt one of the great composers, was not quite so great an anti-Nazi as your September 11 editorial makes him out to be.

When in 1933 Bruno Walter was forbidden to conduct in Berlin, Richard Strauss was only too glad to substitute for him. (See Walter's autobiography, Theme and Variations.)

Richard Strauss was one of the signers of Goebbels' protest declaration against Thomas Mann. The latter, in his study on Richard Wagner, had showed Wagner in a less heroic light than the Nazis wanted.

On the occasion of the alliance of Germany and Japan, Strauss wrote a piece dedicated to the Japanese Emperor.

Thus you need not be surprised at the attempted boycott. The chief motive at the time, however, was to prevent Nazi Germany from acquiring the foreign currency provided by the royalties which she would use for arming or fomenting unrest abroad. KURT ROSENWALD.

'Speed Madness'

It is indeed a rarity to find a Washington Post editorial with little logic, lack of knowledge, and utter prejudice as that of September 10 advocating the abandonment of the Cleveland National Air Races.

The tragedy of last Labor Day is to be deplored; the deaths of the innocent mother and child are especially appalling since Bill Odom, the pilot involved, was aware of his risks.

However, to advocate the abandonment of closed-course racing because of this occurrence is as logical as abandoning baseball because of the danger of spectators being struck by batted balls or hockey spectators being injured or killed by flying pucks.

The air races have served the aircraft industry as a proving ground for a number of years. Among the great advancements and contributions of the Thompson Trophy race have been these, to name a few: streamlining advances on radial engines, retractable landing gear, the cantilever wing, fuel and water injection, the liquid-cooled engine, advancements in greater speed on less horsepower; in fact, progress on all phases of aircraft and engine design at a time that the U. S. air arms were stagnant and decayed.

The races have been held 14 times; four participants have been killed in that time, but this last occurrence marked the first time that nonspectators have been even injured. I agree that every preventive measure possible should be taken to prevent a recurrence of such a tragedy, but to abandon the races for such reason is to abandon one of the great competitive proving grounds of the aircraft industry.

Remedy For Confusion

I have recently returned to this country after spending a year in Korea and a year in Saudi Arabia, and am amazed and disagreeably surprised to find more confusion prevailing here than before I went away. At that time, it was bad enough.

Tacked on an office wall I found today the answer or solution of all our difficulties. It read:

MY DAILY PRAYER
Dear Lord, please help me to keep my Big Mouth shut until I know what I am talking about.
AMEN.

An answer to this prayer will disturb the confusion.

"Solomons' Sorrow"

The article on Solomons, Md., in your issue of September 9 and editorial of September 12 made my heart bleed for the natives of that little fishing village.

In fact, it was the second time I had bled for them. The first time was during the winter of 1943-44 when I was an ensign in the Navy and stationed at the Amphibious Base, Solomons.

Then my wife was able to rent a room, 8 feet by 10 feet, at $1 per day, no meals included. Breakfast of one fried egg, one piece of toast and coffee cost $1.10. She had to journey to Washington to get a proper bath. One landlord added a tremendous bar to his establishment, opened it on a Saturday night, and before closing time had made enough profit from naval personnel to pay for the entire extension.

This is not a complaint, since I would again pay the price to be with my family for those last few days, as would all the other fellows. It was at the gas station in the center of your picture that many final good-bys were said; really "final" since scores of Solomons-trained vessels hit the beaches on a dozen different D-Days.

Yes, your tear-jerking story made me shed crocodile tears for the poor depressed natives of Solomons. DOUGLAS DIES.

"Concealed Weapons"

Your editorials of September 7 and 8, "Pistols and Permits" and "Concealed Weapons," were intended as replies to my letter of August 29. They were apparently written by the juvenile or at least junior member of your editorial staff.

The childish chant "sticks and stones may break your bones, but bullets tend to break them more irreparably" was your staff member's only effort at a reply to the figures which I quoted showing that sticks and stones, bottles and knives, women's shoes and household lye, kitchen forks and ice picks were used in 95 per cent of Washington's aggravated assault cases while guns of all types were used in only 5 out of every 100 cases.

Your editor says that I say nothing "about the fatalities reported in the press almost every day resulting from Junior's pointing Daddy's supposedly unloaded revolver at Baby Sister," etc. I am happy now to say something about that. In Washington during the period January 1 to August 26, 1949, there were 4160 accidents in homes requiring emergency hospital treatment. Firearms of all types were involved in 3 of these accidents or in seven hundredths of 1 per cent of the cases.

These home accidents resulted in 160 deaths. Firearms were responsible for just one of those deaths or six tenths of 1 per cent. These figures are official, as were those quoted in my letter of August 29 relative to aggravated assault cases.

Your editorial writer, brushing aside cold statistics, falls back on the familiar line that "knives, bottles, drinking glasses, etc., all serve certain useful and legitimate purposes . . . pistols have no use whatever save to maim or kill human beings." This is a sob-sister effort to avoid facts. Beer, whisky and soft drinks serve only one useful purpose—relaxation and personal pleasure. The same may be said for baseball bats and hockey sticks. All are used to commit aggravated assault and murder.

Firearms provide recreation for some 16 million Americans. The 500 men and women who, last week, competed in the National Pistol Championships had been selected by elimination at 11 regional championships from competitors representative of 4000 rifle and pistol clubs with a half million members all over America.

Pistol shooting is one of the few competitive sports in which persons above their middle thirties may make a good competitive showing. It is prescribed by competent physicians as a safe form of recreation for convalescent tubercular patients, for some forms of cardiac difficulties and for amputees and paraplegics. Can your cloistered editorial writer point to similar human relations values in "a vial of prussic acid" which he says is as valuable to the average citizen as a gun?

In his editorial "Concealed Weapons" your writer attempts to use the Camden tragedy as an example of the need "for more general and stringent control" of the distribution of guns. Again he choose to disregard facts. First, the gun used by the Camden maniac was purchased under a permit issued by the chief of police of Camden. Second, the killer was wounded and undoubtedly weakened to the point of easier capture by an "average citizen" who also legally possessed a pistol.

If your editorial writer was really interested in facts he could readily determine from police records that the "average citizen" armed with a pistol annually kills, wounds or holds at bay for the police such number of thugs as contributes materially to the law enforcement of our cities.

In conclusion, may I request an apology for the insinuation in the first paragraph of your editorial "Concealed Weapons" on September 8, that I, and others who oppose police state restrictions on the possession of firearms by reputable citizens, are "spokesmen for those who make a profit from the manufacture and sale of pistols"? Neither I, nor the National Rifle Association of America, has any interest, financial or otherwise, in any manufacturing, importing, distributing or retailing business connected with the firearms and ammunition industry.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Influence In Congress

NOW THAT the 5-percenter investigation has subsided, the black headlines called forth by this momentary sensation are receding into memory. If anyone in Congress has the courage to go into it, there is a far more obvious example of the use—and abuse—of official influence right on the doorsteps of Congress.

That is the growing custom of members of Congress making themselves nothing but special pleaders for special interests. This has gone so far that lawyer members even defend the right to take fees for services rendered. These fees are, of course, above and beyond the congressional salary of $12,500 a year plus a $2500 tax-free expense allowance.

This situation was highlighted by an incident last spring that received too little attention. Representative Earl Chudoff (D., Pa.), appeared in Federal District Court representing a client charged with sending obscene literature through the mail. The judge was James P. McGranery, former Congressman from Pennsylvania and former assistant to the Attorney General.

Judge McGranery told Chudoff he would be violating the law in appearing in court. Chudoff replied that other members of Congress had appeared in Federal court under similar circumstances.

"You are right," the judge was quoted by the Associated Press as replying, "and I don't care to mention names, but that's no reason why I should allow you to do the same."

ONE OF the names which the judge may well have had in mind was that of another Pennsylvania Congressman, Francis E. Walter, Democrat, now serving his ninth term in Congress from the Twentieth District. In a sharply contested campaign last fall Walter's Republican opponent, Roy James, brought out that the Congressman had represented stockholders in a suit against the Pennroad Corp. and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

That suit was, indirectly, the outgrowth of a congressional investigation into railroad holding companies. Some months ago Federal Judge George A. Welsh awarded Walter a fee of $170,000 in the Pennroad case, a reduction from $175,000.

In the campaign last fall Walter said in reply to James that as one of the counsel for the Pennroad stockholders he had succeeded in recovering 15 million dollars from the Pennsylvania Railroad. Congressman Walter is also reported to have acted for a group of slate companies in his district when they were charged with violating the anti-trust law. An executive of one of the leading companies tells me it is his impression that Walter "helped them out" without charging a fee.

THE QUESTION of whether it is illegal for a member of Congress to defend persons charged with violating the Federal law or to serve as trustee in bankruptcy for a fee was put up not long ago to the Department of Justice. The reply that came back, signed by Peyton Ford, assistant to the Attorney General, was full of evasive double talk. But after citing various laws covering the matter, Ford in a memorandum said.

"In the absence of a judicial determination of the question it is not possible to deny that a violation could result."

Walter is now on a congressional junket in Europe. I cabled him asking for his comment and he replied saying that when he returned in the middle of October he would tell me the "truth." The Pennroad case is, of course, a matter of court record.

This is far from being an isolated case. When Representative Herman P. Eberharter of Pennsylvania was nominated to be a Federal judge, one reason given by the American Bar Association for opposing his confirmation was that he had acted as attorney for a bidder in a WPA contract while serving in Congress.

It is not hard to see how the lines of power and influence are interrelated. Walter is the ranking majority member of the House Judiciary Committee. He might in all honesty urge the nomination and confirmation of a Federal judge. But if he were to appear in court later before that Federal judge representing a client, the most righteous judge in the world would have a hard time convincing the public he was not influenced in favor of the friendly Congressman.

It is not a matter of one political party or another. In both the Senate and the House, as will be indicated in a following column, the abuse of influence has become a matter for serious inquiry.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Framework A Strait Jacket

Lippmann

WHAT the three governments have agreed to do, after the Washington talks, is, of course, very small indeed as compared with the many very big subjects they have decided, as they put it in their communique, to review, to consider, to discuss, to study, to investigate, and to examine.

The big subjects are, no doubt, so big that it is hard to know exactly what to do about most of them. But that was not the only or the whole reason why the biggest subjects were not acted upon. They are also too hot to handle, or at least were thought to be, by Secretary Snyder, who has a tired and irritable Congress to worry about, and by Sir Stafford Cripps and Mr. Bevin, who have an election, a party record, a restless commonwealth and a very much threatened sterling area to think about.

THAT WAS why Mr. Snyder laid it down at the outset that he would take only "steps . . . within the framework of our existing foreign economic policies." That meant that he would take only steps which did not require the nerve-wracking effort to persuade Congress to pass new laws or to appropriate new money. This Administration ruling that Congress was not now to be brought into the worldwide crisis meant that the worldwide crisis could not now be dealt with.

But the evident truth is that the situation cannot be handled "within the framework of our existing foreign economic policies." Even the palliative measures agreed to, notably the permission to use ECA dollars to buy Canadian wheat, made the existing framework creak. For if that agreement is within the letter, it is not, as a chorus of Senators are saying, plainly within the spirit of the existing law.

THE ADMINISTRATION knows, of course, that the existing framework of our foreign economic policies is going to have to be enlarged and reconstructed. That will have to be done if the crisis is to be liquidated in an orderly fashion, and it will certainly have to be done if the crisis gets out of hand, and the precarious structure of the world economy breaks down. So the President will be wise to grasp the nettle now, and make it plain to Congress and the people that this country cannot stand pat and let the crisis of the sterling area become a convulsion in Europe and in Asia.

There is no better place to begin than by meeting squarely the issue raised by Senators Wherry, Butler and Kem. They may be right that under the law the Administration cannot authorize Great Britain to use ECA dollars to buy wheat in Canada, now that wheat has been declared to be in surplus in the United States. But if Senator Wherry is right about the law, then the law should be amended. It will take an effort to persuade Congress to amend the law. But the effort will pay handsome dividends. It will open the way to that fundamental revision of the Marshall Plan, which was desirable from the beginning and is now demonstrably necessary if its objectives are ever to be attained.

THE WORST and most unworkable feature of the Marshall Plan has been that the dollars appropriated by Congress have been so largely earmarked and tied to particular American exports. The same number of dollars made freely available in world trade would have been far more effective in expanding world trade. Thus if Britain has to spend 300 million ECA dollars directly on American wheat, all that happens is that Britain gets the wheat and the American wheat producers get the dollars. But if Britain can buy the wheat more cheaply in Canada, she gets the wheat, the Canadian producers get the United States dollars. The Canadians, however, do not keep those dollars. They spend them in the United States to buy American products that Canadians could not otherwise buy.

The dollars always come back to the United States. Unless they are hidden in mattresses, they must come back to the United States because in the end only in the United States can they be cashed in for goods. Always Americans finally get all the dollars that Congress appropriates. But while the dollars have been traveling around, a great many different producers and merchants in three countries are able to do business they would not otherwise be able to do if the ECA dollars had to be spent directly on United States wheat.

The free use of the dollars promotes trade. The earmarking of the dollars, on the other hand, makes for a regimented, restricted Government operation. It is in essence a form of relief for the Marshall aid countries and in the United States it is a form of subsidized dumping.

SENATOR WHERRY and Senator Kem have recently made big noises about how much they dislike the planned collectivism of Britain and how much they like free enterprise in a free economy. It is about time they realized that the more they insist on earmarking the ECA dollars, the more they compel the European governments and the American Government to go in for the bureaucratic planning and regimentation of exports and imports between Europe and America.

They are horrified at the thought of politicians and bureaucrats managing business transactions. And yet they insist that the American politicians and bureaucrats should spend most of their time working with European politicians and bureaucrats p r e p a r i n g planned export and import programs which then have to be passed on in detail by four separate congressional committees composed of politicians.

THE MARSHALL Plan will certainly fail to bring us anywhere within sight of its objectives if it continues to be an instrument for forcing European exports and imports into a rigid pattern, worked out not in the market place but in government offices and in legislative committees.

Without realizing it, perhaps, men like Senator Wherry have compelled this country to compel the European countries to submit to that very planning and regimentation of their foreign trade which these Senators spend their leisure moments denouncing as socialism, communism and all the rest.

WITHIN that framework of our existing foreign economic policies,—and within the blind dogmas and prejudices which created that framework—there can be no true recovery in Europe and no progress towards a free economy in the world. For the framework is a strait jacket.

Failure Of OEEC

By Andre Visson

Economic Nationalism In Europe

PARIS. — The public statement by Robert Marjolin, Secretary General of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, that despite all the benefits of the Marshall Plan, the European economic situation has deteriorated and the so-called dollar problem was not in process of solution, came to Europeans as an even greater shock than it did to Americans.

Americans who have been reading for more than a year about the magnificent effects of the Marshall Plan on the European economy, may now suspect that they have been swallowing propaganda originated in the press offices of the ECA. But Europeans know that living conditions in their countries have really improved. They know that their industrial and agricultural production has risen. They know that they have more goods for consumption at the present time than they had two years ago.

All this is not a propaganda story. All this is real achievement. How did it happen then, that despite this remarkable achievement, their economic situation has suddenly deteriorated and the Marshall Plan cannot any longer solve Europe's dollar plan?

The report prepared by M. Marjolin implies that the change in the conditions on the American market is the main reason for the recent drop in Europe's dollar-earnings. This, incidentally, is also the British thesis. Sir Stafford Cripps and his advisers go on repeating: "Our economic conceptions are not at fault. Our production and export programs have been drawn up according to our general economic plan. But you Americans, with your free economy, subject to constant changes, have gotten into one of your inevitable depressions. You curtailed the purchases of European goods. And since the dollars which you allocate to us under the Marshall Plan cannot cover our dollar needs, you precipitate our crisis. So, let us get together and revise the present setup."

Undoubtedly, the drop of European sales to the United States and the dollar area came as a severe blow to European economy. But I heard a number of responsible European economists agree with those American officials of the ECA who contend that this is not the main, and certainly not the sole, reason for Europe's scarcity of dollars. Europe's recovery, they point out, is absolutely impossible without a large internal European market, the creation of which was supposed to be the ultimate objective of the Marshall Plan.

Most unfortunately, the European beneficiaries of the Marshall Plan have done very little in that direction. The members of the OEEC have been working very hard on raising their national production, but they produced very little in the way of an inter-European cooperation. Their cooperation was reduced to the best possible distribution of the dollars which they were receiving from the ECA.

When the Marshall Plan was conceived it was assumed that European recovery required three kinds of help: American help; European self-help and European mutual help.

American help came according to the plan. European self-help exceeded most optimistic expectations. But European mutual help failed lamentably. And this explains the failure of the OEEC. Last fall an intelligent and far-sighted European connected with the OEEC told me: "We are bound to fail, because every nation in our organization works for herself, on the assumption that Uncle Sam is working for all of us!"

WHO, THEN, is responsible for this lamentable state of things?

Continental economists and officials are inclined to put the main blame on the British, who, they say, made the creation of a really cooperative inter-European economic organization impossible. Britain's economic interests are mostly outside of Europe. So the British did not want to become members of an organization in which the majority of continental nations could impose upon them an economic system interfering with Britain's economic interests in her dominions and overseas markets.

Furthermore, the British have been convinced that they had a legitimate priority for American aid. Politically and strategically, Britain is more important to the United States than any continental nation. And while it is true that Britain received more dollars than any other European nation, it is equally true that since the end of the war, Britain has earned more dollars than any other European country. Britain has been earning about 70 per cent of her dollar needs, while most of continental countries have been earning from 10 to 35 per cent of their dollars.

Continental economists do not contest that the British have been the most deserving members of the OEEC. But they deplore the British approach to the OEEC. This influenced, they say, the attitude of many other member nations. With most of the nations looking upon the OEEC as a distribution agency for American dollars, the organization became a gathering of European nations thinking primarily in selfish nationalist economic terms. And since the status of the OEEC gives to every member nation the veto right, those men in the organization who have seen for more than a year that the hour of the catastrophe was approaching, have been helpless to prevent it.

All they could do was to implore responsible Americans in the ECA to impose upon the OEEC a cooperation which Europeans were unable to produce spontaneously. But this is another story.

Others Likely To Ask Freer ECA Spending

By Homer Bigart
NYHT News Service

Much interest was expressed in diplomatic circles here yesterday in the forthcoming statement by ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman on permitting Great Britain to use Marshall Plan dollars for the purchase of Canadian wheat. Other nations are expected to ask a similar lifting of restrictions on the use of these dollars, as was proposed Tuesday in the annual report of Eugene Black, president of the World Bank.

The ECA statement, which was promised Tuesday, was delayed another day because of "difficulties in phrasing." William C. Foster, deputy ECA administrator, said that the statement would certainly be ready this morning, and that it will embody an exchange of letters between Hoffman and Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan.

It was learned that a ceiling will be placed on the amount of Canadian wheat Britain will be allowed to buy with ECA dollars, and that probably Britain would be obliged to buy a certain amount of wheat from the United States.

Foster revealed that the United States had agreed to broaden the eligibility of Marshall Plan dollars on several other items, including the cost of fueling and repairing British ships in American ports. Ship disbursements in the United States have cost Britain up to 130 million dollars a year.

Steel Peace Hopes Fading

not the social desirability of proper programs of insurance and pensions, which desirability United States Steel has recognized for a long time, but rather that the future immense cost of such programs of social security should be borne entirely by employers."

Fairless charged that from the outset the chief objective of the CIO steelworkers has been to obtain noncontributory welfare programs "at the expense of someone else."

Revolutionary Doctrine

"To impose such a non-contributory principle . . . upon a basic industry, such as steel, is a revolutionary doctrine of far-reaching and serious consequences to the whole Nation," Fairless asserted.

Acceptance of this principle by the steel industry, he added, will set a national pattern "for all time and for all industry in this country."

Fairless said that the board's recommendations for social insurance and pensions, to cost the steel companies a maximum of 10 cents an hour per worker, would amount to 200 million dollars a year for the industry, and would be the equivalent of adding $3 to the cost of each ton of steel. He insisted:

"The most important issue raised by the report of the presidential steel board is whether such a board, possessing no statutory authority, power or responsibility, is to be permitted by public opinion or otherwise to impose upon American industry for all time a noncontributory system of social security, with the entire cost borne by the employer."

The head of the largest steel corporation said that even though it, would raise the cost of producing steel, United States Steel was willing to pay up to 4 cents an hour—as recommended by the fact-finding board—for a social insurance program, but only on a contributory basis arrived at through collective bargaining. He also agreed to join with the steel union in a joint study of pensions.

Apparently Sentiment of All

Reply by United States Steel appeared to express the sentiment of the steel industry. Earlier, several other companies had stated their willingness to negotiate both social insurance and pensions, but on a contributory basis.

Word from Pittsburgh, where he is meeting with the top officials of the CIO steelworkers, is that President Murray will not answer the Fairless wire until today. Since accepting the board's recommendations on Monday, Murray has been under heavy attack from the left-wing unions in the CIO, and some of the right-wing affiliates as well. United States Steel's turndown might have the effect of forcing Murray to call a strike to win the noncontributory social insurance and pension programs.

Ex-Red Says Mrs. Roosevelt And Hull Aided Mrs. Browder

grant the reentry permit," Rushmore testified.

He quoted Benjamin Gitlow, former Communist secretary, as saying that while Mrs. Browder was having her deportation troubles, her husband was "meeting secretly with President Roosevelt at the White House."

Rushmore also testified that:

1. Three to four hundred New York city school teachers are Communist and teach the party line, besides controlling perhaps 4000 others in the city's teacher force of 33,000.

2. Jerre Mangione, former Justice Department public relations officer, was either a Communist or fellow traveler.

3. Davis Karr, former legman for Columnist Drew Pearson and now vice president of a New York advertising agency, was a Communist.

4. Lowell Wakefield, former employe of the New York Daily Worker, runs a fishing fleet off Alaska, "where he could contact Russian ships and submarines."

Rushmore's background in communism was as a member of the Young Communist League in 1935 and 1936 and of the party itself from 1937 through 1939. During the latter period, he was on the Daily Worker staff.

He told the committee that effective use of the immigration laws would cut down the Communist Party's ability to operate by at least 75 per cent because all its real leaders are aliens and its main financial help comes from overseas.

Mrs. Browder, he said, was one of those designated as a representative of the Moscow central committee who gave detailed orders to the American party. He said others slip through the border or are smuggled in with help of "Communist-dominated maritime unions."

As for Mangione, the former Justice Department official, Rushmore said he saw him at a party meeting in 1937 or 1938. He added that when he went to San Francisco in 1941 to testify at a deportation hearing against Harry Bridges, maritime labor leader, he found Mangione was public relations officer for the Immigration Service there.

He complained to the FBI about Mangione, he said, but Mangione was on the job until 1948, when he resigned and "got an honorable discharge."

Asked about "a Dave Katz," Rushmore said he once gave him assignments for the Daily Worker when Katz worked for a "New York non-Communist newspaper."

"He had to show me his card before I could give him any assignments," Rushmore said. "I believe he later became a legman or reporter for Drew Pearson. I believe he now uses the name of Karr."

Pearson told a reporter he knew Karr "intimately" and is convinced he was never a Communist.

He said Karr, while working for the New York Daily Mirror, turned over to the Daily Worker a series of articles on the German-American Bund, which the Mirror did not print. The Daily Worker, Pearson added, never used anything else from Karr because he bucked "the party line."

Pearson said the House Committee on Un-American Activities gave Karr a clean bill of health.

Pearson said Karr usually comes to Washington weekly to help prepare Pearson's Sunday night radio broadcasts. Karr is a vice president of Winthrob Corp., of New York, which handles the Pearson show.

White House Visit By Browder Is Denied

NYHT News Service

Miss Grace G. Tully, personal secretary to the late President Roosevelt, yesterday denied testimony at a Senate hearing that Earl Browder former Communist leader, visited Roosevelt secretly at the White House in 1944.

Miss Tully, reached at her office at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Foundation, told a reporter that "Browder never was in the White House, certainly not in 1944." She said she had kept a record of all Roosevelt's public and private meetings.

'Got Out 12 Years Ago,' Wakefield Declares

Seattle, Sept. 14 (AP).—Lowell Wakefield, Seattle businessman, branded as an "irresponsible statement" today testimony before a Senate committee that he is a Communist.

Howard Rushmore, a New York reporter, was quoted as telling the committee at a Washington, D. C., hearing he knew Wakefield to be a Communist and an operator of a fishing fleet off Alaska.

Wakefield told the Associated Press he once was a Communist, but "got out 12 years ago. At that time I was running a little paper here in Seattle." He said he last saw Rushmore in 1936 or 1937.

Wakefield is president of the Deep Sea Trawlers, Inc., which he said is owned by 120 persons in Seattle financial circles.

Rather than operating a fishing fleet, he said, it has only one boat, a 100-foot steel trawler engaged in king crab fishing.

Close Tariff Vote Seen Today

he charged the Administration would "tear away the last shred" of tariff protection for American industry and jobs.

The United States, Wherry said, "is being taken for an easy mark—simple Simon—by foreign countries in the negotiation of the allegedly reciprocal trade agreements."

Like Millikin, Wherry said he will vote against the renewal bill unless the peril-point restriction is adopted.

Advancing the Administration view, Senator Robertson (D., Va.) termed the peril-point unnecessary, unwise and "essentially high protectionist in conception."

Robertson contended there is no such thing as a specific peril point.

"There is only what may be called a danger zone, within which there is a whole series of points," he said, "and there is no earthly way of determining in advance at what precise point . . . to draw the line."

Robertson said the proposed restriction introduces such "rigidity" into tariff negotiation that it may "make difficult, or even frustrate, the succesful negotiation of a good agreement."

Several other restrictive amendments will go to a vote, ranging from a so-called "flexible tariff" substitute, transferring full discretion to the Tariff Commission, to a proposed import quota on oils.

Speaking for the latter, Senator Schoeppel (R., Kans.) said National security shouldn't become "dependent upon uncertainties of foreign oil to supply our military requirements."

Another amendment by Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) would terminate a trade agreement with any nation if the President or the Tariff Commission found it was discriminating against American commerce by restrictive trade practices.

Still another, by Senator Butler (R., Nebr.), would require an escape clause, permitting the United States to withdraw concessions, to be written into 13 trade agreements which do not have such a clause.

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) took the floor against all amendments, saying they "would be interpreted as a resurgence of American isolationism."

Way Cleared To End Truck Dispute Here

Settlement of a strike by 1500 truckers against 55 Baltimore firms yesterday cleared the way, and indicated a pattern, for settlement of the Washington truck driver dispute.

Intracity drivers in Baltimore received a 13½-cent hourly increase and reduction of the work week from 48 to 40 hours a week.

After the settlement was announced, the Washington union, Local 639 of the AFL Teamsters Union, asked member firms of the District Trucking Association for a 17-cent hourly boost, coupled with a 40-hour work week. The association represents a dozen trucking firms that handle about half the city's hauling.

Local President Charles J. Bell said the Washington union representing some 450 drivers and helpers, is asking 3½ cents more than Baltimore truckers received because the Washington local wants to narrow the 6½-cent differential that currently exists.

The Baltimore drivers, prior to the new agreement, received $1.215; Washington truckers receive $1.15. Bell said Washington truckers dropped behind in pay because they signed a two-year wage agreement in 1945, which debarred them from getting a wage boost when Baltimore drivers did in 1946.

Tuesday night the local here rejected an association offer and empowered its officials to call a strike at any time. However, Bell indicated he expected a resumption of negotiations today.

Bell conceded that the rejected management offer—$1.25, or 10 cents more an hour, with a 45-hour week—would yield $1.05 more take-home pay than present wages, while the union demand, $1.32 and 40 hours, would actually result in $2.40 less take-home pay. But he said the union is dead set on a 40-hour week.

Union fringe demands include two weeks' vacation after four years; time and one-half and a four-hour work guarantee for Saturday work and a weekday eight-hour guarantee.

land Creek is less than a one-third interest, and in Pond Creek it is only a minor interest," he said.

At Bluefield, W. Va., where negotiators for the United Mine Workers and the Southern Coal Producers Association resumed their oft-deferred collective bargaining sessions over a new work contract, it was learned that the member companies have been expecting a Lewis strike call for several weeks. Last Monday this belief was bolstered when the miners swamped the companies with orders for coal to stock their own coal boxes.

Lewis lieutenants are conducting the Bluefield negotiations, but John L. himself is expected to participate in the negotiations which reopen today at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., with representatives of the Northern, Western, and steel industry-owned "captive" coal mines.

told her to come to the second floor.

"I rushed down and there Butch was—bloody, as bloody as she could be. All her clothes were gone except a little white polo shirt. Her legs had so much blood on them I couldn't see them. She didn't recognize me. She was like someone coming out from under ether. I caught her in my arms just as she fell."

Police descended en masse on the scene, every available detective and uniformed member of the force being called. Between 50 and 100 of them, they surrounded the area, sealed off the 80-room hotel, relentlessly began questioning some 60 persons.

Capt. Robert V. Murray, acting chief of detectives, and Capt. Howard V. Covell, captain of the First Precinct, directed the investigation.

Chief Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald and his two deputies, Dr. Christopher J. Murphy and Dr. Richard Rosenberg, set up a temporary lab at police headquarters to test for bloodstains.

It remained for a keenly observant police private, Norman S. Jones, dramatically to set going the chain of investigation that was to close on Mincey.

Entering Mincey's fifth-floor, $7.50-a-week room on a routine check of hotel occupants, Pvt. Jones saw Mincey sitting with some friends.

He also saw, hanging on the wall, a pair of blue dungarees—with spots as if someone had recently tried to wash out stains.

Pvt. Jones left, returned a few minutes later—and saw that the dungarees hanging there now had no water spots.

A search was made—and the water-spotted dungarees were found in an empty room.

Mincey at first denied the rape, claiming for an alibi that he was talking with friends in his room. But after questioning until 4 a. m. yesterday and again after 11, police said he confessed raping the girl before that.

In court yesterday, Sex Squad Detective George H. Robinson said tests showed there was blood on Mincey's dungarees. Mincey, he said, told this story:

He was in the second-floor bathroom when the little girl came in. He grabbed her, beat her, removed both pairs of pants she was wearing and had intercourse with her. Then he left her in a coma.

Truscott Praises Force

Mincey said he came here from Atlanta, Ga., about three weeks ago.

Inspector Floyd Truscott, acting superintendent of police, commended both the detective and uniformed force for their quick work on the case.

The mother of the child said: "Thank God they got him before he got another little girl."

Railroad Offers New Proposal For Ending Strike

St. Louis, Sept. 14 (AP).—Management officials' offered a new proposal today for ending the strike that has stopped operations on the Missouri Pacific Railroad for six days. Both sides said they were optimistic about an early settlement.

Guy A. Thompson, trustee in bankruptcy for the railroad, offered to leave disposal of issues in the dispute to any of the five ways specified in the National Railway Labor Act.

The five are decision by the National Railroad Adjustment Board, by a special adjustment board for the Missouri Pacific, arbitration, a neutral referee, and the courts.

The railroad trustee, in his proposal, also offered to settle 59 of 282 claims that led to the strike by 5000 engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen. The claims are based on differences in interpretation of operating rules and involve about three million dolars.

The four brotherhoods had offered earlier in Washington to withdraw 80 of the grievances.

Mountain Road Dangerous, Parents Keep Pupils Home

Smithsburg, Md., Sept. 14 (AP).—Parents of about 40 children who live along mountainous Raven Rock Road have refused to permit their children to attend Smithsburg school.

Raven Rock Road, they say, is too dangerous for them to travel.

The action of the parents was reported by Edwin C. Shroyer, owner and driver of the school bus which normally carries the children to and from classes. He said he owed it to the parents to protest the condition of the road.

Rocks Like Footballs

In a lone statement, Shroyer said the dirt road off South Mountain is filled with rocks as big as footballs, and that he has to cross a wooden bridge whose planks are rotting away. There is a big hole in the bridge floor, he said.

Shroyer said he watched the children "quake in fear when we approach the bridge with its gaping hole."

"I've seen little children bounce from their seats to the floor of the bus," he continued, "striking their heads with a resounding thud, because of rocks and the rutted road.

"I pray the exigencies of the situation will not herald itself by an injured child or worse."

Average Speed 3 to 6 MPH

Shroyer said his average speed along some parts of the road is 3 to 6 miles per hour, and that he never goes more than 8 mph.

The parents refused to send their children over the road to school last sprnig, and obtained from the county commissioners a promise that it would be fixed. A repair job was scheduled.

County commissioners declined to comment pending an official review of the situation.

he list, with the next conference session set for 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Washington citizens, snapped Neely, have shown "too little ambition, too little determination to fight for their rights. They have been too long docile and submissive like a flock of sheep surrounded by a pack of wolves."

A strong supporter of the Senate-approved and House-stymied home-rule bill, Neely declared that the people of the District "are not fighting for their own right; if they had started fighting a long time ago they would have had two Senators and one or two members of the House by now. They could have had the vote long ago if they had just done something about it."

He advised those present to do "a little missionary work" among their fellow citizens.

Citizens Discuss Budgets

Discussion in yesterday's meeting turned again to inadequate budgets for education, welfare, health, and housing here, and there was renewed emphasis on the civil rights issue.

Mrs. Charlotte Sillers of the Women's Auxiliary, United Public Workers, CIO, and Mrs. Gertrude Evans, executive secretary, Progressive Party of the District, presented parallel appeals for District suffrage, for repeal of the District sales tax, for a larger Federal payment, and for an end of racial segegation in schools and recreation here.

J. K. Hoskins, board member, and Mrs. Hilda Cloud, executive director of the Washington Housing Association, appealed for funds to implement the District Redevelopment Land Agency program. The program was authorized by Congress three years ago, but Congress has since refused to appropriate any funds for the Land Agency to undertake Washington slum clearance projects. They also called for congressional enactment of an adequate housing code for the District, and for increased planning funds in the housing field to be used by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Speaks for Women Over 35

Mrs. Bertha Voorhorst, president of the Washington Women's City Club, said the District should increase its employment opportunities for women over 35. She recalled that she had lost a Red Cross job because she had reached 65.

Neely quoted to her some lines of Longfellow including the words "age is opportunity no less than youth itself," and he said he didn't like to hear Mrs. Voorhorst suggest that she was old. "But I'm not old," said Mrs. Voorhorst. "I'll admit my age, 78, but I won't admit being old."

A. J. Drisoll, of the Midcity Citizens Association and a member of the Board of Public Welfare, said that while he was not testifying for the board, one of the city's major needs is replacement of ancient buildings now used for welfare institutions, particularly the Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains, D. C.

Democrats on Civil Rights

Edgar Brown of the Washington Negro Council, sharply protested failure of the Democratic administration to make good its campaign promises for a civil rights program. In return Neely blamed "Dixiecrats and Republicrats" for blocking Senate rules changes aimed at clearing the way for civil rights legislation.

At Neely's invitation, Dr. Joseph Lohman, Chicago professor recently on duty with the Interior Department to instruct Park Police in dealing with racial tensio., entered the roundtable discussion to declare that Washington should point the way for other cities in developing a competency to handle racial issues.

Dr. Lohman said that the racial issue had been used as a political weapon from both the right and the left.

Neely also heard Washington I. Cleveland, Washington manager for the American Automobile Association, urge appropriation of $47,000 to permit expanding the District driver training program to 12 public high schools, in addition to the four which now have it.

Neely also placed in the record a letter from Merlo J. Pusey, associate editor of The Washington Post, voicing strong approval and appreciation for "the spirit in which you have begun your work as chairman of the Senate District Committee."

The letter expressed The Washington Post's "deep interest" in the improvements in schools, welfare, health, housing, civil rights, and other problems being discussed in the conferences. Pusey added the view that no long-range solution of the problems being presented to Neely can be attained without home rule for Washington.

Yesterday's session was opened with prayer by Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, minister of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Peak Seen Passed

Polio Season May Top '16 30,000 High

United States has passed the seasonal infantile paralysis peak, and the 1949 total of new cases may well pass 1916's all-time high of 30,000 cases.

That was reported yesterday by United States Public Health Service statisticians, who added one consolation to the year's outlook. Because of early reporting, they said, the ratio of cases resulting in paralysis should be "much lower" than in 1916.

In 1916, they said, virtually all of the slightly more than 30,000 cases showed some degree of paralysis.

The basis for reasoning that this year's peak is passed was the decline for the third successive week in new polio cases reported to the central office from the State health officers. The week's total, excepting Pennsylvania, which had not sent in its figures, was 2628 new cases.

By comparison, 3119 cases had been reported for the same 47 States and the District of Columbia for the preceding week. The week ended September 11, 1948, produced 1475 cases, some 400 cases fewer than last year's peak week, which ended September 18. This year's peak week ended August 20, in which 3419 cases were recorded.

Last week's cases brought to 26,384 the number recorded throughout the Nation, about 1300 cases fewer than the total number reported for the whole of last year.

Among the States reporting increases last week were Oklahoma, 59 for the week to 86 for the preceding week; Colorado, 55 to 77; California, 89 to 121, and Mississippi, 6 to 28.

States showing decreases last week included New York, 538 the previous to 336 last week; Illinois, 282 to 191; Michigan, 287 to 196, and Massachusetts, 195 to 145.

The District of Columbia showed 11 new cases reported last week, an increase of four over the number reported the previous week. Maryland had five new cases for the week, a decrease of eight from the preceding week's 13, and Virginia reported 21 new cases last week, and 27 for the week before.

Two of Virginia's new cases were reported from Arlington and Fairfax Counties. In Maryland, four of the new cases came from near by, two each in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

GOP General Counsel Resigns in St. Louis

St. Louis, Sept. 13 (U.P.).—Bark T. Mattingly, 48, general counsel for the Republican National Committee, announced his resignation today.

Mattingly said the new chairman, Guy G. Gabrielson, should have the privilege of selecting his own counsel.

D.C.'s Lack of Vote Called 'A Disgrace'

Amity Symbol

'Hill' Backs Memorial to Gandhi Here

The Senate yesterday passed a House-approved resolution calling for the erection in Washington of a memorial to Mohandas K. Gandhi, India's leader who was assassinated.

Now awaiting President Truman's signature, the resolution authorizes the India League of America to pay for, build and maintain the memorial. Its purpose would be to act as a symbol of continued amity between India and the United States.

The site for the memorial will be designed by the Fine Arts Commission with the approval of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Library. A Commission spokesman said yesterday that no plans had as yet been submitted by the India League.

The Capital's voteless status yesterday was described as "a national disgrace" by Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board.

Wender's comments came in a speech before delegates of the thirty-first National Recreation Congress now under way in New Orleans. The congress winds up Friday.

Referring to the denial of the voting franchise to the District, Wender declared: "We have as intelligent potential as any place in the world . . . and it's a national disgrace we can't vote there."

Wender earlier visited the National Leprosarium at Carville, La., in connection with his position as general counsel for the American Foundation for the Physically Handicapped.

The delegates went on record as favoring the establishment of a Nationwide clearing house to study recreation research being carried out in American cities and towns.

Tucker Trustees Doubt Corporation Can Be Revived

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP)—Trustees of the foundered Tucker Corp. reported to a Federal court judge today "it appears extremely doubtful" that it can be reorganized.

However, the court-appointed officials, who had been ordered to submit a reorganization plan Thursday or report why reorganization might not be feasible, asked District Judge Michael L. Igoe to let them have until October 3 to consider the question.

The corporation was organized by Preston T. Tucker in 1946 to produce a rear-engined automobile. The firm took in approximately 29 million dollars through stock sales and franchises, but went on the financial rocks before setting up an assembly line.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Million-Dollar Child Disease Study Set Up

Formation of a million-dollar medical research institute devoted solely to pediatrics was announced yesterday by International Latex Corporation, of Dover, Del.

Named the Playtex Park Research Institute, it is the first large-scale, privately-sponsored program to be set up exclusively for research in diseases of infants and children.

Its founders, manufacturers of rubberized and elastic garments for women and children, have stipulated that the funds be used for "brains" rather than buildings. With $1,000,000 allocated, the corporation has promised continuing support.

Walter O. Heinze, corporation president, announced formation of the institution yesterday after the first meeting of its governing board at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The program gives virtually free rein to the governing board in the selection of research projects, listing only generally basic points. These include:

1. Spend no money on buildings and equipment; spend it on brains.
2. Maintain an atmosphere of freedom of movement, discussion and ideas by board members and other participants towards achieving the best possible conditions and criteria for effective operation.
3. Encourage and stimulate the entrance of young medical graduates into research and pediatric fields, and provide sufficient latitude for their development.

Heinze said the most obvious objectives in "such problems as allergy, infant leukemia, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, pediatric psychiatry, rheumatic fever and premature birth."

Board members include Dr. Katherine Bain, director of research and child development, U. S. Children's Bureau, and Dr. John P. Hubbard, executive director, American Academy of Pediatrics' Nation-wide study of child health services.

Denver Rabbi Leads Temple Here at 25

Rabbi Benzion C. Kaganoff of Denver, Colo., has been named spiritual leader of Congregation Ohev Sholom, 5th and I sts. nw.

Rabbi Kaganoff

The 25-year-old rabbi will begin his work here this week and will conduct services at sunset Friday at the temple. He succeeds Rabbi Zemach Green, who resigned last January after 17 years with the congregation to become director of the American campaign for Washington Colony in the Holy Land.

Rabbi Kaganoff was graduated from Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. in 1946 and from the Hebrew Theological College in Chicago two years later.

After his graduation from Theological College, he was called to Denver to become rabbi of the Hebrew Educational Alliance there.

5 U. S. Delegates Off for UNESCO Parley in Paris

This country's delegation to the fourth general UNESCO conference left here yesterday for Paris, site of the conference.

The four other United States representatives are Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College; Miss Martha B. Briar College; Luther H. Evans, librarian of Congress, and Reinhold Niebuhr, religious and civic leader.

A number of advisers also made the trip.

The UNESCO conference will open September 19 and is expected to close October 5. Forty-seven member nations of UNESCO—the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—are entitled to take part.

Howe Named Yale Architecture Head

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 14 (NYHT)—George Howe, 63, long a radical among America's architects and former supervising architect of the Public Buildings Administration, has been appointed chairman of the Yale University Department of Architecture, it was announced today by President Charles Seymour of Yale.

Yanks Win 2; Williams' Homer Tops Tigers, 1-0

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THERE IS SOMETHING quite admirable about those Boston Red Sox despite their apparently losing battle to overhaul the Yankees. The fact that they aren't counted out yet is hugely to their credit, because they had to come off the ropes even to stay in the race.

When the Red Sox took those two defeats from the Athletics on the same day the Yankees were mopping up the Nats in last Sunday's double-header, the Boston club seemingly blew the pennant. Ready to let 'em have the conclusive kayo punch were the Detroit Tigers, who moved into Fenway Park with a 10-game winning streak and were the hottest club in the league.

POVICH

But the Red Sox pulled themselves together nicely and stopped the Tigers cold. They came from behind to knock young Art Houtteman out of the box and rack him up in Tuesday's game, and yesterday they had what it took to beat Hal Newhouser. What it took was shut-out pitching by Ellis Kinder and a home run by Ted Williams, the only run of the afternoon.

Funny thing about the Red Sox this year. At a time when Williams is leading the league in almost everything connected with hitting, he may not qualify as the club's most valuable player.

UP IN BOSTON they vote Kinder as the most valuable guy on the Red Sox, and there is much to be said in his favor. I write this at the risk of calling down the last measure of wrath from the Williams admirers who have been squawking by mail that I don't like their guy Ted. That's something they'll never prove, because I do respect Williams, am one of his fans, and not only concede that he is the game's greatest hitter, but shout it.

Kinder, though, is having a tremendous year himself. That 35-year-old guy posted his twentieth win for the Red Sox yesterday. He has been winning their big games. After that Red Sox defeat by the Yanks in the first of a two-game series last week, Kinder stepped in with a superb four-hitter to keep Boston in the race, and yesterday when they needed some guy who could beat Newhouser, 1-0, it was Kinder who delivered.

The clock is running out on the Red Sox, though. Red Sox victories are meaningless unless the Yankees encounter a slump. Joe McCarthy was saying the other day in New York that he doesn't like to be put in a spot where you have to pray that the other team will lose in order to do yourself any good. "I'd rather be in there head-to-head with 'em."

RIGHT NOW, the Yankees show a 3-game edge over Boston, and actually the Red Sox can't be counted out until they fall six full games behind. As long as they have those five remaining games with the Yankees, they're still a long-shot factor. And the Red Sox are better off in a pitching way than the Yanks, with Casey Stengel wondering whom Joe Page will next be called on to relieve.

Those two victories over the Tigers were, as I was saying, big ones for the Red Sox. They have now disposed of the red-hot Tigers, who soon will move into Yankee Stadium for two games. Detroit's kind of pitching could knock the Yanks off in both, even as it came close to belting the Red Sox down. The Tigers' pennant chances are barely mathematical, but they still have a powerful choice in deciding who wins it ultimately.

In that connection Red Rolfe could almost qualify as manager of the year. He would be the clear choice were it not for the tremendous job turned in by Stengel, who has kept his crippled Yanks on top all season with a combination of miracle guesses, sheer good judgment and constant lift from relief man Page.

ROLFE HAS the same Tiger team, virtually, which Steve O'Neill was struggling with last season, but the Tigers are playing better ball under Rolfe. His pitchers have squared away nicely. Despite hitting weaknesses in the outfield the Tigers have not lacked punch. The installation of Don Kolloway, the former White Sox second baseman, as the Tigers' first-sacker was pure inspiration.

From here in though, the Red Sox will have no excuses if they miss the flag. In fact, they've had fewer excuses than any club in the league. They've been robustly healthy all season in contrast to the Yankees, and have engendered none of the fan sentiment that has attached to the Yanks as a result.

Deficits of more than the 2½ games the Red Sox face have been made up in shorter time than the Red Sox have. The trouble is, though, that the Yankees refuse to let go. You almost gotta string along with a team like that but only one thing is certain: If the Yanks don't win it the Red Sox will.

Browns Bow, 13-7 and 2-0; New York Leads by 3

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—The New York Yankees advanced another step toward their sixteenth American League pennant today, beating the St. Louis Browns, 2-0 and 13-7, to increase their lead to three games over the runner-up Boston Red Sox.

Eddie Lopat blanked the Browns on four hits in the opener to gain his fourteenth victory while Vic Raschi picked up his nineteenth conquest in the free-scoring finale.

The Browns weren't exactly duck soup for Raschi and Page. Raschi allowed five hits, including a homer by Stan Spence, and four runs in seven innings.

Page made his fifty-second appearance after the Yanks insured the outcome with their six run seventh and was rapped for three runs in the eighth, one on Spence's second homer of the game.

Shantz Bests Bob Feller, 2-1

Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (AP). Rookie Southpaw Bobby Shantz outpointed Bob Feller in a pitching duel tonight as the Philadelphia Athletics nosed out the Cleveland, Indians, 2-1.

It marked the first time in Feller's major league career that he failed to win at least one game in a season from the A's. He dropped three decisions to them this year.

The A's executed their 200th twin killing of the season, two more than the old record, when Majeski turned Joe Gordon's grounder into a double play after Shantz walked Larry Doby in the fourth.

Griffs Drop 95th, Losing To Chisox, 8-1

There was considerable doubt as to whether the ballplayers outnumbered tthe spectators at Griffith Stadium last night, but there was absolutely no uncertainty as tto who won the ball game.

The White Sox did, 8-1, hammering out 14 solid hits in their final appearance of the season to extend the Nats' latest losing streak to five straight.

The loss—their 95th—dropped the Nats 44 games behind the league-leading Yankees.

While the Hose pounded a home run, three triples and a double, Lefthander Bob Kuzava restricted the Nats to six hits to pocket his tenth victory and his fourth at the expense of the Nats. The lone run off him was unearned.

Dave Philley rapped out three singles and a triple to furnish the chief excitement of an otherwise dull evening. Catcher Eddie Malone woke up the spectators in left-center by driving his first major league homer into that sector in the fourth inning.

Malone's homer was one of six runs and 11 hits Lloyd Hittle yielded in six ineffective innings. Hittle was bidding for his fifth victory and his fourth at the ex-

Football's Up in Air With Sophs Pitching

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is another in a series of articles on 11 leading college football teams of this area. Outstanding players on the various squads will be signed up, position by position, by MORRIS SIEGEL, who has just completed a tour of the 11 schools whose teams he writes about.

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

FOOTBALL takes to the air more than ever this fall.

Not only will most of the teams in the D. C. area transport their squads by air, but they'll move up and down the gridiron the same way.

Practically every school has equipped itself with an air arm which it believes to be as good, if not better, than the others.

Siegel

Until the records show otherwise, the title still goes to Carolina's Choo-Choo-Charlie Justice, who is now rated as proficient at passing as he is at running and punting. And at these two specialities, he leads the league by a mile.

Operating behind a far better team than most of the rest, Justice will probably triumph again, but there are a flock of lads in the neighborhood who figure to make Choo-Choo chug at full speed to retain his laurels.

And most of 'em are sophomores.

AT FROG ISLAND, hard by the banks of the Potomac, George Washington's Andy Davis is pitching the ball with the same ease and skill which made him a national star as a freshman last year.

Up the road a piece, as far up as Annapolis, Navy Coach George Sauer is as happy as a seaman second on boot leave as he watches last year's plebe star, Bob Zastrow, chunk bulls-eye after bulls-eye.

Sophomore Jimmy Lesane, a transplanted Carolinian who deserted Tarheelia because he wanted to play T-formation football, is making Virginia U. coaches and followers forget about Joe McCary, last year's passing ace.

V. M. I. doesn't expect Joe Veltri to be the passer that Bobby Thomason, a really great pitcher, was last year, but Veltri is better than adequate.

W. and L. Coach George Barclay, who normally leans toward a running game, is being converted into a passing devotee and the lad responsible for the transformation is Gil Bocetti, a passing phenom who's only a sophomore.

STAN LAVINE and Joe Tucker, who'll be at the controls of Maryland's split-T attack, are improving and will be hard to top by the time the season's finale with Miami rolls around December 2.

To ease the pains the temporary loss of Billy Conn brought him, Bob Margarita almost drolls as he sits by and watches his two Georgetown sophomore aces, Frank Mattingly and Bob Deacon, toss the leather around.

V. P. I. isn't expected to go far, but wherever the Techmen go they'll probably be taken by Dick Goodman, another sophomore.

Justice won't do all the passing for the Tar Heels. In the Carl Snavley scheme of things, the fullback does a bit of the passing also and this year Billy Hayes, former Washington-Lee High star, will take over where the departed Hosea Rodgers left off and assist Justice in the pitching department.

DICKIE LEWIS, teammate of Hayes in high school, is a varsity man at William and Mary and he along with veteran Buddy Lex

Cards Down Giants, 9-3, to Retain Margin

St. Louis, Sept. 14 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals battled the rain and the New York Giants tonight and came up with a 9 to 3 victory for the 10,712 cold, damp fans.

The victory kept the Redbirds a game a half ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Rain delayed the contest a total of one hour and 45 minutes, and even then much of the playing was completed with rain falling.

Wellings Leads Federal Golf

P. F. Wellings, jr., Naval Communications, took over the Class A low gross lead in the Federal Golf Associations tournament at Argyle with a 35-36—71 yesterday. Frank Albosta and George Thornton shared the lead after the first day of play with 72s.

W. O. Gantt, Agriculture, carded a 78-12—66 to supplant William Cole as gross leader and tie with him in the low net section, of Class B.

Leo Marshall, Army Medical Center, took the C gross honors with a 77, displacing James Snider as well as tying Snider for the net with 66.

Kinder Gains 20th Despite Newhouser's Four-Hitter

Boston, Sept. 14 (AP).—The astonishing Ellis Kinder aided by Ted Williams' thirty-eighth home run of the season, joined the exclusive ranks of 20-game winners today as he pitched Boston's pennant hopeful Red Sox to a 1-0 victory over Detroit's fighting Tigers.

Some fancy fielding, as well as Williams' blast into the screen in left center, aided the 35-year-old Kinder to record his tenth successive decision.

It was Kinder's eighteenth start without a loss as he started two games for which he neither was credited nor charged, and one of his five losses was in relief.

Only one Tiger batter travelled beyond first base, Vic Wertz who opened the seventh with a long double to right center. In all, the Tigers made six hits.

Newhouser pitched well enough to win most any day, allowing only four hits. Except for the sixth inning when Williams homered as the leadoff batter, the Detroit southpaw was in trouble only twice.

Williams' homer enabled him to equal his best previous mark of 38 in 1946 when the Sox won the pennant.

He now has batted in 145 runs, equalling his previous best output in 1939.

World Series Starts October 5 At Home of A. L. Flag Winner

New York, Sept. 14 (U.P.).—The 1949 world series will open in the the park of the American League pennant winner on October 5, barring any playoffs, Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler and the contending clubs announced today.

The opener will be set back accordingly if any playoff games are needed to decide a pennant winner. A single game will decide the winner if the American League race ends in a tie, while a best-of-three series will be used in case of a deadlock in the National League.

The first two games of the annual series will be played in the park of the American League pennant winner. The next three will be held in the National League club's home grounds and the sixth and seventh games, if necessary, in the American League team's park.

If the pennant winners are Eastern clubs, the series will be played on consecutive dates. But if the St. Louis Cardinals win the National League flag and an Eastern club takes the American League pennant there would be two days off for traveling.

In that case, the first two games would be played October 5 and 6 at the American League club's home field with October 7 open for travel. The next three games would be played at Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, on October 8, 9 and 10. If additional games are necessary, they would be played in the American League city on October 12 and 13, with October 11 open for travel.

All Video Networks Will Carry World Series

New York, Sept. 14 (AP).—The 1949 World Series will be viewed by the largest audiences in history.

A. B. Chandler, commissioner of baseball, announced today the fall classic would be carried by all television networks and any independent stations which can be fed by the interconnected system.

Stanford Should Do All Right, Too

Williamson Predicts Good Starts This Week For Oregon, California, Villanova, TCU

By Paul B. Williamson

AMONG the upwards of 150 college football games slated for this week are about 40 affairs involving "names" pretty well known over the nation.

Thus on Friday greener but faster Oregon U. may be extended against more seasoned St. Mary's, but the Webfoots should take the latter's Gaels. Also for Friday, choose Oregon State over UCLA in a toss-up.

On Saturday, the touted Golden Bears of California U. should turn back Santa Clara's very dangerous 1949 edition of Broncos, but there's a spot for an upset right at the start. Texas Christian has too much for Kansas this time, always allowing for hurricane-edge weather which has plagued this hardy perennial intersectional meeting.

Stanford reportedly is even stronger

Kiner Smashes Homer No. 49 but Phils Wallop Pirates, 12-4

Ralph's Pace Only 1 Clout Off Ruth's

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14 (AP).—Home run-hungry Pittsburgh fans had baseball indigestion today. They saw red-hot Pirate Ralph Kiner hit his forty-ninth round-tripper of the season but they also saw homers by Philadelphia's Granville Hamner, Mike Goliat and Clifton Sanicki as the Phillies won, 12-4.

Kiner's homer was a two-run wallop in the sixth high against the football clock atop the scoreboard.

Kiner now is only two shy of his own record of 51 homers in 1947.

He needs seven to tie the National League record of 56 established by Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs in 1930.

Kiner Only 1 Homer Off the Babe's Pace

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—Ralph Kiner is only one home run back of the pace Babe Ruth set in 1927 when he hit his record total of 60.

Ruth hit his fiftieth in his 138th game. Kiner hit No. 49 in his 138th game today.

	Homers	Games	Date	To Play
Kiner	49	138	Sept. 14	16
Ruth	48-49	134	Sept. 7	20

Ruth hit No. 50 Sept. 11 in game No. 138.

My Sweetie, Such Crust Head Cup Regatta's Powerboat Field

By Happy Walker

Walker

ENTRIES ON HAND today at Regatta headquarters indicate that the President's Cup field will equal any previous year and may even surpass last year's record, according to Chuck Gardiner, race chairman.

Entries and starters, however, are two different matters as was the case in last year's Gold Cup at Detroit which had a prerace field of 23 that narrowed down to 9 starters.

On hand will be Jack Schafer's Such Crust, with veteran Danny Arena at the controls. Arena, Last year's winner, is favored to repeat, having set a new American speedboat record of 126.588 miles per hour at Gull Lake, Mich., last month.

This year's Gold Cup winner at Detroit, My Sweetie, owned by Horace Dodge with Bill Cantrell at the wheel, is certain to make the going tough.

A still unproven power wagon is Miss Pepsi V, owned by Detroit's Dossin brothers, whose entry into the G. C. circle three years ago paid off three ways, including the President's Cup.

The present Miss Pepsi has had recent alterations and could be called the mystery boat of the fleet. Chuck Thompson will drive the 1800 h. p. speed monster, hopeful of repeating 1947's victory.

Harold Wilson, by far this year's candidate for Mr. Hardluck, exepects to have his Rolls-Royce, English powered mahogany job on hand. If Wilson's mechanics can fathom the intricacies of the power plant and she is running, here is upsetting material.

Added to this impressive list will be Guy Lombardo and his Tempo VII whose recent Maryland Yacht Club win was his first notable beat since his crackup last year in Detroit.

Cubs Shell Sain, Win, 8-6

Chicago, Sept. 14 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs outlasted the Boston Braves, 8 to 6, today before 2672 paid — smallest Wrigley Field crowd of the season. It closed the season series between the two clubs with the Braves holding a 12-10 margin.

The Cubs routed Johnny Sain with a seventh inning three-run rally that proved decisive.

It was the eleventh victory for Schmitz as against nine losses and the fifteenth defeat for Sain compared to only 10 wins.

pense of the Hose, but he fell considerably short of his goal.

IN SHORT—Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin was among the 1406 who saw the Nats belabored . . . Jim Baumer, Chicago's $65,000 shortstop, made his first major league appearance, but it was probably the shortest in history. He was sent in to replace Appling in the eighth, but retired before the inning started suffering from dizzy spells . . . The White Sox won 15 of their 22 games with the Nats this year . . . George Metkovich deprived himself of a triple in the three-run Sox sixth when he failed to touch second after banging a Hittle pitch against the rightfield wall . . . It also cost the Hose a run as Metkovich's lapse was detected before Rookie Rocco Krsnich who was on first, had crossed home plate . . . If it makes any difference, except to the ball players, the Nats are idle today.

Dot Kirby, Bauer Gain

Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 14.—Marlene Bauer of Los Angeles, national girl's champion, turned in the best round to date in the forty-ninth Women's National Amateur Golf Tournament as she defeated Margaret Gunther of Memphis, Tenn., 1 up. Miss Bauer had a 34-40—74, three over par round, and made the quarterfinals.

Joining the 15-year-old youngster in the quarterfinals tomorrow was Betty Mackinnon of Texarkana, Ark., who ousted Jean Hopkins of Rocky River, Ohio, 6 and 5, and Mrs. Harrison Flippin of Ardmore, 4 and 3.

Dot Kielty eliminated Helen Sigel, Philadelphia, 1948 runner-up, 6 and 5, and followed it up with a 5 and 4 win over Mrs. John Gesser of Philadelphia. Dorothy Kirby advanced with a 1 up win over Mrs. J. B. Tracy, who eliminated defending champion Grace Lenczyk in the first round. Miss Kirby came right back to take a 3 and 2 victory from Marjorie Lindsay, Decatur, Ill.

Fort Meade General Wins Golf Tourney

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 14 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, second Army chief of staff, today won the second annual Armed Forces golf tournament at the Philmont Country Club.

General McClure, Fort Meade (Md.) champion, shot the 6509-yard par 70 course in 38-38—76 to shade two enlisted men from Fort Dix, N. J., by one stroke.

Area Clubs Plan to Take to Air With Sophs Doing the Pitching and Sophomore Paul Yewic will pitch, but passing will be of secondary importance to the Indians as long as Jack Cloud, their rip-snorting, line-piercing fullback is able to ram his way through the defenses.

Only Duke isn't happy about its passing game. Billy Cox, who alternated with Freddie Folger at tailback last year, is still a disappointing chunker.

Cox, a speedster as a runner, has been shoved back to second string by another wing-footed lad, Sophomore Glenn (Runnin') Wild, who was a deadly chunker as a freshman last year.

Granted that Justice has one of the finest pass-catching ends in America teamed with him in Art Weiner, he still must be rated the tops in our neighborhood.

Look what he did as a passer last year. Forgetting the statistics for a moment, he tossed two TD passes as the Tar Heels bopped Tennessee, 14-7, and lucky it was for the 'Heels that Justice was hot as a passer that day because the Vols smeared the Carolina running game.

He connected on 62 of his 122 passes and gained over a half mile in the air for the Chapel Hill Conference champs. His aerials accounted for 12 touchdowns and if Weiner hadn't dropped a Justice toss in the end zone against Oklahoma, Justice would have tossed 13 TD passes and Carolina wouldn't have lost the Sugar Bowl game.

JUSTICE'S ABILITY is too well known to be reviewed again here. Ditto Davis, the GW ace who came by his ranking as No. 6 on offense last year principally because of passing.

The three standout sophs seem to be Navy's Zastrow, Virginia's Lesane, a lefthander by the way; and W. and L.'s Bocetti.

Zastrow, at 200, is built more like the fullback Navy needs to replace Bill Hawkins than the quarterback-passer he is. His deadly arm led last year's Plebes to an unbeaten year, climaxed by a 62-0 trouncing of Duke Frosh.

During that game, Jack Coombs, the old Athletics pitcher now baseball coach at Duke, remarked: "That guy is wastin' his time in football—he's a major league baseball pitcher right now."

W & L hails Sophomore Bocetti "as the best passer to play in Virginia since Sammy Baugh played an exhibition game in Norfolk, Va., four years ago."

THE 18-YEAR-OLD McKeesport, Pa., 180-pounder will long be remembered for his exhibition against the VPI freshman last year. In five minutes, he and End Talbert Trammel wiped out a 13-0 deficit and brought the W & L yearlings, who won the State title, a 20-13 win. He completed 18 of his 22 passes in that game and flipped nine scoring passes in four freshman games.

Lesane is something of a wonder boy. He reported for school two weeks late last year, didn't play as a freshman and in the first scrimmage this Spring got three teeth knocked out.

Hailed as a high school whiz down in Raleigh, he began to show it this fall in practice. His unorthodoxy—he's a southpaw, remember—gives him an advantage at faking and Virginians hope he'll press it beginning September 24 against George Washington.

Brownell's 68 Takes D. C. Medal

Bobby Brownell, Manor Country Club, carded a neat 36-32—68 to take medalist honors in the District Amateur qualifying round at Kenwood Country Club yesterday.

Brownell, bidding for his fifth District Amateur title, the last three in a row, was four strokes better than any of the rest of the 32 who qualified for the match play starting today at 9 a. m.

Closest to the slender Brownell were Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase, 36-36—72; Larry Imhoff, Kenwood Club champ, 36-36—72, and Roger Martino, 35-39—74.

The first and second round matches will be played today with third and fourth round of play tomorrow and the 36-hole championship match Saturday.

Today's pairings and starting times:

Flores, Greco, Moore, Ambrogi Start in Quantico Backfield

Major Hal Harwood, head coach of the Quantico Marines, last night announced the Devildogs' starting line-up for their opening 1949 football game with V.P.I. at George Washington High School's stadium, Alexandria, Saturday, 3 p. m.

Meanwhile, Ralph H. Bogle, jr., president of Alexandria's Chamber of Commerce which is sponsoring the classic, released the schedule of colorful events that will precede the game itself.

Quantico will field Bob McElroy and Bob Smith, ends; Charles Abrahams and Bob Prather, tackles; Jim Wimberg and Bernie Norem, guards; Bill Jesse, center; Rudy Flores, quarterback; George Greco and Bennie Moore, halfbacks, and Dick Ambrogi, fullback.

Harwood lists Smith, who has been hobbled with a lame ankle, a doubtful starter. However, Flores and Ambrogi, who have been sidelined with injuries, reported for yesterday's workout.

The program preceding the game will be launched by Alexandria's 40-piece citizens' band which will represent V. P. I. and take the field at 2 p. m.

Councilman Jack Tulloch will dedicate G. W. High Stadium's new seats representing an expenditure of $37,000 at 2:15 while a cylinder containing all information on Alexandria's bicentennial celebration will be lowered from the base of the flagpole and used in a special ceremony set for 2:25.

The 60-piece Quantico Post bank and two companies of marching Marines will enter and form a Guard of Honor at 2:40. An outstanding personality, to be announced, will supervise the flag raising at 2:50. The kickoff is at 3 p. m.

Tickets now are on sale at Alexandria's George Mason Hotel only.

G. W. Plays Punching Bag for Plebes

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 14 (AP).—George Washington University's injury-pocked football squad visited the Naval Academy this afternoon and had to spend every minute defending itself against Plebes.

That was exactly what Coach Bo Rowland wanted.

But in true coaching character, he admitted "no encouragement" after 1 hour and 40 minutes of scrimmaging against five Navy Plebe elevens.

The Colonials remained exclusively on defense against the midshipmen's T-styled offensive. All but Duke among George Washington's nine foes this autumn employ the "T" and Rowland accepted promptly when Navy extended the invitation to bring his club over.

Admiral Goodwin Shoots Golf Ace

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 14 (AP).—Rear Admiral Hugh H. Goodwin, USN, Atlantic fleet officer who has sided with Capt. John Crommelin in charges against the Nation's unified defense chiefs, scored a hole in one on the Naval Base Golf Course today.

Crommelin teed off against Navy "nibblers" Saturday, and Goodwin backed him up Tuesday.

Navy men here took Goodwin's hole in one, scored on the 150-yard No. 5 hole, as a good omen.

Duke Aumar Scores Third Win in Row in Marlboro Feature

3-Year Old Survives Foul Claim

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Marlboro, Md., Sept. 14.—August Rogan's Duke Aumar, a fleet 3-year-old who won his first race at the recent Timonium meeting, made it three straight victories here todoy.

The son of Air Flame had to survive a foul claim however to keep his name in the top slot. The young gelding finished a neck in advance of Mrs. John Jenkins, jr.'s O'Give, piloted by Jockey Emilo Carrillo who made the objection. Third money in the field of seven went to Mrs. H. B. Donegan's Gay Beauty.

Carrillo contended Duke Aumar carried him out through the stretch but the stewards didn't see it the rider's way and the result was allowed to stand after the patrol judge at the head of the stretch was called into conference.

In addition to the feature, Jockey Regalbuto booted home Mrs. Henry Ober's Perhaps in the fourth race. The $6.60 shot led the Shangrila Stable's Snowstorm and R. L. Hall, jr's Good Pick to the wire.

B-CC Coach Switches to 'T'

Fehrman Has Onslow As Passer

The T formation has made another conquest—Ray Fehrman, perfectionist football coach at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High. After his team compiled a "dismal" 1948 record of eight wins and one loss, Fehrman chucked the single wing out the window and is switching to the T.

What made last year's record so distasteful was that one loss, a 32-0 setback, inflicted by B-CC's most bitter rival, Montgomery Blair in the last game.

During the summer, Fehrman "brooded" and pondered a change from the single wing.

Still he wasn't sure about making the sudden change. What turned him toward the T again when practice started 10 days ago was the smallness of his team, which definitely is not built for the power plays of the single wing.

Rickie Onslow, a fair to middling wingback last year, provided the clincher. During an experiment with the T, Ray discovered that Rickie was a natural quarterback, a lanky 6-footer, smart, calculating and a good passer. So B-CC will use the T.

The Barons are strongest in the backfield. Taking the handoffs from Onslow will be Halfbacks Doug Sawyer and Jack O'Neill, whose brother Pat recently won a baseball scholarship to Notre Dame. Jack will do the punting. At fullback is the team's hardest runner, Johnny Buell.

Center Art Crago and End Wally Young are the only regular holdovers on the line. They'll help indoctrinate End Bob Taylor, a good pass catcher, Tackles Miley Mathis and Ken Lewis and Guards Dave Rice and Jim Jacobson.

Bill Bennings

AT MARLBORO

DEAR FOLKS: Baseball fans will remember "Colonel Throttlebottom" Walley the telegraph operator for Arch McDonald's broadcast of out-of-town games for more than a decade. Walley is clicking off the racing charts to The Washington Post now and says he likes racing but his heart is in baseball. However, he made that statement just after his second horse in the daily double ran out of the money. Despite some poor breaks on the weather, the betting here is topping last year in every race, being up as much as $11,000 on some events.

However, the management will be pleased if the average is above last year because this meeting has only one Saturday as compared to two in 1948. See you on the rail . . . BILL.

For Non-Residents

Maryland Seeks to Up Outdoor Fees

By Ralph Murdock

THE STATE GAME and Inland Fish Commission has recommended to the legislative council increases in nonresident hunting and fishing license fees and county resident hunting licenses in Maryland.

Murdock

The proposals would increase the nonresident fishing license from $5.50 to $10 and the nonresident hunting license from $15.50 to $20. The county resident hunting license would go from $1.25 to $1.75.

Director Ernest A. Vaughn of the Department of Game and Inland Fish said Virginia had increased its nonresident fishing fee to $10 and said the action had "created a heavy increase in fishing pressure" by District of Columbia and Pennsylvania anglers of lakes, rivers and streams in central and western Maryland.

Where to Go

Fishing suggestions for the weekend:

Rockfish—Large size. Rock Pile near Point Patience. Drift whole soft shell crabs at night.

Small size—Holland Point area. Best results obtained by trolling with White Bucktail lures and small spoons with no weights.

Bluefish—Point Lookout to Solomon's Island. All white Lusby lures, size 2-0 are good.

Trout—Lower Potomac River at Blackistone Island and Cornfield Harbor. Peeler crabs get the best results.

Spot—Herring Bay area and lower Potomac River. You can't substitute worms for bait. Still quite plentiful.

Note—Crabs are unusually large and plentiful in the Upper Chesapeake Bay.

WILLIAM W. EATON and his wife, Patty, made the catch of the month by landing 22 big rockfish. And we do mean "big," for they weighed from 3½ to 9 pounds each.

The whoppers were hauled in at the "Rock Pile" near the mouth of the Patuxent River just off Point Patience. The anglers used whole soft snell crabs for bait and floated them from the stern of their boat without a sinker. It's the best method for enticing the big ones.

Jack Marshalls, the first, Ernie Fox, Bill Kinkens, Frank Hotel and Stanley Keracofe picked a winner when they selected Blackstone Island for their piscatorial endeavors. In four hours they nabbed 53 trout which averaged 2 pounds, 47 spot the big size and a lone croaker.

The open season on squirrels starts today in Maryland. Limit is six per day.

Devitt Prep Can't Afford Any Injury

Devitt Coach Bob Killen says his boys might do all right if nobody gets hurt, but if there are any injuries it will be "awfully bad."

His concern seems justified when you realize that he has only 18 boys on his entire squad; and with that small a squad they all become "key men."

Gary Jawish, 16-year-old guard who tips the scales at 245 is the biggest boy on the squad and one of the best linemen at Devitt or anywhere in the city. He'll bulwark a line that averages 193.

The other guard post will be held down by George Strong with Jim Shaub in reserve. Tackles are few and far between, the squad boasts only two, Tom Rodier and Bob Wohlforth.

Ends are plentiful, for a Devitt team. There are four out for the team, Bob Scally, Ray Berger, Gil Bogley and Don Ray.

At center, Devitt is well covered wth Klem Klemicwicz and Joe Rollis.

In the backfield, Killen has Ray Quinn, Jack Parker, Tom Hunt, John Neumann, John Kelly, Bill Rafferty and George Goto. Hunt and Neumann should be the best of this small but select group.

With Judge's Wife

Only Spying, Lawyer Tells Georgia Trial

Atlanta, Sept. 14 (AP).—A defense attorney tried today to establish that a prominent Atlanta lawyer was "out to waylay" Judge Robert Carpenter. The judge is on trial on charges of attempting to murder the lawyer, once his friend.

Tangled in the complex story are the 44-year-old judge; his divorce-seeking wife, Helen, 39; Mrs. Carpenter's attorney, John Lockwood, 53, and Mrs. Estelle Manful.

During a long cross-examination, Lockwood admitted he was armed and looking for Judge Carpenter the night of the shooting. Mrs. Carpenter was with Lockwood.

Defense Attorney Ellis Barrett demanded: "Mr. Witness, instead of Judge Carpenter waylaying you, you were out to waylay the judge, weren't you?"

Lockwood denied it, asserting he and Mrs. Carpenter were hoping to find the judge and Mrs. Manful together in a tourist court. This, he added, could have been used by Mrs. Carpenter in her divorce suit.

The State charges that the Fulton County (Atlanta) civil court judge waylaid the attorney the night of July 27 and shot four bullets in his face.

track but what caused it is unexplained.

This boosted the mutuels total to $21, hence the first digit would be a "1."

The second race produced a "3" and the third race a "1."

Thus the number, with the correction made, would be "131." Most numbers men paid off on this number but it was reported that some bookmakers told their customers there would be no payoff until they had seen the official prices in the Daily Racing Form.

It was erroneously reported at first that the photo finish caused the mixup. Not so, said one source, it was the false price flash from the track.

Yessir, that's why bookmakers get gray, and rich.

Morgenthau Better

New ork, Sept. 14 (AP).—Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry M. Morgenthau, jr., has been discharged as a patient from New York Hospital where he was treated for possible pneumonia. However, he is remaining as a guest in the hospital to be near his wife, who is a patient.

Navy Denies Appeal Of Imprisoned Officer

Portland, Me., Sept. 14 (AP).—A former naval officer's plea for release from the Portsmouth, N. H., naval prison has been turned down. Federal Judge John D. Clifton, jr., denied yesterday a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Owen O. Hunsaker of Washington, D. C.

Hunsaker, who was a lieutenant (junior grade), claimed a general court-martial lacked jurisdiction to try him on two o fthree specivcations in a charge of "scandalous conduct tending to the destruction of god morals." He was convicted a year ago and sentenced to prison for two years.

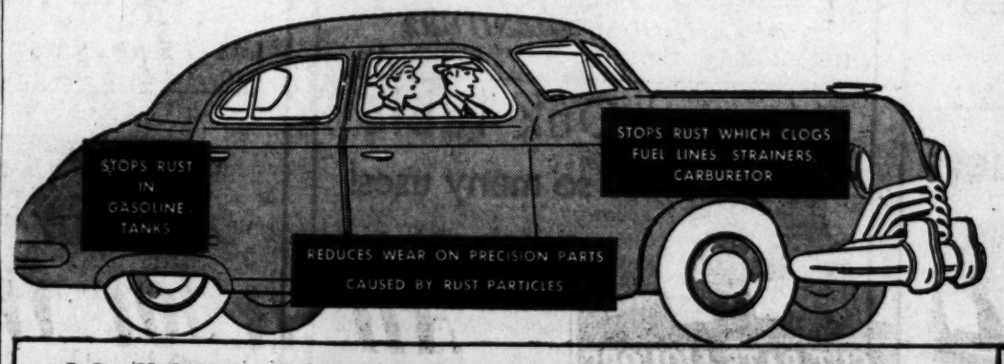
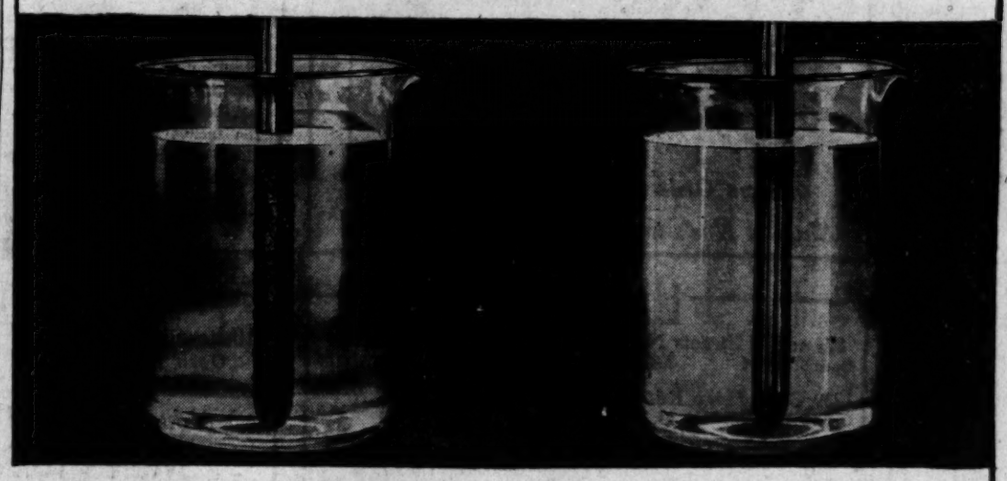
ANTI-RUST
GASOLINE
CONTAINS RD-119* New Sinclair Scientific Discovery That Stops Rust



STOPS RUST IN GASOLINE TANKS
STOPS RUST WHICH CLOGS FUEL LINES, STRAINERS, CARBURETOR
REDUCES WEAR ON PRECISION PARTS CAUSED BY RUST PARTICLES

EVERY CAR NEEDS new Sinclair Gasoline with RD-119 to protect the fuel system against rust and corrosion. Here's why: All gasolines contain minute quantities of water caused by moisture condensation. Result: Rust forms inside your gasoline tank and non-ferrous parts of your fuel system corrode. To prevent rust and corrosion, the new miracle chemical RD-119, in Sinclair Gasolines, coats the inside of your car's fuel system with an invisible protective layer.

48 HOUR TEST PROVES VALUE OF RD-119



RUSTED IN ORDINARY GASOLINE—This steel rod is heavily coated with rust after immersion in ordinary gasoline for only 48 hours in prescribed laboratory test. In test, a small proportion of water was added to the gasoline because all gasoline contains minute quantities of water caused by moisture condensation.
RD-119—GREATEST GASOLINE DEVELOPMENT IN YEARS

PROTECTED IN NEW SINCLAIR GASOLINE—This steel rod shows no rust after immersion in Sinclair Gasoline containing RD-119 in test identical to one at left. In the same way, RD-119 in the new Sinclair Gasoline stops rust and corrosion in the gasoline tank and fuel system of your car.
ONLY SINCLAIR GIVES YOU THIS PROTECTION

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Civil Service Holds Out No High Hopes for Jobs For Laid-Off Employes

Civil Service promises to do its best, but it's downright pessimistic over finding other Federal jobs for laid-off career employes. It released a statement yesterday that said in part:

"The greatest obstacle in placing career employes at present is the fact that many agencies, for reasons of economy, are making relatively few appointments and comparatively few war-service and temporary employes remain in the service. Most of those remaining are either serving in positions which career employes will not accept because of the low pay or for which they cannot qualify because the positions are highly qualified.

"The commission believes that career employes should be aware of these factors and particularly that it is sometimes advisable for displaced workers to be willing to accept a somewhat lower salary than the one previously received. In the past, there have ben a great many instances where additional displaced career employes could have been placed had they been willing to accept the salaries which were offered."

In other words, the commission advises the laid-off employes to accept lower-grade jobs offered them if they wish to remain in Government.

In its statement, the commission explained that there would be two main types of preference for the jobless career people, which are: (1) to recall them to former or similar jobs, and (2) to qualify through Civil Service tests for other jobs and be given priority for placements.

The commission's examining division, headed by hard-working W. A. McCoy, will undertake the task of finding as many jobs as possible for the unemployed career people. President Truman directed the commission to help the laid-off people find other jobs.

George L. Bell is to be appointed commerical attache of our Paris embassy. He recently resigned as director of Commerce's Office of International Trade . . . William Shannon, a former Navy officer and employe, has been appointed an electronics engineer in the guided missile laboratory of the Bureau of Standards here . . . Clifford A. Hahn has been appointed director of Commerce's regional office in Philadelphia. He formerly served here in both the Budget Bureau and the Commerce Department . . . Dillard E. Bird, national president of the Society for Advancement of management, will speak tonight at the first fall meeting of the local chapter at the Willard Hotel.

STORY: At the Pentagon yesterday was one office torn up by the movers. The Navy, it seems, was moving into the office and the Air Force was being moved out of it. Neither, apparently, liked the arrangement because on the door was this sign:

"Navy & Air Force business as usual—during altercations."

AWARD: Any Federal employe under 32 who has demonstrated unusual ability in public administration will be eligible for the William A. Jump Memorial Award. The award, the first of its kind, is to be a memorial to the late William A. Jump, Agriculture's director of finance for many years.

Each employe selected for the award will be given a gold key and a certificate. The award also will carry funds for those winners who wish to obtain additional education in public administration.

The fund, contributed by friends of Mr. Jump, is managed by M. L. Wilson, Ralph S. Roberts, W. Arthur Minor, and Earl W. Loveridge of the Agriculture Department; Elmer Staats of the Budget Bureau, and Daniel W. Bell of the American Security & Trust Co. Agriculture Secretary Brannan made the appointments.

NOTES: The three members of the new War Claims Commission were sworn in yesterday. They are: Daniel F. Cleary of VA; David N. Lewis of Justice, and Mrs. Georgia L. Lusk, a former Democratic member of Congress from New Mexico. The commission still hasn't been assigned office space. The State Department is handling its administrative duties for the time being. Thomas W. S. Davis yesterday was nominated by the President to be Assistant Commerce Secretary for Air. He's a public relations man here for the United Airlines.

The graduates received a pin, as well as diploma, from Superintendent Elizabeth Van Wagner

Arlington Ends Short Sessions In 13 Schools

Only about 1000 Arlington youngsters are on half-day sessions this year, compared to "1600 or 1700" last year, county school officials estimated yesterday.

The half-day sessions, in effect for all county first and second graders up until this year, have been eliminated in 13 elementary schools, according to Assistant School Superintendent Charles Walsh.

Due to lack of classroom space, the part-time primary sessions are still necessary for all first and second graders at 10 schools, and for some primary youngsters at three other schools, Walsh said.

Third graders at one school—the Shirley Elementary School—are also on the part-time day, he said.

Schools with the full-day primary schedule for all classes are: Barcroft, Cherrydale, Nellie Custis, Patrick Henry, Hume, Stonewall Jackson, James Madison, James Monroe, Thomas Nelson Page, Peyton Randolph, Hoffman-Boston, Kemper, and John Langston.

The John Marshall, Fontaine Maury, and Pickett schools have full-day sessions for some primary classes, but half-day programs for others.

Enrollment in the county schools to date is 13,799, Walsh said yesterday, with the total expected to climb to 14,000 by October. Included in this figure are 8789 elementary students, 2804 junior high school students, and 2206 senior high school students.

In addition, about 200 adults have enrolled for night classes at Washington-Lee High School.

Arnold Named As Assistant U. S. Attorney

William P. Arnold, 40, of 1601 Caton pl. nw., has been appointed an Assistant United States Attorney here, it was disclosed yesterday.

Arnold

He currently is aiding in civil cases in District Court but has not been given a permanent assignment.

He is a former Navy lieutenant commander, holder of an LL. B. degree from National University and was associated with the law firm of Cummings, Stanley, Truitt and Cross. He is married and has a daughter.

D. C. Group to Complete Plans for U. N. Day

A meeting of the District of Columbia Citizens' Committee for United Nations Day will be at 2:30 p. m. Friday in the board room of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 700 Jackson pl. nw., Chairman Melvin D. Hildreth announced yesterday.

Plans will be completed not only for celebration of United Nations Day October 24, but for a week of observances commemorating the fourth anniversary of the organization of the United Nations beginning October 17, Hildreth said.

Judge Refuses To Quash Service Of Divorce Suit

Judge Matthew F. McGuire of District Court refused yesterday to quash service of a divorce suit on a man who claimed the suit papers were served on him while he was in his estranged wife's apartment talking over a possible reconciliation.

The suit charged desertion and was filed by Mrs. Florence C. Smith, 4007 Connecticut ave nw. Her husband is Melvin C. Smith, an American now residing in Paris, France, he says.

Smith contended that on August 12, he came to Mrs. Smith's home specifically to discuss a possible reconciliation. He said that during the talk, a deputy marshal came out of a bedroom and handed him the suit.

Mrs. Smith, through attorney Lewis H. Shapiro, denied any impropriety. She said Smith came to this country on other business and never intended discussing a reunion.

Young Democrats Favor Commission on Rights

The District Young Democratic Club last night went on record as unanimously favoring the establishment of a Commission of Human Rights for Washington at its regular monthly meeting at Pierce Hall.

The group named Kay Glass as national committeewoman and David Bunn as national committeeman. Ten delegates were chosen for the national convention of the Young Democrats to be held in Chattanooga November 17.

District Urged To Crack Down On Vandals

The Commissioners will be urged to crack down on increasing vandalism in vacant buildings, especially schools, within the District.

Assistant Engineer Commissioner Thomas Hayes 3d said last night that the Commissioners' Regulations Advisory Committee agreed yesterday to recommend more "teeth" in the law to step up prosecution of vandals.

"The situation seems to be getting worse," said Hayes. "Teenage boys are walking into barricaded buildings, stripping off the fixings, breaking windows and sometimes throwing rough drinking parties."

Specifically, he said the Commissioners would be asked to amend District regulations to require owners of vacated buildings to lock them securely, to notify police that the buildings are empty and to make it illegal to enter barricaded premises.

Hayes explained that there is no law against entering vacated buildings and that the property owner must register a complaint of breaking and entering before police may prosecute.

Paul Chalupsky, District property officer, said he was "at a loss for words to describe the extremes to which people have destroyed school buildings waiting to be razed."

Minnesotan Named to Post At GWU Hospital

Fred A. Menk, superintendent of Kahler Hospital in Rochester, Minn., has been named assistant superintendent of George Washington University Hospital, it was announced yesterday. He will begin his duties September 15.

Menk

Menk, a native of St. Paul, Minn., has completed studies at the University of Minnesota in hospital administration. He was formerly assistant superintendent of Worrall Hospital in Rochester, and prior to that was associated with the industrial medical division of the Federal Cartridge Corporation in New Brighton, Minn., and the Department of Public Welfare, Suffolk County, N. Y.

The new assistant superintendent and Mrs. Menk will live at 2223 H st. nw. He succeeds Avery Millard, who resigned.

Young Democrats Fill 2 Positions

Charles B. Markham, jr., of Durham, N. C., yesterday was appointed executive secretary of the Young Democratic Clubs of America.

Miss Clare Jones of Santa Barbara, Calif., was named executive director of the women's division of the Young Democratic organization.

Markham, 23, has been publicity director of the clubs since March, 1948. He is a graduate of Duke University and formerly was a reporter on the Charlotte, N. C., News.

Oldsters Here Form Group to Seek Out Work Plan to Set Up Nationwide Organization

A group of Washington oldsters who think they can still work met last night to do something about it—and got results even quicker than any of them had hoped.

Before the meeting at a tourist house at 1907 G st. nw., was half over, someone called up and asked if there were "any old salts about" who could help him build a boat.

"I can't pay very high wages," said the caller, who preferred not to identify himself, "but I'm building a boat and I need some help."

With this note of encouragement, the group of about 25 proceeded to lay the groundwork for what they hope will become a national organization through which "1000 old men will be put to work within the next few months."

Names for the budding plan were suggested. "The Senior Progressive League," or "The Senior Self-Help Association"—but they were deferred in favor of more spadework.

One man suggested that they "put many strong, lively words on handbills printed by the best printer in town and spread them all over." This also was deferred.

They elected a temporary chairman and a temporary secretary and when someone asked what about a treasurer, they agreed almost unanimously that they really didn't need one yet.

Appropriately enough, the chairman selected was Otis J. Bouma, 70, at whose home the meeting was held and who thought up the idea.

Bouma, who used to be legislative representative here for the Townsend Plan before he quit five years ago because the organization was "political," sees "a great need" in this country to save "wasted manpower."

Bouma still has "implicit faith in the fundamental principles of the Townsend Plan," which once urged a $200 a month pension for all over 60 which had to be spent in the same month it was received. But he wants the new organization to emphasize self-help.

Above all, he says, he wants the organization to keep out of politics and religion.

The temporary secretary will be Nathan Boone Williams, a 76-year-old lawyer, who lives at 3917 McKinley st. nw.

Among those present was Russell G. Merryman, 70, of 4714 15th st. nw., a Government auditor recently retired "on the magnificent sum of $732 a year." "I'm still too young to quit," he said, "and I'm not going to do it."

"It's not how old you are, it's how young you feel," insisted Joseph H. Gerone, 70, of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw., who came in his two-tone blue private policeman's uniform.

They'll get together again next Wednesday evening at a time and place yet to be decided.

Youth Held In Hit-Run Road Death

Marylander Also Accused of Auto Theft; Companion Similarly Charged

A 19-year-old youth was charged yesterday with manslaughter and using a stolen auto in a recent hit-and-run traffic death in nearby Maryland.

Killed in the collision which occurred September 12, was Clarence Leonard Reh, 17, of 1300 52d ave., Hillside, Md. He was driving a station wagon which left the road after being sideswiped on the Marlboro pike, police said. Police at first believed that loose gravel had caused the wreck.

However, yesterday they charged William A. Strine, 19, of 621 60th ave., Capitol Heights, Md., with the death. He was held under $1500 bond on charges of larceny of an automobile, manslaughter by auto, reckless driving by colliding and leaving the scene of an accident after a person was injured. Also charged with the larceny count is Raymond Lawrence King, jr., of 826 61st ave., Capitol Heights.

A hearing in the case is scheduled for Friday in Police Court in Upper Marlboro.

Police Lieut. Elon Turner and Detectives Vincent Free and Wilson Purdy said that Strine and King stole the car on Saturday night from a lot near the Tick Tock Tavern, Riggs rd. and University Lane. The vehicle belongs to Captain Robert Jelland, USAF, 4805 Riggs rd.

Auto Injures Man Running To Catch Car

A race to catch a streetcar resulted yesterday in critical injuries for 61-year-old Harrison Smith, 1766 Willard st. nw.

Smith was running across 18th st. nw. in the 2000 block when he was struck by an auto. Police said the auto was driven by Ernest E. Byrd, 29, 1763 Columbia rd. owner of the Town and Country Club, 3135 K st. nw.

Smith was rushed to Emergency Hospital where attaches said he has a compound fracture of the right leg and a fractured skull.

No charges were placed against Byrd.

In Alexandria a four-year-old girl escaped with a broken collarbone yesterday afternoon when an auto struck her tricycle and dragged her 13 feet.

Alexandria police said the girl, Constance Forman, was riding her tricycle in the street near her home at 605 Beverly dr. when she was struck by a car driven by John W. Vermilyea, 37, 3346 S. Wakefield st., Arlington.

Both Constance and the tricycle were wedged under the right front part of the car, police said, and dragged along until Vermilyea could stop. Vermilyea, a Western Union employe, told police he hadn't seen the girl before the accident happened.

Navy Officer's Wife Killed in Auto Crash

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Madelaine Inman, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Walter G. Inman, 2310 9th st. N., Arlington, in an automobile accident Tuesday somewhere in Illinois.

Details were sketchy, but apparently the couple was en route to the husband's home in Iowa when the accident occurred. Reports said Mrs. Inman was driving, and that Inman escaped injury. They both worked here in the Naval Communications Station.

Part-Time Bosses Ruled Ineligible To Cast Union Vote

The National Labor Relations Board ruled 3 to 2 yesterday that a worker serving one day a week as a supervisor is on the boss' side and therefore ineligible to vote for or against a union.

The decision upset a three-year-old board ruling that a part-time supervisor was eligible to vote with rank-and-file employes if he spent half or more of his working time in nonsupervisory duties.

NLRB Chairman Paul M. Herzog and Member John M. Houston voted against the change.

The NLRB majority was composed of James J. Reynolds, jr., Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray.

Bishop Walsh Named Coadjutor For Youngstown

Pope Pius XII has named the Most Rev. Emmet M. Walsh Bishop of Charleston, S. C., to be Titular Bishop of Rhaedestus and Coadjutor Bishop with right of succession to the Most Rev. James A. McFadden Bishop of Youngstown, Ohio.

Bishop Walsh has been a member of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and Episcopal chairman of its legal department for the past two years.

The appointment was announced here by the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States.

Lawyer Heads Cathedral Fund Drive

A. Lloyd Symington, Washington attorney, will head the annual sustaining and building continuation fund drive of the Washington Cathedral in this area, it was announced yesterday.

Symington

The drive, which will get under way October 10 and continue through November 10, will coincide with a Nation-wide campaign for $375,000 for Cathedral support.

Cochairmen of the national fund appeal are the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, and Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Japan and president of the National Cathedral Association.

Goal for the Washington area, according to Symington, is $50,000, which is to be raised by volunteer solicitation committees. Of this sum, $35,000 will be used for annual operation of the cathedral, and $15,000 for construction needs.

Symington said that money used for the sustaining will be needed for maintenance of the Cathedral library, garden and grounds, and for the Cathedral Choral Society.

The building continuation fund "guarantees that the stones shall keep rising without interruption," he said, adding that Cathedral officials hope to continue work on the South Transept until it can be roofed over to provide seats for an additional 400 worshippers.

Symington, a partner in the law firm of Fowler, Hawes & Symington, has offices at 1703 K st. nw. He is a member of Christ Episcopal Church in Georgetown, and lives at 3030 Chain Bridge rd. nw.

Bostonian Named Publicity Director At Johns Hopkins

Joseph B. Kelly, of Boston, has been appointed director of public relations for Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, Dr. Edwin L. Crosby, director of the hospital, announced yesterday.

Kelly succeeds James E. Hague, who resigned to become assistant city editor of The Washington Post.

A former newspaperman, radio news editor, and special writer, Kelly has been engaged in public relations work for the past 10 years, and is currently public relations director for the Massachusetts State Airport Management Board.

Law Tutor Sues as VA Cuts Tuition

Walter J. Newlon, head of a law review firm here, has sued 15 June graduates of his course for $200 each as the result of a tuition slash last month by the Veterans Administration.

Although the 15 graduates began classes March 28 and completed them June 22, the VA informed Newlon on August 23 that it had cut from $250 to $50 the tuition it would pay for each veteran. Newlon signed a retroactive contract with the VA on this basis.

Newlon, whose school is at 2107 Pennsylvania ave. nw., now seeks to recover the $200 difference from each student.

His suits are based, he said, on contracts each of the 15 veterans signed with him. They read, in part: "It is understood by me (the student) that tuition is at the rate of $250 which will be paid by me."

Newlon said when the veterans produced VA certificates of eligibility, he billed the agency for the tuitions.

Of the tuition slash, he said: "I think they (the VA) is gypping these boys."

Joseph W. Creagh, 42, of 248 N. Thomas st., Arlington, one of the graduates, asserted yesterday he and his classmates entered Newlon's school—which prepares lawyers for the Virginia bar examination—in the belief that the VA would pay the $250 tuition as it had in the past.

"A lot of them wouldn't have taken the course," he said, "if they had known this would happen."

The 15 veterans, all of whom, Newlon said, passed the Virginia bar exams, will answer the suits September 29. Several are represented by Attorney William C. Nemeth.

Tree Population Shows Drop of 58 During Year

The District's tree population fell off slightly last year, Municipal tree custodian John W. Batson reported yesterday.

Batson's annual report for the year ended last July 1, shows that 2216 trees were planted around the city, while 2274 trees were removed during the same period.

His report to the Commissioners further indicated that preventive spraying against the Dutch Elm disease was producing satisfactory results.

Dental Aides to Meet

The District of Columbia Dental Assistants Society will meet at 8 p. m. today in Rothstein's Auditorium, 1722 I st. nw. Miss Mary Virginia Allen of 5040 1st st. nw. will begin her new term as president.

Death of Shooting Victim Caught in Fence Held Accident

Death of a 54-year-old Fairfax County man whose body was found entangled in a fence near his home late Tuesday was ruled accidental last night by County Medical Examiner Nelson Podolnick.

Curtis

County police said the body of Charles A. Curtis was found about 500 feet from his home—near Igloo Village a mile west of Falls Church—by a neighbor who had heard a shot.

Curtis was lying in a little-used road, police said, shot behind the right ear. A .22 caliber rifle with which Curtis had left home to hunt squirrels was found beside the body.

Curtis' right foot was tangled up in a woven wire fence which extended across the road, police said. The fence had been pushed down nearly to the ground by cars passing over it.

Curtis, who moved here from Parkersburg, W. Va., seven years ago, had worked as a specialist with the United States Tariff Commission and more recently was a salesman for an Arlington real estate firm.

The police report showed he had not worked since June.

Surviving are his wife and two children, Charles A., jr., 15, and Caroline, 16.

Oyster Navy Patrols River On Eve of Campaign

Both States Ask Peaceful Season, Meanwhile Gearing For Any Trouble

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Cobb's Island, Md., Sept. 14. Maryland's "Oyster Navy," hoping for a peaceful cruise, was patrolling the tidewater of the Potomac River tonight primed for oyster poachers before the season opens officially at dawn tomorrow.

Capt. Chester C. Cullison, in command of the three police boats, said the prospect of bad weather tonight promises little excitement before daybreak. Black clouds hung over both banks of the river at 6 p. m.

The "Oyster Navy" was below strength for the opening of the bivalve season. One of the four boats in the fleet is under repair at Colton's Point.

The traditional gunplay that accompanies Maryland's annual hunt for poachers and Virginia oystermen who use illegal dredging devices will also be toned down this year according to statements by both sides in the controversy.

A Maryland official yesterday told a reporter that shooting was to be avoided because "no haul of oysters is worth endangering a man's life."

Engineer Held After His Kin Are Injured

A 42-year-old engineer was charged with assault with a deadly weapon last night after a domestic squabble which sent his wife and mother-in-law to the hospital.

Precinct Detective Benson Taylor who investigated said he was called to the home of the man, Frank Tydings, employed on repairs at the Capitol, at 5430 Carolina place, nw. after neighbors had complained.

Taylor said that Tydings, according to his wife, had attacked her and her 72-year-old mother with a knife and ice pick. The wife, Ruth, also 42, a medium-sized brunette, had wrenched the weapons away from her husband, but then they were both beaten by him, the officer reported.

A scout car took Mrs. Tydings and her mother, Mrs. Elnore Aull to Georgetown Hospital. The mother was admitted, treated for lacerations of the face and head, and X-rayed for a broken hip. Dr. Paul Terry, staff doctor, said her condition was undetermined pending the X-ray pictures. The daughter was released after being treated for multiple lacerations.

Tydings was charged and taken to a precinct cell for the night.

Police Block Off Area After Water Main Breaks

Police blocked off streets near the Government Central Heating plant at 27th and K sts nw. early today when a water main leading to the plant burst, causing a minor flood.

Included in the area blocked off was a portion of Rock Creek Parkway.

Firemen were called to the scene to check a possible explosion which the Fire Marshal's office feared might come from the heated boilers reacting to lack of water. Cause of the break was not immediately determined.

Policemen in rubber boots directed traffic, while heating and water experts worked on checking the flow, which was finally stopped when water was cut off at the pumping station at 2nd and Bryant st. nw.

High Court Members Pay Respects to Justice Rutledge

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

LAST RITES—Supreme Court police carry the casket of Justice Wiley B. Rutledge from All Souls Unitarian Church yesterday. Honorary pallbearers are (from left) Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson, Associate Justices Felix Frankfurter and Harold Burton; James F. Byrnes, former Associate Justice; Associate Justices Tom Clark, Robert Jackson and Hugo Black; and Deputy Clerk Reginald C. Dilli. Cremation followed the funeral services

Rutledge Rites Attended by High Officials

Before a gathering of New Deal and Fair Deal figures, the late Justice Wiley B. Rutledge yesterday was eulogized as a man who "taught us justice lives not only through laws but through men."

The Rev. Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Souls' (Unitarian) Church, where the jurist worshiped, conducted the services at the church. Rutledge, 55, died last Saturday at York, Me., after a two-week illness.

Dr. Davies recalled that the jurist about a year ago said in his presence that "we shall only survive if we deserve to survive; and only by deserving freedom shall we remain free."

Those whom he taught, said Dr. Davies, will remember him because under his influence they "came to know that all the provisions of human society should serve human necessity; that although it is fitting that law should be called majestic, yet its majesty should not be at the expense of its ministry and that between law and justice there is likely to be conflict wherever this truth is not perceived."

In addition to Mrs. Rutledge and the justice's son, two daughters and other relatives, those attending the services included Chief Justice Vinson, Justices Black, Frankfurter, Jackson, Burton and Clark and former Justice Byrnes.

Others were Clark Clifford, counsel to President Truman; Charles G. Ross, secretary to the President; Attorney General McGrath and D. Lawrence Groner, retired Chief Justice of the court of Appeals, who headed that bench during Ruthledge's service there.

Among the New Deal figures also at the services were Harold Ickes, Thomas Corcoran, Benjamin Cohen, Clifford Durr, Wendell Berge, Paul A. Porter, Thurman Arnold and Charles Fahy.

Cremation followed the services. The family has not decided on disposition of the ashes.

Cheerful Right Up to the End

Boy Veteran Commended by Air Force Dies at 15 of Cancer

Billy Edward Oxford was only 15 when he died, but he had proved himself a man in a man's world.

Oxford

Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland E. Oxford, died Tuesday at his home 6511 Alleghany ave., Takoma Park. Doctors said he had a rare type of cancer of the stomach. The disease was diagnosed about a month before his death.

The youth, who would have been 16 on November 22, enlisted in the Air Force in February, 1948, when only 14 and served nearly a year in Alaska until he was discharged on his mother's request.

He was honorably discharged last May and praised by his commanding officer in the following words, his family said:

"You're a fine man, Billy, and if all the boys had what you have we'd have a fine Air Force."

Billy first began to complain of stomach pains last July, according to members of his family, and an operation was required.

His father said yesterday that Billy must have known that death was near, but that he never complained.

Doctors diagnosed the youth's malady as lymphosarcoma, or cancer of the lymph glands of the body. The disease, though rare, is one of the most malignant forms of cancer, bringing death sometimes within weeks of its recognition.

In Oxford's case, the disease was diagnosed in exploratory operation about one month before death when the youth complained of stomach pains. A characteristic tumor was removed from the stomach, but physicians said that by then there were probably hundreds of similar ones throughout the lymph channels of his body.

The tumors, in inestimable numbers, develop within the body to block off lymph channels to the bloodstream, causing death, physicians explained.

"Billy was cheerful and happy right up to the end," he said.

The youth was an avid fan and follower of radio quiz contests, his father said, and discussed the prizes he could have won even as he was slowly sinking on Tuesday.

Large for his age (5 feet 11 inches tall) and quiet and reserved in manner, Billy was readily accepted into the service with his parents approval, the family said.

Enlisting at Fort Meade, he received his training at Lockland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, and was sent to Fairbanks, Alaska, in June, 1948.

His discharge followed a letter from his mother to his commanding officer requesting that he be sent home because of his age and her "lonesomeness for him." The response to her request included a letter describing Billy's fine service record.

Billy was born in Washington and attended St. Michael's Parochial School in Silver Spring.

Funeral services will be held at St. Michael's Catholic Church at 9 a. m. Friday with one of Billy's closest friends, Father Francis X. Lannon, former boys director at St. Michael's, officiating. Father Lannon is now assistant pastor at St. Martin's Church.

Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery with full military honors.

In addition to his parents, Billy is survived by four brothers, Douglas and Spencer, both stationed at Walter Reed Hospital; Warren of the Allegheny ave. address and Roland C. of 2129 18th st. nw., and two sisters, Susan and Nancy of the Allegheny ave. address.

British Say Jet Climbs At 2 Miles a Minute

London, Sept. 24 (AP).—Britain now has a jet fighter that can climb to 40,000 feet in 4 minutes, it was announced today.

The plane is the two-jet Gloster Meteor, powered with a new engine, the Rolls Royce Avon.

Its 2-mile-a-minute climbing performance means a drastic cut in the advantage of high flying bombers over defending fighters in any war of the future.

Schools Insured For $5.99 Million

A new comprehensive school insurance program, costing $11,202.36 annually, will be put into effect in Arlington within the next few days.

Assistant School Superintendent E. J. Braun said yesterday a temporary "binder" policy will be arranged at once, pending final contracts for the $5,990,000 worth of insurance.

The comprehensive program was approved by the school board Tuesday by the school board Tuesday night, after Superintendent William A. Early said, at present, the county's schools are insured for losses of only $1,522,200, or "about 25 per cent of what we should be carrying."

Up to 90 Per Cent Coverage

Annual cost of the new blanket policy, which gives up to 90 per cent coverage, includes $8203 for fire and lightning insurance plus an additional $2999.36 for "extended coverage," including damage by explosion, hail, windstorm, riot, aircraft, smoke and vehicles.

The estimated total of $5,990,000 as "sound value" for the schools is based on figures prepared by the Royal Insurance Co. of New York and Philadelphia, acting through George H. Rucker and Everett Demarest in Arlington. "Sound value" is figured at replacement cost less depreciation.

Insured for Only $57,000

Pointnig out the need for the new insurance program Tuesday, Early said Washington-Lee High School, with a "sound value of $1,775,000, is now insured for only $57,000.

He presented these figures on the estimated sound value of various county schools, compared with present insured values: Fairlington—$380,000, insured for $129,000; Patrick Henry—$235,000, insured for $50,200; Hoffman-Boston—$147,500, insured for $43,500; Thomas-Jefferson, $665,000, insured for $40,000; and Claude Swanson—$525,000, insured for $132,000.

The only school estimated and insured values of which are now approximately equal is Glencarlyn, with a "sound value" of $7500, and insured for $7000.

Some Fire Egress Regulations May Be Dropped

Fire egress regulations for converted buildings may be dropped shortly, it was reported last night.

The Commissioners' Regulations Advisory Committee voted yesterday to urge the city heads to relax existing fire escape requirements on dwellings, slated for conversion to other uses, on these grounds:

1. The same regulations do not apply to new construction in the District.
2. They have been temporarily relaxed on existing buildings pending a complete revision of the city egress law, and
3. Application of egress regulations to converted buildings was strongly opposed by citizen groups at recent public hearings on the question.

Presently, openings to all fire exits, such as doors and windows, on a building converted to another purpose must be fire-proofed.

Should the city heads go along with their advisory group recommendation, people who intend to convert homes into rooming houses will be the chief beneficiaries, Hayes said.

CARE Accepting Orders to Deliver Food in Israel

CARE is accepting orders for non-profit food packages to be delivered in Israel, it was announced yesterday.

Paul Comly French, executive director of CARE, disclosed that 15,000 kosher food packages are due to arrive Thursday in Tel Aviv aboard the Elmira Victory. An additional 10,000 parcels will be sent later this month.

These packages, approved by the Israel government and specially designed to meet the needs of the pioneers, will be stockpiled at Haifa, Tel Aviv, and Jerusalem, he said.

Orders received in the local CARE office, Dupont Circle Building, Washington 6, D. C., will be airmailed to CARE's mission in the new state. Delivery is guaranteed and the donor will receive a final receipt signed by the beneficiary.

Ex-Arlingtonian Heads Aviation Group Committee

By the United Press

Admiral P. A. Smith, former Arlington resident, yesterday was elected chairman of the International Civil Aviation Organization's committee on joint support of air navigation facilities.

The election took place at Montreal, Canada, where the group is meeting. Admiral Smith is United States representative on the council of the ICAO.

Others elected yesterday were Brig. C. S. Booth of Canada, chairman of ICAO air transport committee, and Lieut. Col. Jean Verhaegen, Belgium; Dr. K. N. E. Bradfield, Australia, and Commodore D. A. F. Grassi, Argentina—first, second and third council vice presidents.

2 Women Take Fight to Court For 2d Round, With Umbrellas

The gentler sex? The question mark is supplied by Assistant United States Attorney Raymond Baker.

After yesterday's experience he'd rather handle cases involving men, even if they have beaten their fellow man with an ax or a baseball bat.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Bessie Mae Johns, 31, of 338 G st. ne., and Miss Georgia Mae Wilson, 19, of 1326 10th st. nw., visited the office of the United States Attorney in Municipal Court to apply for warrants.

Seems there had been a fist fight yesterday in front of Miss Wilson's home and each wanted to swear to an assault warrant against the other.

Both, it should be remarked here, are substantial women. Mrs. Johns weighs about 175, Miss Wilson about 160.

After Baker had heard the story of each woman, he commented sagely that if they took out warrants each would be arrested. He suggested they settle their differences.

Then the ceiling fell. First loud voices. Then the women started whacking each other with umbrellas. One of the umbrellas broke.

Baker gulped and called for help. One policeman jumped over a counter. Five others came running in from the corridors. They finally separated the two combatants.

Later, in Municipal Court, each woman was fined $5 on a charge of disorderly conduct.

"You must learn not to take the law in your own hands," advised Judge Nadine Gallagher.

Prisoner Found Hanging Rushed To Psychiatrists

Isaiah D. Lewis, 31, of 2316 9th st. nw., was in Gallinger Hospital for mental observation yesterday after what police said was an attempt to hang himself in the Thirteenth Precinct cellblock.

Police said Lewis was arrested Tuesday morning, police said, after he was caught trying to steal a bundle of diapers from the Crib Diaper Laundry Service truck parked in the rear of 1515 U st. nw.

He was charged with petty larceny and placed in a cell. Later, a policeman making a routine check of the cellblock found Lewis hanging by his shirt. He was cut down and rushed to Freedmen's Hospital. He apparently suffered no injury.

Mary Haworth's Mail

In Sympathetic Way Man Is Always Trying To Encourage His Dowdy Wife to Dress More Becomingly; She Asks How to Get Style-Sense

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 33, married six years, have two small children and no more style-sense than a chimpanzee's grandma. I wouldn't worry about my lack of chic if it weren't that my husband is very dress-conscious and in a sympathetic way he is always making suggestions as to how I might improve my appearance.

How can I learn what is right for me? I have taken one correspondence course on the subject, only to find that my wardrobe looked worse in the end than at the beginning. I have invited guidance from saleswomen in good stores, but their ideas usually run to fancy dress, when what I need is utility garb.

I don't have much time for shopping nor much money to spend, and I find I make an almost total waste of both. My shopping time usually consists of two afternoon hours a week, and both my husband and I usually deplore whatever I buy. I keep promising myself to look and look again, and not spend a cent until I am satisfied; but every season so far I've broken the pledge and come home with more "mistakes." Can you tell me how to develop style sense. D. V.

Start at Feet to Build Chic

DEAR D. V.: I have a theory that a woman should dress to suit her feet, in the sense that her feet must look neatly expensive and also be comfortable, as the foundation of personal chic.

Shoes must not only fit the feet but the costume as well, particularly the hat. That is to say, if you must wear sturdy walking shoes for comfort, then your hat should be equally functional looking,—on the classic Bobbs or Stetson order.

However, if you can wear lightweight frivolous footwear, your hats may be giddier, although they won't stay in style as long as the classic shapes. The simpler the "body" of any article of wearing apparel, the more versatile and durable it is, from the style viewpoint.

Afternoon garb isn't a necessity in the wardrobe of the average woman. In fall, winter and spring, a well tailored suit will hold its own in any daytime company; and though your dress allowance is small, don't confine your shopping to the cheaper emporiums. Boldly invade the better shops and tell the clerks with pleasant firmness that you are looking for "thus-and-so," not to exceed a certain price.

Read for Ideas to Fill in Picture

YOUR TROUBLE, I imagine, is that you try in two hours a week, four times a year, to dress yourself for the coming season, with the added handicap that you haven't the slightest notion what you're looking for. To remedy that, you should study the advertisements, the fashion magazines, the women's periodicals, the fashion columnists in newspapers, to learn the current trend in modes and prices.

Then from this reservoir of information, call up a mental image of yourself, quietly and becomingly dressed in items that go together and that are being offered in today's market at prices you can afford. Of course you can't make the picture real overnight,—not even in weeks of careful shopping, probably. You may still be hunting for "right" finishing touches next year. But you can begin this season to hatch the nucleus of a smart outfit.

In building toward a well-dressed future, select items that look well in themselves, that "do something" for you; that blend with things you already have; and that will harmonize with other adornments you hope to buy when you have the money. Finally, don't buy anything that doesn't square with each and all of these self-imposed shopping disciplines. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Dress to Your Own Figure,, Expert Says

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (AP).—A mere male came up today with an answer to what's wrong with the way women dress.

The answer is—women.

"They are too dictated to," said Charles Le Maire. "They accept too much dictation as to what they should wear."

Le Maire is in a position to do a little dictating himself. As wardrobe director for Twentieth Century-Fox Films, he runs a staff of 200 clothes experts. They have the pleasant chore of fitting lace and fur pretties to girls like Betty Grable, Jeanne Crain, Dorothy McGuire, June Haver and Maureen O'Hara.

But the clothing of film stars is designed to their own personal architecture. This isn't true of the average woman.

Le Maire, a designer himself, said the biggest mistake most women make is to follow blindly the dictates of fashion oracles—or to try to pour herself into a certain type of dress merely because it looked good on a department store mannequin.

"A girl shouldn't pay any attention to what she hears of Paris styles," he emphasized.

"She should think first of her own shape, and dress to it. If her figure doesn't go with what she wants to wear, then she should change her shape."

Le Maire has only a weary sympathy for gals who think they can achieve a pencil silhouette with a tight corset.

"The excess flesh has to go somewhere," he sighed. "It has to go either up or down, forward or backward."

This, he explained, is why there are so many girls around who look like they have either a front or a rear bumper.

An advocate of the plunging neckline, Le Maire has no moral objections to falsies but insists he doesn't allow them in the Twentieth Century-Fox Studio.

"That I absolutely prohibit. Anything that isn't part of the body—anything that doesn't move with the body—it isn't right.

French Finance Minister's Wife Is Leading Lady of Monetary Pow-wow Here

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

LEADING LADY of the financial powwow now engrossing Washington's more brilliant minds, is Mme. Maurice Petsche, wife of France's Finance Minister, who also doubles duties as chairman of the International Bank's Board of Governors. Madame Petsche is also a doubler, acting Tuesday as hostess at a mammoth reception in the Shoreham and on Friday at a similar "do" at the French Embassy.

Though Madame Petsche, who is brunette, soignee, tremendously elegant in the real French manner, was both born and married into international banking circles, she claims total mathematical irresponsibility. "I can't even do an addition!" she exclaimed, half humorously, half mournfully.

Curiously, her own, completely French family made its initial bid for fortune in San Francisco, not Paris. Her great-grandfather, Simon Lazard, and his brother, Alexandre, founded an export-import business on the West Coast. They were extremely successful. Her grandfather returned to France (after marrying her grandmother, a belle from Bayonne, France), set up an office of Lazard Freres.

Her sister, Mrs. Lazard Vernier, is an American citizen, lives near Los Angeles and though invited to Washington, refused to come because her dachshund is expecting puppies!

Madame Petsche was the widow of the Marquis de la Fressandje when she married the Minister of Finance some years ago. Her daughter, a champion skier, married Jean Pierre Wimille, the champion automobile racing driver, who was killed in the Argentine less than a year ago. Her 23-year-old son is a priest, a member of the Silesian Fathers, who devote most of their lives to aiding unfortunate children. And so much of Madame Petsche's time is spent working for charities of benefit to children.

M. Petsche has been in politics for a quarter of a century. He's held down all sorts of important cabinet posts—Undersecretary of Finance, Secretary of War. He has been a deputy, the equivalent of our Representative, throughout his career in his native "department," les Hautes Alpes. Regularly as electric clockwork he pulls down 80 per cent or more of the votes each election. In fact, most of his constituents don't bother to belong to any particular political party, they just let the whole matter slide and call themselves—Petschists.

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

AFTER shaking a thousand hands, Mme. Petsche helps herself to a baked oyster. Picture was made at the mammoth reception given Tuesday afternoon at the Shoreham by French Finance Minister Petsche and Pierre Mendes-France, co-chairman of the joint conference being held this week of the World Bank and Monetary Fund

Parisian Gowns

AT TUESDAY'S reception Madame Petsche wore a Lanvin dress which was worthy of the label "creation." It was redingote style, of heavy white silk, over an underskirt of ruffled black lace. There was a matching black lace bow, too, tucked under chin. Her enormous black straw hat, worn at the perpendicular angle only Parisians seem to be able to achieve, had lace veiling peeping over brim.

For other functions the Finance Minister's wife has brought along several gowns from Jacques Fath, one or two from Worth. At home she's ordered a dress from Paquin's fall collection. Madame Petsche admires American hats, at least those she saw out in Hollywood on a recent visit to her sister. "I think they do them very well," she said, "but you see I always have to wear very simple ones."

Banker Aldrich Busy

GONE ARE the days when a banker traditionally sat behind an outsize mahogany desk, smoking cigars, glowering at almost anyone asking for a handout.

Take Winthrop Aldrich, for instance, who's not only chairman of the Chase National Bank board of directors, but also (among other things too exhausting to enumerate), chairman of the President's Committee for Financing Foreign Trade. This is a newly-made committee which functions primarily to give a shot in the arm to international trade. The committee "will be expected to address itself especially to incentives and providing a suitable environment for a high level of private investment."

Starting off on his job of tracking down incentives—Mr. A. flew from New York Tuesday just in time for the International Bank's reception at the Shoreham, he stayed over for Eugene Black's dinner, then flipped back to New York at midnight. On Saturday he has charted a special plane and will lug a mess of the financial experts up to lunch at his house at Westbury, Long Island, and on Sunday, he'll fly to Europe on a four to five weeks investigation trip.

Instead of conventional banking clothes, the genial Mr. A. wore a light pink shirt, a grayish suit and nicely striped tie. Though he works harder than a covey of beavers, he gets about outside banking circles with tremendous enthusiasm and terrific coverage. Two winters ago, he and Mrs. Aldrich, traveling in the Chase Bank's private plane, made a tour of Latin America. He goes to Europe at the drop of a hat.

Mr. Aldrich changes size, too, with almost as much rapidity—on occasion Harriet Aldrich "puts" him on a diet and he loses every trace of the embonpoint conscientious banquet attendance always entails (that is if the banqueter is ulcerless) and the effects of the very fine luncheons served in the private dining room of his office suite.

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

WILLIAM AVERELL HARRIMAN, U. S. Special Ambassador for ECA in Europe (right), listens while Maurice Petsche, French Finance Minister, explains. In deep study, the two are unaware of several hundred guests milling about at the cocktail party given yesterday at the Statler by the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder

AT MONETARY gatherings this week conversation is concentrated around Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer (left). Here he is talking with the Assistant to the President, John R. Steelman, at the reception held yesterday at the Statler Hotel by the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder.

Financial Leaders Meet at Snyder Reception

By Elizabeth Maguire

TOP financial figures continued in a whirl yesterday as another party was added to a busy week's schedule. Nearly 1000 guests attended a reception given by the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder in the Presidential Room of the Statler Hotel. William McChesney Martin, jr., Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, assisted during the receiving hours from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

As the party started early, it was slow in getting under way. A Coast Guard band played to a very few in the air-cooled room, until the clock struck six, and then floor space was at a premium. All the financial great were there—Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chanceller of the Exchequer; Maurice Petsche, French Minister of Finance; the Undersecretary of the Treasury, Edward H. Foley, jr.; William Averell Harriman, Special Ambassador for ECA in Europe; Thomas McCabe, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and many others.

It was the second large reception in a week tendered by the Snyders who also entertained for the Anglo-Amrican-Canadian delegates last Friday. Their attractive daughter, Miss Drucie Snyder, who was on hand for both occasions, was costumed yesterday in ankle-length black taffeta.

The Ambassador of Ecuador, Augusto Dillon, escorted pretty Senora de Dillon to the first party since his return from Ecuador. Results from the recent disaster in his country, the Ambassador found indescribable. He had prepared himself for the worst, he said, but it was even beyond that.

The Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais were at the reception with their Prime Minister, Pierre Dupong. Asked if he had heard from Mrs. Mesta, Minister Le Gallais said no, but that he expected to hear a lot about Perle Mesta on the arrival tomorrow in New York of Joseph Bech, Foreign Minister of Luxembourg.

"It is truth and not fiction," he said, 'that Mme. Mesta's residence in Luxembourg was recently exorcised of evil spirits by a Catholic priest." He added that the house was probably not as large as she would like it to be, but that it had a beautiful view.

And it is quite unusual, he remarked, to see in the papers every day a front-page story on Luxembourg.

Among the many monetary celebrities at the party yesterday were Hubert Ansiaux, Governor of the Bank and Fund for Belgium, and Mrs. Ansiaux, the Minister of Finance of The Netherlands, Pieter Lieftinck, Earnest de Selliers of Belgium, Sir Gordon Monro, executive director of the United Kingdom for the Bank and Fund, Camille Gutt, Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund, Sir Sidney and Lady Cain, the Assistant to the President and Mrs. John R. Steelman, the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Maurice J. Tobin, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, Sir Henry Wilson Smith of the British Treasury, and Special Counsel to the President Clark Clifford and Mrs. Clifford.

Bonnets Entertain

THE French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were hosts at a dinner last evening at the Embassy. Among the guests was French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman who has just arrived in this country for economic conferences.

Camille Gutt Host To Conference Group

CAMILLE GUTT, managing director of the Monetary Fund, was host at a dinner last night at his apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel for several foreign delegates to the monetary conferences here.

Among Mr. Gutt's guests were the Governor of the Bank of France, Wilfred Baumgartner, the Executive Director of the Fund for Canada and Mrs. Louis Rasminsky, the Governor of the National Bank of Norway Gunnar Jahn, the Executive Director of the Fund for Venezuela and Mrs. Hector Santaella, the Norwegian Ambassador and Mrs. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Mexican Minister of Finance Ramon Beteta, the Governor of the Bank of Mexico Carlos Novoa and Mrs. Georgette Pisart.

Luncheons, Dinners Fete Visitors Here

LADY FRANKS, wife of the British Ambassador, was hostess at a small luncheon yesterday at the Embassy for Mrs. Ernest Bevin, wife of the British Foreign Minister.

Also attending the party were Mme. Pandit, the Indian Ambassador, and the wives of other Commonwealth Ambassadors.

Dr. Chiati Is Host At Egyptian Embassy

A BUFFET supper was given at the Egyptian Embassy last evening with the Charge d'Affaires Dr. M. B. Chiati serving as host. The Ambassador and Mme. Abdul Rahim are still vacationing in Switzerland.

Among the guests were Egypt's delegates to the United Nations, Zaky Bey Saad, Mahmoud El Falaky, and Dr. Abdulhamid Nazmy. The Pakistan Ambassador and Mme. Ispahani also attended the party, as did the Iranian Ambassador Huessein Ala., the Syrian Minister and Mme. El-Kouri, the Lebanese Minister and Mrs. Charles Malik and the Charge d'Affaires of the Embassy of Iraq and Mme. Bakr.

Netherlands Dinner Honors Visitors

THE Netherlands Minister of Foreign Affairs, Dirk Stikker, and the Minister of Finance, Pieter Lieftinck, were honored at a dinner at the Netherlands Embassy last evening by Ambassador E. N. van Kleffens.

Bolivian Diplomats Here for Conference

The Ambassodor of Bolivia and Senora de Martinez-Vargas have as guests for the week Hector Ormachea Zalles and his son, Hector Ormachea Zalles, jr. Former rector of the Universidad Mayor de San Andres of La Paz, Bolivia, and former Minister of Finance, Dr. Zalles has come to the United States to represent his country at the joint conference of the Bank and Fund. Hector Zalles, jr., will remain here to attend the University of Maryland.

Dr. Jaime Guiterrez Guerra is also here for the meetings of the Bank and Fund and is staying at the Shoreham. Mr. Gutierrez was Bolivian Consul in New York City for a number of years and later served in the same capacity in New Orleans.

Gen. Hugo Ballivian, the new Bolivian Military and Air Attache in Washington, arrived last week accompanied by his wife and children. He will replace General Alfredo Sanchez, who returned to Bolivia last month and who has since been appointed to the high office of Prefect of the Department of Cochabamba.

Bolivia also has a new Ambassador Representative to the Organization of American States, Guillermo Gutierrez Veamurquia, who replaces Dr. Manuel Mogro Moreno. Mr. Guitierrez was recently Minister of Public Works and Communications in his country, and before that, he served as Bolivia's Ambassador to Cuba.

The Assistant Air Attache of the Bolivian Embassy, Maj. Hernan Justiniano, and Mrs. Justiniano are settled at their new apartment at the Chancery. Their wedding took place July 30 at the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament in Chevy Chase. Mrs. Justiniano is the former Miss Carmen Luz Quinonez Santurce, Puerto Rico.

In Bridal Procession

Brown-Suarez.

MRS. ELBERT JULIUS McCOY, the former Miss Anne Dillen Pearce, wore white satin and lace for her wedding yesterday at Wesley Methodist Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Leon Pearce of Washington and the bridegroom, a Navy ensign, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. McCoy of New York. The newlyweds will make their home in Pensacola, Fla.,

Butterfield—Maguire

Miss Charlotte Mary Maguire, daughter of Capt. C. J. Maguire, USN, and Mrs. Carter Maguire of Coronado, Calif., was married September 9 to Air Force Cadet Alexander Porter Butterfield, son of Capt. and Mrs. Horace B. Butterfield of Alexandria, Va.

The ceremony took place at the Air Force Base Chapel in Las Vegas, Nev. The couple was attended by Miss Marie S. Jones of Santa Monica, Calif., and Charles W. Butterfield, the bridegroom's brother. The bridegroom is to be graduated from the Air Force Cadet School and commissioned a second lieutenant on September 30.

He attended the University of California at Los Angeles where he was a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity. Mrs. Butterfield was graduated in June from U. C. L. A. where her sorority was Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Myers—Gueydan

Dr. Richard Clayton Myers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Forrest Myers of Chevy Chase, Md., was married in Switzerland on September 3 to Miss Anne-Marie Gueydan daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gueydan of La Tour-de-Peilz, Vaud, Switzerland. The ceremony took place in the Calvinist Church.

The newlyweds will return to the United States October 11 on the Veendam.

Dr. Myers has been studying in Switzerland for the past year as an assistant resident at Zurich University in the field of pathology. His bride studied dress designing at Zurich University.

Miss Rosalie Marks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keeve Marks, was married September 4 in Richmond, Va., to Lawrence Lee Nachman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius L. Nachman of Herndon, Va. Dr. Ariel Goldburg performed the ceremony at Hotel John Marshall.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ivory satin trimmed with lace and she carried stephanotis, gardenias and white orchids. Mrs. Howard F. Marks and Mrs. P. Melvin Nachman were the bride's honor attendants.

The newlyweds will live in Richmond following their honeymoon. Mr. Nachman was graduated from the University of Richmond and his bride is a graduate of William and Mary College.

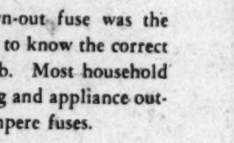
How to Change a Fuse
AND
How to Prevent Fuses from "Blowing"!

AS YOU KNOW, fuses are little "safety valves". They act as a warning and "blow out" only when you put too many Electric appliances on the same circuit. SO, watch your wattage and your fuses won't blow!

WHEN A FUSE BLOWS

FIND OUT WHAT'S WRONG
First, disconnect all cords and appliances on the the blown out circuit. If none are defective, you have too many appliances on one circuit.

PULL OFF THE MAIN SWITCH
before replacing fuse. (Main Switch is usually right beside your Meter box.) If fuse "window" is dark, simply remove blown fuse and screw in a new one



REPLACE WITH RIGHT-SIZE FUSE
Very likely, the blown-out fuse was the right size, but it's wise to know the correct size needed for the job. Most household circuits serving lighting and appliance outlets should have 15 ampere fuses.

P.S. What's more . . . always keep a supply of fuses on hand in case of emergency!

Should you want or need advice concerning your Electric Appliances, call NA 8800 and ask for Home Service Bureau.

Ladies Day Out, New 'Y' Idea Big Hit With Mothers, Children

By Ida Jean Kain

PICK UP your hat, lock up your flat, and head for the "Y"—it's Ladies Day Out. There'll be fun and relaxation, plus a chance to make new friends. The trouble with housework—well, one trouble—is the endless routine. Ladies Day Out is the happy answer. It's a vacation every week.

But what will you do with Junior and Junior Miss? Take them right along. There's a special program for the youngsters, too. But ladies first . . .

Ladies Day Out was established by the YWCA primarily for the young housewife with children. It's a Nation-wide program that has made a big hit with housewives everywhere. Miss Sara Bruce, health education director at the "Y" here, says it's one of the most popular programs they've ever sponsored.

Wives Enthusiastic

"Housewives are enthusiastic about all the activities," declares Miss Bruce. "And you couldn't find a friendlier group. They always take time out to sing and chat awhile and to make new friends and exchange experiences."

With professional Y instructors there to lend a hand, the mothers play badminton, swim, take slimnastic exercises (they're fun), enjoy recreational dancing and games. And happy day, they needn't give a thought to the kiddies. The youngsters have a big time too.

The Y provides a nursery school with trained supervisors for children from two to six years old. But it's not just a babysitting project, Miss Bruce emphasizes. It's an excellent opportunity for the growth and development of the child. The mothers are extremely grateful for this part of their day out.

Kids Happy Too

In the nursery school, the youngsters learn to share toys and get along happily with other children. They learn rhythms and arts and crafts, and they play games, sing, and enjoy a rest period complete with milk and crackers. No wonder they love it.

Housewives attend Ladies Day Out either Tuesday or Wednesday morning from 10 until 1. The ages of the mothers in the group range from 24 to 35, but there is no age limit. Ladies Day Out runs for a 10 weeks' period each year, starting in October, and is open to members of the YWCA. The Y can supply details.

Everybody can have fun at the Y for, as Miss Bruce says, "We include all ages—from 2 to 75." After looking into all the activities, it seems that no one is left out and that no one need be lonely, even in a strange city.

Outstanding World Problem Is Refugee, Mrs. Blair Buck Says

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

CARING for and settling refugees is one of the most important problems confronting the world today says Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president, The General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Back from an around the world trip with the Town Hall Meeting of the Air, she talked with Government officials and women leaders in Egypt, Greece, Italy, England, India, Turkey, Pakistan and Austria. Wherever she went on the 25 to 30,000-mile flight, she participated in radio broadcasts and seminars. In each country she was guest of the government.

MRS. BUCK

In Karachi, she found that the city had been expanded from 200,000 to over one million by refugees in two years. Calcutta has two million unhoused refugees. Around Delhi a "fairly good job" is being done for the thousands of Indian refugees.

Lebanon she discovered is trundling under the weight of Arab refugees who are insufficiently fed and clothed.

And what with between 15 to 20,000 Jewish persons pouring into Israel monthly, that country too is beset with refugee problems. Lack of food and a housing shortage is the root of the trouble there, believes Mrs. Buck.

Private contributions manage to keep the refugees in Germany slightly above the starvation point.

While in Greece the Federation head flew up to Yannina, 60 miles from the northern border to visit refugee camps where both adults and children are being housed, clothed and fed. The Queen of Greece has set up farms to take care of some 18,000 refugees who are being educated, trained in handicrafts, weaving and other practical pursuits.

Women in all countries she visited are doing an outstanding volunteer job in caring for refugees and in all phases of welfare work. They consider it an individual responsibility, remarked Mrs. Buck.

After seeing how the rest of the world lives, the Federation head declares, "Our standard of living is so much higher than that of others, no American in any walk of life should ever complain."

ORT Hears Mrs. Jarvis

MAMAS couldn't use their children as an excuse to not attend the Women's American ORT luncheon and fashion show yesterday. For while the grownups tended to business in the ballroom of Hotel 2400, the kiddies were having a time of it, too, playing games and singing in a room especially reserved for the youngsters.

At the first meeting of the season for the group, Mrs. Serge Jarvis flew into Washington in time to report on the International ORT conference she recently attended in Paris. The Jewish sections of the displaced persons camps would be closed within a few months, Mrs. Jarvis, reported, but the ORT program (which stresses rehabilitation through training) would be permanently installed in France, Belgium.

The ORT program was so well received in Italy, she continued, that the Italian Federation of Dentists and the Italian government asked ORT to organize a school for dental mechanics on a non-sectarian basis. And, Mrs. Jarvis added, about 70 per cent of the vocational trained refugees in Israel today have been trained by an ORT organization somewhere in the world.

But all was not business at the first meeting of the group. Before Mrs. Jarvis spoke, members viewed the coming fall trends in fall clothes, including the "roaring '20s" look, presented at a fashion show by Jelleff's.

Navy Wives' Group Holds Luncheon

First fall luncheon of the Navy Dental Officers' Wives was held yesterday at Normandy Farm. The new president, Mrs. Walter Weaver, was greeted, along with her associate officers, Mrs. James English, vice president; Mrs. Walter Dann, secretary, and Mrs. Justin Stilitsky, treasurer. Hostesses at the party were Mrs. Henry R. Delaney, Mrs. Arthur R. Frechette and Mrs. Merritt J. Crawford.

Your Baby and Mine

Older Child's Jealousy Allayed By Familiarity With New Baby

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

IT IS COMMON practice to prepare an older child for the coming of a new baby so as to allay any jealousy the child might feel toward the individual who has deprived him of his or her place as an "only" child.

That this is not all that is necessary, in some cases, is attested to by Mrs. D. B., who, despite the preparation, found her older daughter very jealous of the baby.

She hit upon this effective way of ending that situation. "When I first came home from the hospital," she writes, "my 16-month-old daughter was terribly jealous of the baby.

"Finally, I discovered a simple way of changing her attitude toward the baby. I started sitting on the floor with him, when I nursed him, and let her sit beside me. She would watch him, or else run around and play, stopping occasionally to look at him.

"We did other things, too—letting her pat the baby's hands or back. Also, we put her in a big bed, when the baby was a month old, transferred him to her crib and let them sleep in the same room.

"She was delighted. We made sure she got an extra share of attention, while not relaxing our attitude toward forbidden privileges which were in force when the baby was born. But, I think it was my sitting on the floor which helped her to begin to love him.

"May I say, in conclusion, that I started to give both these children sips of water from a cheese glass when they were 1 month old. By six months this younger baby could drink from a glass as well as I do."

That's an idea well worth trying. The hands-off policy so many parents adopt of never letting the older child come near to or touch the baby just increases the child's jealousy.

Babies can drink from a cup at birth. But this doesn't mean that after they have become accustomed to bottles they will all give them up so easily. It depends so much upon the child, and how important this familiar habit of drinking from a bottle has become.

About Removing Varnish From Piano

I want to remove the varnish from an old piano. I have been told that certain varnishes affect the tone of a piano Is it true? I want to refinish it and would like to know what is best to use. If the wood is nice, I would like to rub it with oil and leave it natural. I would like some advice on this. M. W. C.

If this is a very valuable, highly prized instrument it should not be refinished at home, for that could affect the delicate beauty of the tone. However, less expensive instruments can be refinished by home methods with no noticeable change in tone to the average ear.

To do it, first remove all present finish with a good commercial paint and varnish remover. If the piano is a veneer, do not allow the remover to remain on the wood any longer than necessary to soften the varnish, for if left longer it could soak under the veneer and loosen it. When softened with the remover, remove the old varnish by using a broad-bladed putty knife.

When the wood is clean, go over with turpentine to take away every trace of remover, and sand it until satin smooth.

Thus prepared, you could rub it with repeated applications of linseed oil as you suggest. Or, if it is the color you wish, you could finish it by applying several coats of shellac or two coats of a high grade clear varnish. If you do not wish a high gloss on the finished piece, use a dull varnish for the final coat.

If the raw wood is lighter than you wish when the finish is removed, you should not attempt the oil finish but, instead, should apply an oil stain to the raw wood followed by shellac or varnish as described above.

PETUNIA!

When skies and winey winds declare
It's gorgeous autumn weather,
A juicy pie and cottage cheese
Are beautiful together

Yes indeed, Petunia! Top a one-crust juicy fruit pie with cottage cheese, and you'll find its a delicious combination of flavors.

Bishop-Bracken

I have two fur coats which are in good condition and which I would like to sell. Where do you recommend I take them for the best offer? I don't intend buying another fur coat, so the trade in from a furrier is not the solution. Can anyone help me? E. B. B.

A shop in Alexandria will sell the fur coats for you on a commission basis. They tell me they are now receiving many calls for fur coats, so you should have no trouble in selling them. For further information I suggest you call the store at Alexandria 0649.

Could you tell me a way to remove a white spot on a blond mahogany night table made from some alcohol that was spilled on it recently?—J. D.

If this spot is not deep you may be able to remove it or at least make it less conspicuous by rubbing with rottenstone or powdered pumice and linseed oil. Mix the pumice and oil to a creamy paste and apply with a soft cloth, rubbing with the grain of the wood. Do not rub hard. When the stain is gone, polish with a clean cloth and furniture polish. If the alcohol removed the finish to the wood, the only way to restore the table is to completely refinish the top.

Can you tell me if there are any stores in the vicinity of Washington that sell special unsweetened foods for people on a diabetic diet? P. B. P.

The stores listed under "Food—Health" in the yellow pages of the telephone book sell unsweetened foods for diabetics—some even have diabetic chewing gum.

I have new white pine planks for a picnic table top. Can you tell me how I may finish them to stand the weather and have a natural finish? F. S.

You can finish the planks with a high-grade spar varnish. This is resistant to weather and moisture and will permit the color and grain of the pine to show.

A. I. B. Maps Year's Plans, Gives Prizes

By S. Oliver Goodman

Enrollments for local American Institute of Banking classes will start September 28 and courses will get under way October 3, it was announced last night at the annual Fall education a l dinner in the Mayflower.

Redman

Samuel C. Redman, jr., chairman of the Washington Chapter's educational committee, pointed out that it is the Institute's Golden Anniversary and the national group was aiming at a 50,000 enrollment this year. More than 200 bank employes are expected to take courses here.

Prizes for scholastic honors in the past season also were awarded. A. Baker Nicholson of National Metropolitan Bank won first prize in the standard course and will have his name inscribed on the W. W. Spaid Memorial Plaque.

Gorman Donnegan of Riggs National won second prize in the standard group and John R. Reinoehl of Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. took third honors. Thomas K. Malone, jr., of American Security & Trust Co. won second prize in the prestandard group.

Women winners, who will receive their prizes at a dinner meeting next Tuesday, are Miss Eleanor Omohundro of Union Trust Co. first in prestandard group, and Miss Eleanor L. Watt of National Metropolitan Bank, third in prestandard group.

Standard and prestandard certificates also were awarded last night. An inspirational address was given by Leroy S. Clark, vice president of the Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York.

NEW PRESIDENT: Frank S. Phillips yesterday was elected president of the Home Federal Savings & Loan Association, succeeding the late Joseph L. Brashears. Reelected officers include Odell S. Smith, board chairman; Frank S. Smith, vice president and general counsel; John U. Raymond, secretary, and Marion W. Smith, secretary. Shareholders were told at the fifty-second annual meeting that assets currently approximate $1,800,000.

One on the Aisle—

A Modest Play In Magic Hands

By Richard L. Coe

WHAT A SATISFYING pleasure it is to watch the makebelieve of Helen Hayes. Her Olney vehicle is William McCleery's New York-bound "Good Housekeeping" and her role somewhat resembles a mature Maggie Wylie of Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," once one of the star's greatest hits. It would be stretching things more than a bit to say that McCleery is another Barrie, but he has provided this gracious player with a lovable part. The pity of it is that more Washingtonians can't see her and that we can offer her no stage in the city where, as a pupil of the Misses Hawkes' dancing class, she made her first public appearance.

For the magic we are seeing these nights at Olney is by no means the effortless charm it appears. Of Miss Hayes' unabashed 49 years, 44 have been spent on the stage. To get a roar of laughter from a simple line requires the skill only experience can yield. To strike the spark of sympathy an audience feels for a character who senses her husband is restless, takes the use of hands, face, body and voice that only time can master. How rare this quality is and how much rarer our bumbling wastefulness of the theatrical art has permitted it to become is reflected in soldout houses for an unknown play by a little known playwright.

By this I do not mean to be cavalier to Mr. McCleery. His successes have been modest and the story he tells in "Good Housekeeping" is a modest one. But it is a likeable little play and for some seasons to come you'll be finding it acted all over the map.

THE CAST

McCleery gives you Miss Hayes as the wife of a State university president. A Washington newspaperman, he got the job by standing up to the political machine of the State. Their late teen-age daughters have outgrown the need for mother's full-time care and their home is run under the dictatorship of an observant female servant.

You Know The Lady

Which leaves time on the wife's hands, time to read about psychology, to play with the idea of writing a book herself and time to sense that her husband is a bit bored with university life, might, in fact, make a good Governor. When one of the daughters' boy friends gets a simillar idea, an entente is reached whereby Dad is pushed into the coming campaign.

Miss Hayes makes this woman a figure of genuine charm, wit and wisdom. More important, she makes every woman in the audience feel that she is the character, makes every man think he knows her intimately. When a political boss recalls he used to take her to lunch, she wisely remarks that the acquaintance who was to be her husband "took me to dinner."

When for the purposes of argument, the husband brings up the late President, Miss Hayes settles back firmly in her chair: "Now, if you're going to say a word about Franklin D. Roosevelt," she conjures up that person (and I am proudly one) who will permit no guff about FDR.

This scene with Husband Kent Smith in the third act is most amusing. The two deftly play the baffled husband-finagling wife argument with pleasurable zeal. Married couples will understand the flashing clarity of the Hayes-Smith verbal quicksand.

Kent Smith Should Win

Though it is a bit of a shock to find the able Kent Smith admitting to being father to daughters of marriageable age, he is fine as the newsman turned university prexy. It's quite a change from his Enobarbus in Miss Cornell's "Antony and Cleopatra," but he surely ought to win that election.

Unfortunately, Miss Hayes' daughter, Mary MacArthur, was ill opening night and unable to appear as her onstage offspring. The buzz of disappointment which swept the house when Manager Richard Skinner announced the news would have heartened her. As things were, Shirley Standlee did very nicely indeed in her quickly rehearsed part and Mary Malone is lovely as the other daughter.

Jack Manning makes a believable young pusher out of the young newswriter who starts the gubernatorial boom. Katherine Raht is the new switch in household maids and Matt Briggs the political boss to the paunched eyes.

Whether or not Miss Hayes will win New York's hardened huzzahs for this modest but likeable play, she has once more delighted Washington's trouping theatergoers.

DREAM, HE SAYS: Alan Napier tells his doc that in his dreams he frequently treats his wife, Irene Hervey, this way in "Manhandled." Dorothy Lamour and Dan Duryea star in this melodrama opening this morning at the Capitol. Frankie Laine headlines the new stage bill

Judge Refuses Writ Halting Work On Bay Bridge

Baltimore, Sept. 14 (AP).—Circuit Judge Joseph Sherbow refused today to issue an order halting work on the proposed Chesapeake Bay bridge.

His decision, in response to a taxpayers' suit asking such an order, opened the way for an appeal to the State Court of Appeals. Attorneys said such an appeal would be taken.

City Councilman Charles A. Masson of Baltimore had brought the suit. He asked Judge Sherbow to issue an order to the State Roads Commission to cease work on the bridge project until it could consider bids on a tunnel.

Prince Georges To Inspect Vote Machines

With purchase of voting machines being urged by the Prince Georges County Board of Election Supervisors, the County Commissioners will witness a demonstration of the machines at their meeting Tuesday.

The county's voting population, now about 45,000 persons, will increase an estimated 10,000 as a result of Maryland's abolition of declarations of intent. Voting machines, according to Alexander Buscher, head of the election board, "are the only way we can keep up with progress."

Board Member Samuel Wyvill told the Commissioners last Tuesday that the increase in voters will necessitate 10 new voting precincts, in addition to one already planned for Takoma Park, and more election personnel and equipment.

"I don't know how we can handle it under the old ballot system," he informed the county heads.

The machines will cost $156,250 if bought outright, Wyvill said. The election supervisors, he added, favor buying them over a 10-year period, paying $18,750 yearly.

Man Seized In Dope Raid Held for Jury

Jesse W. Jeffers, jr., 26, yesterday was held under $3000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of possessing more than 4½ ounces of pure cocaine.

Jeffers, who lives at the Dunbar Hotel, pleaded innocent when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

The narcotics involved, according to police, is the largest amount made in a single seizure of unadulterated cocaine. Jeffers said he bought the drug for his own use, according to police.

Eskimo Skulls Found In British Columbia

Williams Lake, B. C., Sept. 14 (U.P.).—Eskimo skulls and other bones, which might be as old as 10,000 years, have been found in the Cariboo region of British Columbia, it was learned today.

Discovery of the bones was made by Mrs. K. C. von Englebairsdorft, curator of the National History Museum, who spent two months in the region.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT Court for the District of Columbia. Evelyn Marie Lao, an infant, who sues at the relation of her next friend, Maud Allison, plaintiff, vs. Radame Vasquez Lao, defendant. No. 17444-49. The object of this suit is to annul the marriage heretofore solemnized between the parties hereto and for general relief. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 29th day of August, 1949, ordered that the defendant, Radame Vasquez Lao cause his appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occurring after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter, and The Washington Post before said day. EDWARD M. CURRAN, Judge. Attest: (Seal.) HARRY M. HULL, Clerk. By HELEN F. STRAUSS, Deputy Clerk. Sept.1,8,15.

AUCTION SALES 8

THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers 435 Southern Building

TRUSTEES' SALE OF TWO VALUABLE TWO-STORY PLUS BRICK DWELLINGS, BEING KNOWN AS PREMISES NOS. 1215 AND 1217 TWENTY-FIFTH STREET, NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded, in Liber No. 8762, Folios 215 and 223 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on FRIDAY, THE SIXTEENTH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, A. D. 1949, AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being parts of Lot 41 in William F. Steiger's subdivision of lots in Square 24, as per plat recorded in Libers S. F. and W. F. page 102 of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia being more particularly described by metes and bounds in respective deeds of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: All cash. Each property to be sold separately. A deposit of $500.00 will be required at time of sale on each property. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Both Sides File Briefs in Phone Removal Case

Briefs were on file yesterday in the suit of Murray H. Olf, operator of the State Wide Sports News Distributors, Colmar Manor, Md., to prevent removal of his telephone.

Olf's establishment was raided by special agents of United States Attorney George Morris Fay on March 25. He was among 34 men subsequently indicted on gambling charges as a result of this raid and others the same day.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. has sought to remove the telephone. Arguments were heard by Judge Charles C. Marbury in Prince Georges County Circuit Court on September 7. Both sides then were directed to submit briefs.

Judge Marbury is expected to begin study of the briefs today.

Disabled Pupils To Go to Classes

Organized school classes for 10 to 15 disabled Arlington pupils, suffering from polio, heart disease or spastic difficulties, will be held for the first time this year, Arlington Schools Superintendent William A. Early announced yesterday.

Three rooms in the basement of the county health department at 1800 N. Edison st. will be used for the classes, sponsored jointly by the school system and county health department. Classes including occupational therapy as well as academic work, will begin as soon as two qualified teachers can be hired, Early said.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Walker Hancock, the sculptor whose newest statue will be placed in Philadelphia's railroad station, bought some Gloucester property which includes a quarry. He found that the quarry made an ideal swimming hole. Others found it, too—particularly some members of a Finnish colony nearby, who became friendly with Hancock and swam there every summer. Last summer, however, too many strangers came to the swimming hole and Hancock finally had to take measures. He put up a sign: "No Swimming. Private" . . . But then the Finns stayed away, too, and explained to Hancock that they were heeding the sign. Hancock therefore changed the sign to read "No Swimming, Private," and added the Finnish word for "Welcome."

David Dubinsky, head of the ILGWU, saw Ernest Bevin leaving the Statler in Washington and tapped him twice on the shoulder. Dubinsky immediately was surrounded by guards assigned to the British Foreign Minister—until Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks identified him by greeting, "Hello, Mr. Dubinsky," and Bevin shouted, "Hello, Dave" . . . Charles Murphy of Life magazine, who is "helping" the Duke of Windsor write the second installment of his autobiography for Life, rented a house at Antibes. It's a long job, because on many days the duke doesn't feel like talking.

Eddie Rickenbacker told the Overseas Press Club of his recent tour of Central and South America. Whenever his plane landed at an airport, Rickenbacker found a National City Bank representative to greet him. As soon as Rickenbacker returned to New York, he telephoned a friend at the National City Bank and thanked him for this thoughtfulness. "Not at all," said the banker. "Remember, Eddie, the National City Bank loaned you the money to buy the plane, and we had men out at the airport to check on whether you were taking good care of the ship" . . . Rickenbacker and Arthur Godfrey, incidentally, were invited to meet Chile's officials at the Union Club in Santiago. They ducked machine-gun fire and fled, when rebels shot at the arriving officials.

John Gunther was invited to participate in a symposium on "What Will the World Be Like in the Year 2000?" Gunther begged off, explaining: "I don't even know what the world will be like next week" . . . Robert Hopkins, son of the late Harry Hopkins, is in New York, en route to his ECA post in Paris. He and his wife are taking only their kitchenware and two bicycles, "which will solve our food and transportation problems" . . . The most brilliant array of lawyers in Washington has participated in writing the appeals brief of Ed Prichard in the Kentucky vote case, as their personal tribute to him.

Physical Check-Up

Is your youngster's hearing normal. Can he see as well as he should? "Of course!" you say, "wouldn't I know if he didn't?" But the answer isn't so simple. Even the youngster, himself, may not be aware that he differs from other children.

Without realizing it, a child with impaired hearing may learn to read lips. Nonetheless, there are many occasions when he doesn't get what is being said. Irritability, apparent mental dullness or rebelliousness may grow out of such a disability. Similarly, a child who doesn't have normal vision may not be detected by even fairly alert adults. He may have learned to compensate for poor sight in all sorts of ways.

There are little signs which should give us clews to such disabilities. As noted, the child whose hearing isn't normal is likely to be irritable. He may have had difficulty in learning to talk, too. The omission of "s" or "th" sounds is especially likely. The youngster whose sight isn't perfect may squint, be unusually startled by the sudden appearance of people or animals and bump into things frequently.

Many schools give careful eye and ear examinations to children. If the school to which your child goes, doesn't have this service, it will pay to take him to a good doctor for a check-up. Whether or not he gets along well in school may depend largely on his ability to see and hear normally.

TRY IT

GO SPOONING WITH LITTLE LADIES

Wooden spoons are very reasonable and are available in most any drug or grocery store. Young and old will enjoy costuming these little ladies. The round end of the spoon makes a natural shape for the head end of the figure, and a package of pipe cleaners will be useful for arms. Gather up scraps of colored crepe paper, and have a rag bag of cloth scraps handy as you test your designing ability. Wrap the pipe cleaner around the neck of the spoon so that the two arms are of equal length.

Let your materials suggest your doll's type by turning purple scraps into a queen's royal robe, or red scraps into Little Red Riding Hood. White might suggest a bride and her attendants, and blue could even be a Little Boy Blue. Bits of yarn, fringe, and buttons can be converted into hair, skirts, and hats.

Make up the faces with crayons or colored pencils to suit the character of the costume, and line your little ladies up for a costume parade.

TOMORROW—FRY 'AN EGG ON A RAFT.

THE DOMESTIC SCENE

Q. A husband sued for divorce, charging desertion. The wife's answer denied desertion, and asked the court to order the husband to pay her attorney's fee and to give her support money while the suit was pending, and permanently. After a trial, the court awarded the husband a divorce, but ordered the husband to pay her attorney's fee and $70 a month alimony. The wife appeals, and the husband asks the appeal be dismissed because his wife has accepted alimony payments. What result?

A. The rule is "where a divorce is granted against the wife, to whom an award of alimony is made, that, by accepting the alimony, she is precluded from taking and prosecuting an appeal from the decree of divorce." She could have refused to accept the alimony awarded her and have applied to the trial court for an allowance of support money and suit money to enable her to prosecute her appeal. She cannot accept the alimony award and at the same time challenge the correctness of the decision awarding it. So the wife's appeal in this case is dismissed. This appears to be legal hair-splitting that is difficult to justify in logic—but it is the law . . . F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

Unless You Leave

There are so many loving words . . . I long to say to you . . . And there are countless deeds, my love . . . I wish that I could do . . . Because I hold you in my heart . . . And in my every scheme . . . And when I sleep I kiss your lips . . . In each devoted dream . . . Because you are so sweet and good . . . And wonderful to me . . . That in your fond embrace I seem . . . To touch infinity . . . And just because no matter where . . . The sun may cast its rays . . . Or how the falling leaves or snow . . . May wake the yesterdays . . . I shall belong to you alone . . . And I shall never die . . . Unless and not until, my love . . . I hear you say good-by.

Visiting Motorist Gets Courtesy, Ticket

Edward G. Neam of 1609 Varnum st. nw. was driving through a 55-mile-per-hour zone in Arkansas when a speed cop flagged him down.

"You were doing 62," said the policeman, as he wrote out the ticket.

"I'm sorry," replied Ed. "How about giving me a courtesy ticket for the extra 7 miles per hour?"

"Sorry," said the cop, "we'll give you lots of courtesy—but the ticket will cost you 10 bucks."

And it did.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Calvin Follin of Falls Church, Va., calls our attention to a rare bargain advertised recently in our morning contemporary. It offered:

"Dodge, '49 — $595 down. A beautiful car. Won't last long."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Purebred female Chihuahua, 1-year-old; will have pups in a month—but definitely not purebred pups." (Falls Church 6603.)

"Three very pretty 10-week-old housebroken kittens." (Temple 5970.)

"Three gentle, affectionate, housebroken 7-week-old kittens." (Owens 5895.)

"Gentle, 2-year-old beagle with excellent manners." (Oxford 0090.)

"Mother cat and four healthy, adorable 7-week-old kittens." (Emerson 2751.)

A Chicago court has issued a temporary injunction against the FCC ban on Give-Aways; but I wasn't worried about it in the first place. You can't take away a cat's license to have kittens.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I think it's about time somebody came to your defense. If you're "mean" and "not a good sport" — move over, brother. You've got company.

I think Washington fans are to be commended, not criticized. Each year they turn out to support what they hope will be a winning team; each year they've been rewarded with a loser.

If the Nats can't play any better than they have for the past few months, they'll get less support, not more—because they won't deserve support.

REBUTTAL

Pop Grey's recent jingle about women who are brash, and love men only for their cash moved Mildred Brooks of 1409 15th st. nw. and W. M. O'C. to collaborate on:

Pop Grey says we're caustic
And claims that we're brash;
But men are demanding,
Conceited and rash.

And for good measure, our rhymsters add:

A word of advice to
You aging Don Juans:
All men who are balding
Are not Aly Khans.

ON BEING CLEAN

"Why must it always be my fate," wails Thomas K. Holmes of 1838 Belmont rd. nw., "to get the dirty fork or the glass smudged with lipstick?

"Why am I considered a crank when I object to eating some previous patron's dirt? Aren't there any laws governing these things?"

Oh, sure—lots of them. But if they were enforced and the offenders closed up, where would you eat?

Restaurateurs hate those lipstick smudges as much as you do—but they tell me, "Nothing can be done about it. Ordinary dishwashing techniques used by restaurants will not remove lipstick."

It's obvious, of course, that the operator who gives that answer is begging the issue. Once the smudge is pointed out to him, he doesn't throw the glass away; he sends it back for a hand-washing.

Merry-Go-Round

High Court Taking Turn To Right

By Drew Pearson

For the first time since Franklin Roosevelt appointed the majority on the Supreme Court, you can write it down that the "nine old men" will now rule against F.D.R.'s general political philosophy.

This turn to the right will be apparent shortly after court convenes in October, and would have taken place even had not Justice Wiley Rutledge passed away last week. It will be emphasized all the more, however, with his death.

There will now be three different and distinct groups on the Supreme Court, with generally divergent points of view on most subjects.

Justice Douglas — Justice Black

Group No. 1—The militant liberals have now been reduced to only two men—Justices Hugo Black and William O. Douglas. Up until Frank Murphy's death, they controlled the court because they could usually persuade Stanley Reed or one other justice to go along with them. Now a definite minority, Black and Douglas will still have a powerful impact on the Nation, will probably become like Holmes and Brandeis in their ringing, historic dissents. But their influence over the court majority will be no more.

Group No. 2—The conservatives are represented by Felix Frankfurter and Bob Jackson. Both were appointed by Roosevelt as liberals; both have drifted well over to the right, and both are in opposition to most of F.D.R.'s social and economic views.

Middle-of-the-Roaders

Group No. 3—The middle-of-the-roaders are led by Chief Justice Fred Vinson, who for the first time, since the death of Murphy and Rutledge, will now control the majority of the court.

With the Chief Justice will line up popular Stanley Reed, also from Kentucky. Reed has been gradually veering away from the liberals.

Also voting with the Chief Justice most of the time will be hard-working former Attorney General Tom Clark, who partly owes his Court appointment to Vinson. For it was Vinson who tipped the balance in favor of Clark when the President's mind was undecided.

Though a Republican, Justice Harold Burton also lines up rather consistently with the Chief Justice. Burton feels a great loyalty to President Truman, who appointed him, and with whom he once served in the Senate. Furthermore, Burton, a plodding lawyer who has to struggle to turn out even three or four opinions a year, is forced to hang on somebody's coattails.

Douglas vs. Frankfurter

There was a time when Bill Douglas seriously considered resigning from the Supreme Court. Still a young man, the confining drudgery of the court bored him.

With the death of Rutledge and Murphy, however, he will probably not resign—first, because he will not desert his old friend Hugo Black, and, second, because he will not desert the liberal cause.

Douglas gets a kick out of baiting his opposite number, Felix Frankfurter. The only member who consistently gets under Frankfurter's skin, Douglas almost makes him frantic.

The court liberals have several times bent over backward to win the vote of Justice Reed. In the Associated Press case, for instance, the liberals needed one more vote and instructed their law clerks to study all of Reed's past opinions in order to insert some of his pet phraseology in their final opinion. After an exhaustive search, one of Reed's pet legal theories was dug up and woven into the AP opinion. Reading it, Justice Reed beamed: "If this stays in," he said, "I'll go along with you."

Jantzen GIRDLES

more rhythm—more freedom in these rib-trimming girdles
with new waist-slimming tops

Something to sing about—this Jantzen stroke of genius with the lithe, supple boning KNIT-IN by a special Jantzen process to give you the Empire silhouette, take inches off your waistline, smooth your hips down to size. What's more—it's wonderful to wear! Only Jantzen has this patented construction, and The Hecht Co. brings it to you in silky-smooth elasticized Leno. Let our expert fitters help you choose the right Talon-fastened or step-in styles for you. Small, medium or large.....7.50 to $10
